

A STUDENT HOST IS NOW EMPLOYED

A Large Number of Harvard Men Have Secured Summer Employment.

ALL PROVE GOOD WORKERS

PLENTY OF OCCUPATIONS ARE FOUND BY THE ENERGETIC ONES RANGING FROM TENDING A BAR TO PREACHING.

Boston, June 24.—That any student with energy, strength and ability is pretty sure to find some kind of work for the summer vacation is shown by the information in regard to the number of students who worked during the summer vacation of 1908, gathered last fall by the appointments office of Harvard university.

This employment bureau is conducted under the direction of E. H. Wells, secretary for appointments, and here any member of the university may find employment for the summer months. In answer to the inquiries sent out last autumn among students in all departments of the university 2,403 replies were received.

Of the students who found work through the office for the summer of 1908—summer being considered three months—1,042 were employed in a variety of occupations and received pay for their services; 242 worked without pay—for the most part in positions where experience might be gained for a professional career after graduation—107 studied and 1,072 were unemployed. The estimated amount of the salaries received was $177,161.12, or an average of $170.02 per man.

Preacher to Bartender.

The list of occupations include nearly 100 different forms of employment, ranging from preaching to tending bar. According to the statistics eight students were engaged in advertising; sixteen were connected with automobiles, thirty worked in banks, nine had to do with boats, two of whom served as boatmen and life guard at a seaside resort, one assistant purser, another as cook, and still another as foremast hand; fifty-one were in camps, many as tutors or companions to boys; thirty-six were canvassers, including one who worked in the service of the government as census taker; eight were carpenters, including makers of picture puzzles.

In addition, fifty-six were clerks or office boys, thirteen draughtsmen, fifteen engineers or surveyors, twenty worked at a variety of occupations in factories, thirty-five were farm hands, forty-three were in hotels, representing eleven different kinds of hotel work, from manager to bellboy, while some served as musicians; twenty-four worked on newspapers as editor, director of a paper route, reporter, "trouble chaser," etc.; six were on railroads, both steam and electric, and eighty-two acted as tutors.

The Scope is Wide.

The scope of the appointment office is wide, and this year the men engaged through this office will be scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific. One will be employed on the Panama canal, while another will attend the exposition at Seattle as tutor to a boy in a preparatory school.

Although founded for the purpose of affording summer employment for students of the university, the office is by no means a charitable institution. It is run on strictly business principles. All applicants for positions are carefully examined as to their fitness and when there are several applicants for one position, the ability and fitness of the candidates decides the allotment.

COMMISSION DOES NOT GIVE FACTS

Railroad Board Declines to Give Results of Traction Wreck Probe.

SILENCE IS NECESSARY

UNDER THE LAW COMMISSION MUST SUPPRESS FACTS UNLESS THE OFFENSE IS REPEATED—PROBE THOROUGH.

Indianapolis, July 24.—The Indiana Railroad commission will not make public its finding in the matter of the recent wreck on the Chicago, Lake Shore and South Bend electric road at Chesterton, in which ten passengers and one motorman lost their lives. The commission has found that the law does not permit it to give out the results of its investigation.

The law says that the commission shall make a thorough investigation of the causes of wrecks and accidents, and that when it has finished it shall notify the company what it has found. It shall then make recommendations to the company of means to avoid similar accidents in the future and it is the duty of the railroad company to adopt the recommendations made by the commission.

Must Obey Orders.

Up to that time the law does not permit the commission to make public its findings. But if the company fails or refuses to adopt such measures as the commission shall recommend to prevent similar accidents in the future then the law authorizes the commission to give to the press all of its findings in order that the public may know just who is to blame.

In the Chesterton case it is understood that the commission found a startling condition of affairs, although no member of the commission is saying anything about it. In spite of the secrecy maintained by the commission in compliance with the law, however, it is known that that body found that the wreck could have been averted in a dozen different ways, though just what the ways are cannot be learned. It is known, too, that the commission has given the railroad company some very pointed advice in regard to how to prevent a recurrence of the wreck and that the officials of the company have promised to do all of the things recommended by the commission.

Up to that time the law does not permit the commission to make public its findings. But if the company fails or refuses to adopt such measures as the commission shall recommend to prevent similar accidents in the future

This much, at least, will be interesting news to the people of that part of the state.

Were Thorough.

Never before has the commission made as thorough and complete an investigation of an accident on a railroad in this state as it has made in the case of this Chesterton wreck. Inspectors were sent to the scene of the wreck to make an examination of conditions at that place. They also inspected the cars that came together and examined persons who were present at the time of the wreck. The inspectors even examined the clothing of the dead motorman and of some of the dead passengers.

Not only that, but after everything else had been done the commission called several of the highest officers of the railroad company from Cleveland, Ohio, to the commission's office a few days ago and asked them to explain away certain things in connection with the operation of the road. Just what the members of the commission said to them is not known, but it is said that they read the riot act to them and gave them to understand that measures should be taken to prevent any more accidents of that kind.

Unless the company complies with all of the suggestions and recommendations made by the commission, the facts in the case as ascertained by the commission during the investigation will be given to the public.

He—I would kiss you if we were not in a canoe.
She—Sir! I wish to be taken ashore instantly.—Judge.

New York, July 24.—"Only the dregs of womankind vote in Colorado; the mothers have to be practically clubbed to the polls."

Such was the opinion expressed today by the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Buchtel, former governor of Colorado, one of the four states in which women have the right to vote. Dr. Buchtel came here to preach yesterday in Calvary Methodist Episcopal church.

Besides being one of the most prominent clergymen in the Methodist Episcopal church, Dr. Buchtel is chancellor of Denver university, a great institution, in which there are 1,000 students of both sexes.

Dr. Buchtel did not give his views on woman suffrage without showing great reluctance.

"It is a hateful subject for me," he said, "for once I make any statement regarding it all the long haired men and short haired women will be up in arms to argue about it. I dislike to incur any unnecessary outbursts, but New York is taking woman suffrage far more seriously now than Colorado where the women have full rights."

"Chivalry was the motive that prompted equal franchises in Colorado and the women legislators have been suffered to put forth their claims out of deference to their sex. There have been few who did not demand the most absurd and unreasonable laws. The only trouble about the women legislators is that they will not listen to argument—no woman will. Logic does not appeal to them."
