

MRS. SQUIRES IS FINANCE EXPERT

To Shut Out Deserting Husband From Interest in Farm, Divorces Him.

EDWARD IS OUT IN COLD

WOMAN TESTIFIED IN COURT TODAY THAT EDDY FELL IN LOVE WITH HIS DAUGHTER-IN-LAW AND SKIDOOED.

Mrs. Sallie Squires wanted to renew her school fund mortgage. But Mrs. Squires had a husband. Now it would have been necessary for both to sign the deed. But Edward Squires has deserted his wife, and like other women she did not care for him to retain an interest in their farm. So what could Mrs. Squires do in such an emergency, but get a divorce. She did in circuit court this morning. Now she will obtain undivided claim to her property and Ed is out in the cold. But Squires had it coming to him.

She Wanted Farm. According to the evidence of Mrs. Squires she was married to the former Greensfork blacksmith in 1900. Some time afterward Squires' daughter-in-law came to visit. Squires became attracted by the young woman's vivacity and the wife says the two acted more like lovers than anything else. It ended when they skiddooed together. Later Squires came back and wanted his clothes, but his wife denied him. Squires overlooked his son's claims to the woman and the two have left this part of the country. They are living together. The son is alleged to have secured a divorce from the woman because of her affection for his father. Mrs. Squires did not care to secure a divorce in order to give Squires an opportunity to wed, but she did want to retain possession of the farm.

CAN'T REMEMBER ANY DETAILS OF GRISWOLD MURDER

he had the highest regard for the deceased, and that the taking of her life was farthest from his intentions, though he admitted it as probable that he had threatened her with harm. He declared that he fails to remember the exact circumstances leading up to the shooting, as few if any words were exchanged during his call at the library. Upon the matter of the actual shooting of his victim Rife states that his mind is a blank, he failing to realize what he was doing until Mrs. Griswold sank to the floor dead. He then turned his weapon upon himself, intending to suicide, but why he failed to mortally wound himself he cannot explain.

Rife frankly admitted his warm affection for Mrs. Griswold, and stated that he believed the regard was mutual, having been "close friends of the woman for the past three years. However, he stated that their relations were strained lately because of a slight misunderstanding but he refused absolutely to state the nature of the differences.

The murderer is perhaps more calm than any person in Eaton, notwithstanding the fact that his life is in jeopardy because of his act. His first night in jail was passed in apparent sound sleep and his appetite is not affected. Whether or not he realizes the seriousness of his crime cannot be said, and while many professional men and others have talked to Rife and watched him closely for evidences of insanity, yet all agree that he is of normal mind—being just one of those unfortunate individuals, who, temporarily crazed by a disappointment, has sought the destruction of the object of his affections.

A Hearing Today. Rife will be given a preliminary hearing before Police Magistrate Jonathan Foster this afternoon and will doubtless be remanded to jail without bond to await the action of the grand jury, which has been ordered to convene July 17.

Rife has always borne a good reputation, so far as can be learned. He was of a quiet and retiring disposition, and scarcely ever had much to say, yet since his misfortune of several months ago, when in the line of his work he came in contact with a high voltage electric wire and sustained severe burns, he has been apparently melancholy and seemed to be brooding over some disappointment.

While much sympathy is expressed for the unfortunate woman and her bereft relatives, and even for the murderer, yet the general consensus of opinion is to the effect that Preble county will furnish her first contribution to the electric chair, and the second one to meet capital punishment. The present sensation furnishes the fourth murder case in Preble county within five months. The others who have met violent deaths were Marshall Jack Weatherby, of Camden, Editor S. P. Kellum, of College Corner and John Mann of Eaton.

A BAD REPUTATION.

Rife Formerly Lived Here With a Woman.

During his residence in Richmond Harry Rife, the Eaton murderer, did not attain an enviable reputation. He and a common law wife resided together in West Richmond. The woman became ill, but she had kept secret from her parents who resided in the west,

Grace La Rue, In "Wee Wee" Gown, Gets Spouse in Row

New York, July 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Byron D. Chandler of Boston and Broadway, Mr. Chandler being somewhat better known as the original "Millionaire Kid," and Mrs. Chandler as Grace La Rue, actress, arrived in New York today on the Mauretania, having brought a lively honeymoon, spent in London and Paris, to a rather sensational close on the big ship.

One of the sensational features is Mrs. Chandler's new frock—the nuthin' nuthin' gown—which is made of absolutely transparent material, and which made her, as she admits, "the cynosure of all eyes" Grand Prix day at Longchamps, a place where sartorial cynosures are as thick as flies on a molasses barrel.

The other sensation was a fuss in the palmroom of the Mauretania, when Mr. Chandler, who might be described as a half portion millionaire, on account of his lack of height, walked right up to the Duke of Sutherland, the Vicomte de Souaille and several other big men and told them he would knock their collective blocks off if they did not stop singing songs about his bride.

The Duke, who is here for a week's visit; the Vicomte, George B. Mackay of Los Angeles and John R. Towler of St. Louis comprised a quartet on the voyage who were wont to indulge in close harmony and barber shop minors at varying hours of the day and night.

They were thus indulging in the palmroom Wednesday night and Mr. and Mrs. Chandler were seated near by having coffee.

