

A LARGE MEETING HOUSE IS NEEDED

Allen Jay Urges New Quarters For the Indiana Yearly Meeting.

OLD CHURCH IS OUTGROWN

HE INFORMS WEST RICHMOND FRIENDS THAT LOGICAL PLACE FOR NEW BUILDING IS ON EARLHAM CAMPUS.

Members of the West Side Friends' congregation, which congregation is confronted with the problem of erecting a meeting house, approve of the plan of Rev. Allan Jay, who believes that a building sufficiently large to accommodate the Indiana Yearly Meeting attendance should be erected on Earlham college campus. For the present the congregation will hold its meeting at the chapel in Lindley hall but as soon as school takes up in the fall other arrangements will have to be made.

The East Main street Friends Meeting house is entirely too small for the large number who annually congregate to attend Yearly Meeting. It is the largest meeting house in the city and has for years been the meeting place of Indiana Friends.

A Logical Plan.
Rev. Jay believes that if the Yearly Meetings are held here in the future an addition will have to be placed on the church or else a new one constructed. He believes that his plan is the best and most logical.

Nothing in regard to the building plans have been definitely decided upon. This will be taken up in the near future, as the leading members of the church were unable to consider the matter just at the present time, owing to the preparations for the semi-centennial celebration of Earlham college.

Professor Elbert Russell will probably have charge of the services. During his absence this summer, as he intends taking a trip to England to deliver several lectures, other members of the congregation will fill the pulpit.

Dr. L. M. Gentle will be the manager. The team expects to go to Southport to play soon.

CASE GETS HEARING

After Protracted Delay, Bryant, Ind., Bank Case Comes to Trial.

WAS HARD TO SECURE JURY

After a protracted delay occupied by legal preliminaries the case of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of Bryant, Ind., vs. Benjamin F. Miller was called for trial in the Wayne circuit court this morning. The case is the result of a deal between Miller and the bank in which the bank obtained a large number of township trustee warrants. It is claimed the warrants were not worth the money paid for them. The plaintiff is represented by John L. Rupe and the defense is in the hands of T. J. Sturdy.

It required a long time to obtain a jury. Judge Fox had stated before-hand if there were any farmers in the venire who wanted off for this case, so they might look after their crops he would excuse them. Several farmers took advantage of this offer and were excused. Their places had to be taken by men from the city. The court says it would be a hardship to impose on the farmers, especially when men can be found about the city whose business does not require their constant attention.

A large number of legal points are involved in the case and it is expected the trial will occupy the entire week. Several interesting phases of the law will be ruled upon.

ATTEMPT TO COMPROMISE.

An effort to compromise the case of the Bank of Bryant vs Miller which was set for trial in circuit court today was made this afternoon. It was said $200 separate the litigants from a friendly settlement. An account of the suit is to be found elsewhere.

INTERESTING POINT

Cemetery Case, to Be Argued Tomorrow, Involves Law Puzzles.

CONDEMNATION OPPOSED

An interesting point of law will be argued before Judge Fox in the Wayne circuit court tomorrow. The case of the Earlham Cemetery association against Margaret Smith et al will be up for hearing on a preliminary point. It is maintained by the defense that the Cemetery association has no power nor authority to condemn the property of the defense. The property is the farm on which the Country club is located. The Cemetery association seeks to have appraisers named and the property condemned, so that it can be acquired by purchase. It is undertaking to proceed under the section of law that gives railroad companies and other public service corporations the right to condemn property.

The defense insists the cemetery is not considered in a class with railroads. It will seek to maintain the cemetery is a private institution and exists for private gain. The defense claims also that the Smith farm is not necessary to the cemetery as it can extend its grounds so as to provide for a long time to come by purchasing ground located south instead of west of the cemetery.

HIS INJURIES ARE NOT VERY SERIOUS

Cash Peck Will Recover from Bad Accident.

The injuries sustained by Cash Peck in a fall yesterday afternoon while painting the residence of Miss Sarah Sanderson, 121 North Sixteenth street, include two broken ribs and a broken collar bone. The wound on the back of his head caused by the falling roof hook is not believed to be serious. Up to the present time it is not believed that any internal injuries were sustained. He was resting easier at his home, North Nineteenth street this morning. Word was sent to his son Roy, at Stuebenville, O., and he arrived late last night.

