TRYING TO PROTECT GUILTY

TWO CHINESE KILLED AFTER EL-SIE SIGEL CRIME SAID TO HAVE MET DEATH FOR TALKING TO THE POLICE.

New York, July 10.—That the Chinese high treason society, a member of members of which it is now generally believed killed Elsie Sigel, the pretty Chinatown missionary, and the Americanized Chinaman, Leon Ling, is prepared to go to any length to protect those guilty of the crimes is proved by the fact that it has virtually compelled the girl's father to go into hiding.

Mr. Sigel, it is reported today, was compelled to go into hiding because he was threatened with the same fate that overtook his pretty daughter. Naturally Mr. Sigel was anxious to see the slayers of his daughter brought to justice and was active in searching for them.

Deaths Mysterious.

It was just at this time that Yung Gow was found murdered in his Stanton street laundry and a day or so later Lee Ling Sam's body was found in his restaurant in Brooklyn. Their fate was drawn to the attention of Mr. Sigel, with a gentle intimation that he might be the next to go. Then it was, acting on the advice of the police, it is said, that he changed his residence, keeping his new place of abode a secret from all except Police Captain Carey.

HOMEMADE ICE CREAM.

Freeze it at Least a Day Before It Is to Be Used.

"The best ice cream is stale ice cream," said the ice cream manufacturer. "You never hear of colic from ice cream among children who have never met the homemade article. It is a queer thing that it would ruin a manufacturer to sell fresh goods, whereas if you know it is homemade and just out of the freezer you will praise it to the skies as being the superior of anything manufactured anywhere."

"If you want your homemade cream to be really good and healthy make it at least a day before you use it. Churn it hard, but not too hard, and then pack it away in salted ice until you are ready to serve it. In this way all the little particles of ice which make homemade cream so gritty and really harmful will have disappeared. The cream will sort of absorb the water that forms the ice, so to speak; consequently your cream will be frozen, not trapped. It is a daring manufacturer who risks his trade by shipping cream less than a week old. Sometimes I store my goods in ice as much as two weeks. That isn't a bit too long, either, although it takes a heap of ice."—New York Press.

THE MUSTACHE.

Ridiculed in England When It First Came into Fashion.

The custom of wearing mustaches did not prevail in France until the reign of Louis Philippe, when it became obligatory in the whole French army. In England the mustache was worn by hussars after the peace of 1815, and it was not until the close of the Crimean war that English civilians as well as English soldiers in general wore hair on the lip.

Shortly after the mustache came in to favor among gentlemen Horace Mayhew was passing through an English country town and was immediately noted and followed by a small army of children, who pointed to his lip and called out derisively:

"He's got whiskers under his snout! He's got whiskers under his snout!"

For a long time the mustache was the subject of raillery, even after it was becoming common, and the famous caricaturist Leech printed in Punch a picture of two old fashioned women who, when they were spoken to by bearded railway guards, fell on their knees and cried out:

"Take all that we have, gentlemen, but spare our lives!"—Westminster Gazette.

The Intelligent Censor.

Some years ago a young man of St. Petersburg, Ivan Fedowaki, quarreled with his sweetheart and then took his grief out of the country. About a year after he wrote to the girl asking her to "make up" and telling her if she forgave him to insert a "personal" to that effect in a St. Petersburg paper not later than a certain date. The girl was repentant, too, and she promptly got the "personal" ready, and all would have been well had it not been for the lynx eyed censor, who believed it to be some sort of nihilist message and refused to allow its publication. After awhile, however, the stern official was convinced that the "personal" was harmless, and it was printed four days late. It was a little while after when the girl received word that her lover, having failed to see the message in print on the day he had set, had shot himself two days before it saw the light.

HE GIVES WARNING

Bishop Moore, a Missionary,
Says Girls Should Not Trust Chinks.

KNOWS THEIR CHARACTER

Steuvenville, O., July 10.—"Know the Chinese character as I do, in the face of the awful murder of Elsie Sigel in New York, I would not allow a daughter of mine nor any woman either young or old to teach in Chinese missions in the United States. Men should do this work."

So spoke Bishop D. R. Moore, who spent years in China for the Methodist Episcopal church in an address before the Epworth league convention last night.

Continuing he said: "Let the work be undone forever rather than let women attempt it. God will not allow the cry for male workers among the Mongolians to go unanswered."

Kept his best dry.