Mr. Chandler says they were singing "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" and "If You Ain't Got the Money You Needn't Come Round," which he took as a melodious but offensive reference to him and his bride, whose love affair had been widely discussed in the newspapers.

"I walked over to them," said Mr. Chandler, "and said, 'You must stop singing those songs about my wife.' Mr. Towler says, 'I will make use of it. I said I would, if I had to mash every one of their faces in. So they stopped, and that was all there was to it. There wasn't a blow passed. The Duke? Oh, he did not say anything, but his monocle dropped out of his eye and fell in his glass. The passengers were all with me, and congratulated me afterward."

Mr. Mackay says that when Mr. Chandler drew up his five feet three, or whatever it is, and threatened to punch them all he told him to run.

you can't exactly see too far through it." Mrs. Chandler is going to wear the gown when she appears in vaudeville in the American theater's roof garden, and the press agent sent a wireless message asking that she wear the gown on the ship when it arrived, so the newspaper boys could see it and write pieces about it. But the lady balked.

"Why, I wouldn't have worn that for anything," she said. "If I had worn that dress the customs officers would never have got through going over the luggage. Besides, it is an evening gown and mighty cold, and anyway, it's in one of my trunks in the hold."

The Chandlers figure that their honeymoon ends, because Mrs. Chandler is going to work right away. She does not have to, of course, but she loves her art, and all the rest of it. Mr. Chandler has performed in the Broadway calumny and also the London and Paris calumny ever since his father, George Byron Chandler, president of a New Hampshire bank, died and left him several millions. The young man drives an automobile with the same precision that the "Flying Dutchman" steers a course, and he won renown this spring in London when he started his motor coach, the Redskin, from London to Brighton, in opposition to Alfred Vanderbilt.

He is 27 years old and holds the record on Broadway as a spender. He married Miss Estelle Stecher when he was 23, and at the age of 19 was defendant in a breach of promise suit brought by Joan Sawyer of Raymond Hitchcock's "Merry-Go-Round" company.

One of the members of the profession when asked whether the common house fly female lays eggs and these hatch out and after different processes of development become flies, said he believed such was the case. Another equally prominent physician said that the house fly in his opinion was a hybrid and unable to breed. He claims that the species known as the "blow" fly are responsible for the house fly.

Hunters declare there is evidence from the lack of young squirrels that there have been violations of the game laws in this county. The most of the hunters say nearly all the squirrels now being shot are old ones. Under ordinary conditions the young squirrels are the first to be found. They are less wary than the older ones and frisk about in the open. It is declared that the absence of young squirrels is proof that the laws have been violated.

Chicago Given a Solar Plexus Blow

Chicago, July 10.—Chicago's population is now only 2,572,834. The optimistic estimate of the bureau of statistics for July 1, gave the city a population of 2,572,833, but since that time Rudolph P. Hansen has moved to South Bend.

News of the city's loss became public when Mr. Hansen sent a letter to the census bureau, city of Chicago,

III. It was formally received by Geo. Bryant, who represents the government census bureau in the office of Comptroller Walter H. Wilson. Hansen's letter follows:

"Gentlemen—You have my name for the new city directory. Please cancel it, as I am now a permanent resident of South Bend. Respectfully, "RUDOLPH P. HANSEN."

It is said by the authorities that she steals, and because she may be addicted to the habit of taking things that do not belong to her, pretty little thirteen year old Lucile Rhodus this afternoon was ordered sent to the girls' reform school. The child's home was to Hagerstown, but she has been cared for recently at the Home for Friendless Women. Her father is James Rhodus and he lives at Hagerstown. Her mother is in Kentucky.

What produces the common house fly? Is the common house fly a hybrid, or is it able to breed and beget? Members of the medical profession who are interested in the fly campaign which has been inaugurated by the physical committee of the Y. M. C. A. are unable to explain which is the case, only that they know the fly is dangerous and responsible for the prevalence of typhoid fever epidemics and digestive disorders in the summer time.

One of the members of the profession when asked whether the common house fly female lays eggs and these hatch out and after different processes of development become flies, said he believed such was the case. Another equally prominent physician said that the house fly in his opinion was a hybrid and unable to breed. He claims that the species known as the "blow" fly are responsible for the house fly.

ASSOCIATION TO MAKE A CANVASS

Citizens Will Be Asked to Contribute to a Worthy Charity.

EXPECT TO RAISE BIG FUND

CHURCHES AND FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS WILL ALSO BE ASKED TO ASSIST IN THE GOOD WORK.

After careful consideration of the ways and means of raising money to carry on the work of the Associated Charities for the ensuing year, the special committee at its conference yesterday afternoon drew up a recommendation advising personal solicitation as the best way of securing the largest amount. Other recommendations were also drawn up, one of the most important being to institute a campaign of education relative to the association.

The recommendations will be considered at a general meeting of the Associated Charities next Tuesday afternoon. It is optional with the organization whether the recommendations be adopted.

Church Plan Failed. The committee felt that as the plan of apportioning the amount needed by the association to the different churches had been a failure, it would be unwise to follow such a plan again. However, if any church, as an organization, desires to contribute to the association the funds will be gladly accepted. The same is true in respect to the fraternal organizations.

There are many false notions existing as to the operations of the Associated Charities. These merely exist because people are not familiar with the organization. In order to correct all misrepresentations, the committee will recommend that circulars be printed and distributed all over the city.