A LODGE BIRTHDAY

It was thirty-eight years ago today that Webster lodge of Masons was organized at the village of Webster. Several members of the lodge remember the occasion distinctly.

"I prophesy an agreeable ecstasy in perceiving the unparalleled embarrassment of a harassed postilion while gauging the symmetry of a potato peeled by a sibyl." Dictate this sentence and find how many of your friends will be able to spell it right. London Gentlemen.

Drawing Money in Paris.

If you present a letter of credit at one of the great banks in Paris, like the Credit Lyonnais, an usher in livery receives you in a splendid parlor like the salon of a palace and bids you be seated in a sumptuous chair. Presently he brings you a check made out for the amount you demand for your signature. A quarter of an hour later he brings you the cash on a silver tray. You do not come in contact with the clerical force or see the inner workings at all. If you wish to cash a local check or get a bill changed you go to another waiting room, where an usher hands you a brass disk with a number stamped on it. As each number is called by a crier the holder steps to a window and transacts his business. As the numbers are called in French it is quite essential to understand the language to that extent anyway.—Travel Magazine.

Lofty.

Of the two celebrated barristers, Balfour and Erskine, the former's style was gorgeously verbose, while the latter, on the contrary, was crisp and vigorous. Coming into court one day, Erskine noticed that Balfour's ankle was bandaged. "Why, what's the matter?" asked Erskine. Instead of replying, "I fell from a gate," Balfour answered in his usual roundabout way, "I was taking a romantic ramble in my brother's garden," he said, "and on coming to a gate I discovered that I had to climb over it, by which I came into contact with the first bar and grazed the epidermis of my leg, which has caused a slight extravasation of the blood." "You may thank your lucky stars," replied Erskine, "that your brother's gate was not as lofty as your style or you would have broken your neck."

ONE MEETING ENDS ANOTHER STARTED

Delegates to B. Y. P. U. Held Their First Session Here Today.

S. S. CONVENTION OVER

FINAL SESSION WAS HELD LAST EVENING AND BIG CROWD ATTENDS—PRESIDENT BRYAN DID NOT COME.

At the opening session of the Baptist Young People's Union state convention at the First Baptist church, North Eleventh street, this morning Rev. W. G. Everson, pastor of the College avenue Baptist church of Indianapolis, and formerly of this city, delivered the principal address. His subject was "Our Young People and Evangelism," in which he tried to point out that the young people had the knowledge and that they should go out and do the work. He believes it is unnecessary to have a thorough theological education in order to do effective work.

Two other addresses equally interesting were given. In the absence of Miss Hattie Berner, her paper was dispensed with and one prepared by Mrs. Robert Smith of this city was read by her husband, pastor of the church. Her subject was "Training and Bible Study." "Problems and their Solution As I See Them on the Field," was the subject of an interesting discourse by F. Earle McCracken of Franklin college, and field secretary of the B. Y. P. U. He said that the danger lies in devoting all the time on Sunday evening observance, but not to the week evening training course. He thought that if more interest was taken in the latter there would be much better attended and more interesting Sunday evening discussions at meetings of the B. Y. P. U.

Rev. J. F. Fraser of Greensburg, who has had much success in the organization of Bible reading classes spoke on his work at this afternoon's session. He encouraged the delegates present to adopt such methods. Rev. J. F. Ralke of Crawfordsville led in the devotional service. A round table talk was led by Rev. F. G. Kenny of Indianapolis, at which all were invited to ask whatever questions they pertained to the work. This discussion was indulged in freely and brought out many points of interest to all in attendance.

Bryan Was Absent.

The closing meeting of the State Sunday school convention of Baptist churches at this same meeting place last evening was largely attended. President Bryan was unable to be present. The principal address was that of Rev. F. E. Taylor, pastor of the First Baptist church of Indianapolis. His theme was "How Many Have You Led to Christ?" making an appeal to Sunday school teachers and church members especially.

BAPTIST NOTES.

