ALL ABOARD FOR HAGERS-TOWN

We are particularly glad to see the Young Men's Business Club send a delegation up to the Hagerstown fair. It has been our continued policy to help along the spirit of co-operation and good feeling and we believe that this sort of thing is at the bottom of the prosperity which is certainly touching the community.

It is in getting acquainted and getting together that things are accomplished. Richmond has no reason to be jealous of the good things of the rest of the county nor as far as that is concerned the whole Sixth District. We ought to be willing to help along anything which makes for the community's prosperity.

And the Wayne County Fair at Hagerstown is a good thing.

ROOSEVELT AND THE NEW YORK MAYORALTY

Where the white lights play up and down Broadway; where the human roulette wheel runs at Coney Island; where Gerty Hoffmann nightly dances on the roof garden—there is great excitement.

Col. Roosevelt, so comes the rumor from the whispering palm trees, is about to return from his jungle jaunt and become a candidate for the mayorship of New York city. Of course the rumor is denied. Of course there is nothing in it. But—

O, Tammany—that is a proposition which would cause you grief and make you as much of a bummer as the ancient rag time that bears your name. There is only one man in all the world who could put the lid on New York, and sitting there enthroned with the diamond star of the police force, regulate the speed limit with his Big Stick as a baton.

He is the celebrated Swans Tumba—The Lordly Master of the Jungle. Then in truth would they get busy and take up a subscription for an Arctic expedition to be headed by Roosevelt. It is probable that a ship would be forthcoming with enough provisions for a hundred years' cruise rather than to have Theodore the First in such close proximity to the sanctum of the Golden Calf.

Therefore we do not take much stock in the rumor.

TAFT AND THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

Not long ago Collier's Weekly called attention to the Wall Street Journal as being one of the most fearless and fair papers in the country. The Journal has been conspicuous both for protesting against the indiscriminate criticism, often unfair, of financial operations and at the same time when there has been cause has pitilessly exposed shady dealings in the financial world. The fact that the majority of the subscribers to this paper are men who have large holdings, makes this all the more remarkable.

The obvious honesty of its editorial policy led Collier's to say:

"Finally, the intrinsic truth of the 'Journal's' words is important. We trust the character of their source will carry conviction where a more radical publication's utterances might be read with some reservation."

Therefore the view that the Wall Street Journal takes on the tariff and Taft is particularly worth while. The paper probably has better sources of inside information than most of the other New York papers and that is saying much.

"Up to the time when President Taft took the matter in hand the tariff was not even a local issue. The term was too dignified: the unprincipled huckstering in the lower and upper houses of congress had made the issue positively parochial. At least we have risen from that world level and are even reaching a point where we have the courage to deny the right of one favored section of the country to dictate to all the rest. It seems probable that the president will obtain a bill which he can sign without honor, and he has expressed his ideas of the basis for such a bill in a straightforward and manly way."

Items Gathered in From Far and Near

Polish Congress for Washington.

A movement has started to hold a Polish congress in Washington in May, 1910. The proposition originates with the Polish National Alliance in the United States, said to be the largest Polish organization of the world. Its chief officer, called the censor, is A. Schreiber of Buffalo, N. Y. A committee of 32 is working on the program. It was this alliance that presented to Washington the statue of Kosciusko which is to be unveiled in Lafayette square. The congress will be divided into sections—political, educational, industrial, scientific and on immigration. Poles of different political associations will endeavor to reach a common line of future activity. It is expected that the resolutions will be of far-reaching influence, and that they will command the institutions of the United States and the activity of Poles who have found citizenship here in advocacy of the liberty of their native land which they have learned to enjoy on this side of the Atlantic. It is urged that such encouragement is needed for the preservation of Polish individuality against what are alleged to be the disintegrating influences of Russia, Germany and Austria.—Washington Herald.

Ship Made Without Iron.

Sinbad, the sailor, it will be remembered while pursuing one of his eventful voyages, met with shipwreck, owing to the circumstance that his vessel approached too near a certain mountain of dolomite, much dreaded by marines, which, exerting an irresistible magnetic power, pulled every nail and bolt out of the ship, causing her to fall to pieces.