Extraordinary conduct on the part of two men upon seeing the body of a woman in the water was disclosed at an inquest held at the Victory Inn, on the Hogs Back, Surrey. A farm laborer named Sidney Smith, missed his mother one morning and on searching found her lying face upward in a roadside pond. He ran off, and another laborer named Matthews, who passed the pond, also ran away, neither making any effort to pull her out. Matthews told the coroner he did not do so, as he did not know if he would be doing right.

The coroner—the poor creature might have been dead at that time. You could easily have got her out, I suppose?

"I should have had to go up to my knees in the water."—London Mail.

Golden Horseshoes.

Roman writers inform us that Commodus caused the hoofs of his horse to be gilded. Nero when he undertook short journeys was always drawn by mules that had silver shoes, and those of his wife, Poppaea, had shoes of gold. From a passage in "Dio Cassius" there is reason to think that the upper part only was formed of those noble metals or that they were perhaps plated out of thin slips. When Boniface, marquis of Tuscany, one of the richest princes of his time, went to Beatrix, about the year 1038, his whole train was so massively encased in gold that his horses were shod with silver. The nails were even of the same metal.

His Selection.

Mr. Brown and his family were standing in front of the lions' cage.

"John," said Mrs. Brown, "if those animals were to escape whom would you save first, me or the children?"

"Me," answered John without hesitation.—Everybody's Magazine.

HE LIKES RICHMOND

Milton, Ind., July 10.—John Brown brought home a Scotch collie dog from his uncle's, Charles White, of Richmond, a few days ago. The dog was kept up a short time and then left to go his sweet way. One morning he came up missing. Inquiries were made but the dog could not be found. Finally Mr. Brown telephoned Charles White, at Richmond and found that the dog had traveled back to Richmond and was at Mr. White's.

How It Helped.

"Are you still helping that poor family?"

"I'm trying to help them. I gave the mother some money the other day so that she would feel independent of her drunken husband."

"Well?"

"Well, she had her husband arrested for beating her and then paid his fine with the money I gave her."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chicago Man's Loathing For Snakes Drives Him to Ireland

New York, July 10.—So great is his loathing for snakes that Richard Bailey of Chicago finds it necessary to leave his native land and live in a country that is free from reptiles. Of course it was easy to choose that favored land. There is only one. St. Patrick attended to that. Bailey is thrown into a convulsion every time he sees a snake. Recently he married and he wishes to get himself out of a country wherein that terrible prenat influence may be felt. With his bride Mr. Bailey arrived in New York today and went to the Hotel Wolcott.

"I am leaving the United States for good," he said. "I have no other alternative. Though since childhood I have tried in every way to rid myself of the fear of snakes, I have found it impossible. It came into the world with me. Large cities give no certain relief. In the street I have to keep a sharp lookout for bird stores and other places where reptiles may be on exhibition. I don't have to see them. I feel their presence. I can't tell you how but I know the reptile is near me and I become terribly ill."

Recently in Chicago I went into a drug store. A case of rattlers was on view there. I saw one through the glass. When I recovered my senses I was in a hospital. I was violently ill for three weeks following and have not recovered my nerve yet. The doctors tell me that a prolonged stay in Ireland, the only country in the world free from snakes will cure me. Well, it may lessen my nervousness, and in a way give me confidence in myself, but I will never get rid of the fear.

"One advantage I will have in Ireland is that I may go into the country and see the green fields. I have never been able to tramp on grass. I have hopped, skipped and jumped over it, but now I can loiter in it and tramp over a country without being thrown into convulsions by seeing something wiggling."

"I am glad my husband is going to Ireland to live, for I was born there," said Mrs. Bailey. "But," with a sigh, "I never expected I would return simply because my husband had a horror of snakes."

KING'S HERALDS HELD A MEETING

Entertainment Given by Milton Women.

Milton, Ind., July 10.—An open air meeting for the King's Heralds, and Little Light Bearers was given by the Woman's Foreign Missionary society, of Milton M. E. church, with Mrs. Mary Walker and daughter, Miss Carrie Walker, yesterday afternoon. The following program was observed: Song by the King's Heralds; invocation, the Rev. C. H. Pinnick; recitation of the twenty-third psalm, in concert; reading, "Organization and Work of the King's Heralds," Miss Luella Lantz; solo, Florence Daniels; recitation, Vivian Bennett; solo, Lillian DuGranrut; recitation, Ruth Leverton; recitation, Dwight North; song by the King's Heralds and Little Light Bearers.

Refreshments were served and there were games for the children as a closing of a happy afternoon.

"This expression of yours, Miss De Muir," said the teacher of the class in rhetoric, who had been examining her essay, "is exceedingly faulty. You say, 'It made the very air sick.' How can you think of the atmosphere being 'sick'?"