The fall meeting of the convention of the B. Y. P. U. of the Indiana Baptist churches will be held at South Bend. At this time the state officers will be elected and business considered.

At the close of yesterday afternoon's session the delegates visited the Reid Memorial church as the guests of the trustees. An organ recital of much merit was given by Mrs. Frederick Miller. The visitors were very much pleased with their reception.

The art association was attended this afternoon by the B. Y. P. U. delegates.

MARRIED TO NEPHEW

Smiling Groom Is Perfectly Happy With His Bride And "Aunty."

THREE YEARS' COURTSHIP

New York, June 16.—Smiling and as happy, apparently, as the youngest of June bridal couples, Mrs. William Pierson Hazelton, a wealthy widow, seventy-six years old, of 93 Madison avenue, and her nephew, James Brown Hazelton, seventy-two years of age, of Westfield, Mass., were married today in the brick Presbyterian church after a courtship of three years.

"You see, Mr. Hazelton was the dearest of the many friends of my dead husband," said Mrs. Hazelton, speaking of the courtship that led to the ceremony today. "He is my nephew by marriage and we have known each other ever since childhood. We used to play together. He has been a bachelor all his life. When my husband died we were both alone and after due consideration we thought it best for each of us to take a mate."

SOOTHING A HORSE.

The Animal's Easy Introduction to a Steam Street Roller.

In one of the broad uptown thoroughfares a few days ago a mounted patrolman encountered a steam roller in action, and the horse was terribly frightened. It reared and balked and then made angles across the street, first one way and then the other, until the policeman jumped off and tried coaxing. Leading his mount step by step in the direction of the roller, which had come to a standstill, he petted the animal and talked to it, urging it forward.

"A fine horse like you to be afraid of a steam roller," said the policeman. The horse pricked up its ears and ventured ahead another step or two.

"Come, now; come along. You can't be a policeman and be afraid of a bit of iron. Now come on, good boy." The horse made a few more steps forward.

"Come on," continued the policeman. "Now, then, be good. The department can't afford to be giving $300 apiece for horses that haven't any nerve. Come on, now."

Coaxing it along in this way with infinite patience, the officer after several minutes got the animal up to the roller. The horse daintily put forward one foot and tapped the front of the iron wheel, waiting a moment and, finding that the machine did not kick or run, reared contemptuously and tapped the object with both feet, then wheeled and walked quietly away. The policeman remounted, and it is safe to say that horse will never bother about a steam roller again.—New York Post.

HISTORY OF SHOES.

In No Article of Attire Have More Vagaries Been Shown.

Shoes or their equivalent are of a certainty even more ancient than gloves, for they were a necessity of locomotion, while the other was but a luxury. Sometimes they were made of skins, sometimes of papyrus, as in Egypt. Often they were gilded and decked with jewels, and the most expert artists of the day were employed to decorate the foot coverings of wealthy patricians, consuls, emperors and their favorites. In no article of attire have more vagaries been shown. Today a lady who desires to be considered a fashionista must wear shoes pointed as much as possible, but in the time of Queen Mary the taste was all the other way, and it was found necessary to issue a royal proclamation prohibiting shoes with toes wider than six inches. But perhaps the most extraordinary development in the way of footwear were the "chopines" introduced by the ladies of Venice to make themselves taller than they really were. The articles were really a kind of stilts made of wood and leather and sometimes reached the absurd height of twelve inches. Even a trained acrobat would have difficulty in walking on such things, and ordinary women had such trouble with them that when they attempted a promenade they required the assistance of a servant at each side and another behind to keep them from falling.—From Redfern's "Royal and Historic Shoes."

Thaddeus Stevens' Wit.

When Thaddeus Stevens had taken to his bed for the last time a visitor told him he was looking well. "Oh, John," was the quick reply, "it is not my appearance, but my disappearance, that troubles me." One day a member of the house of representatives who was noted for his uncertain course on all questions and who confessed that he never investigated a point under discussion without finding himself a neutral asked for leave of absence. "Mr. Speaker," said Stevens, "I do not rise to object, but to suggest that the honorable member need not ask this favor, for he can easily pair off with himself."