Against the possibility of a misadventure of this kind, while sailing the seas, one modern ship, at all events, may be said to be adequately insured.

She has been built, and is now being outfitted in Brooklyn by the Carnegie institution—a brigantine-rigged yacht, measuring 155 feet, 6 inches in length over all, with a beam of 33 feet, and a mean draft of 12 feet, 7 inches. With all her stores and equipment on board, she will have a displacement of 568 tons.

The Carnegie, as she has been named, is a beautiful little vessel, and is provided with every luxury that can ordinarily be found on a millionaire's yacht. But the really remarkable point about her is that she has been constructed in all her parts almost without the use of iron or steel. Even the planks and beams are held together with wooden trenails and bolts and spikes of copper and bronze and brass and the very propeller is of manganese bronze.—From "Ships Made Without Iron" in Technical World Magazine.

CAMBRIDGE OBJECTS

Will Not Stand for Dirt Fill Being Placed Through The Town.

STEEL VIADUCT WANTED

Attorney John Dodson of Cambridge City, was in the city today and while here stated the Pennsylvania railroad may expect strenuous objection to its proposed improvement through Cambridge. Dodson said the Cambridge residents know the value of a railroad, but believe the elevation of the tracks can be done just as well on a neat steel viaduct as upon a dirt fill. To make a fill would be the same as to construct a wall through the town, cutting off the north and sections with but few passageways beneath. If the viaduct be built, it would be a far more desirable structure.

DANCE AT BEALLVIEW.

A social dance will be given at Beallview park Thursday evening. Renk's Orchestra will furnish the music. Members of this orchestra and friends had a stag picnic at the home of Elmer Weisbrod, South Fourteenth street, last evening.

CHILDREN'S GAMES.

There are many children's games that have gone out of date. For instance the game of Button, who has the button? The only way we can account for this is that there are no stray buttons around the house as mother don't have to rub them off since she commenced using rub-a-lac. Use it and save your back and buttons.

SLACK AND SHIVELY BURIED THE HATCHET

There is a Suspicion Among Politicians That the Former is Trimming Sails for Job in Senate.

Indianapolis, July 28.—A choice bit of political gossip has been started in democratic circles by the visit to Washington of Judge Joseph Shee, of Seymour and L. Ert Slack, of Franklin, at the same time. This information of itself might not cause any excitement were it not for the fact that Judge Shee went east a few weeks ago with Crawford Fairbanks, the Terre Haute brewer.

Judge Shee and Fairbanks went east together in Fairbank's automobile. They went direct to New York and it is only in the last few days that Shee has gone to Washington. When they got to New York, Senator Shively went up from Washington to meet Judge Shee and together Shee and Shively went to Manhattan Beach for a week. Whether Fairbanks was with them there has not yet become known here. A few days ago Shee and Shively went on to Washington, and about the same time Slack met them there—at least he arrived in Washington about the same time.

Dixon Was Host. The dispatches from Washington tell about a meeting that was held in the rooms of Congressman Lincoln Dixon, of the Fourth Indiana district, Monday night, which was attended by all of the eleven democratic congressmen from Indiana, at which campaign plans for next year in Indiana were talked over. Shee was there and so was Slack, and Senator Shively also attended.

Some of the fellows who keep a close eye on politics say that it is peculiar that Slack and Shee should both arrive in Washington at the same time—just in time to attend the democratic caucus of Indiana congressmen. The name of Fairbanks does not figure in the dispatches, so if he is in Washington with them he is in the background. It is said, however, that he has not yet returned home from the east.

A Little History. It will be remembered that Slack was a candidate for United States senator, last winter, against Shively. Slack was regarded as the one candidate in the race who was running in opposition to the brewery interests, and the one man whom the breweries especially wished to beat.

It will be remembered also that Judge Shee was the campaign manager for Shively during that race and that he did a mighty good job of it, too, for he landed his man in the senatorial chair, defeating not only Slack, but John W. Kern, of this city; Edward G. Hoffman, of Fort Wayne; John E. Lamb, of Terre Haute, and G. V. Menzies of Mt. Vernon, as well.

When the time came to hold the democratic legislative caucus to nominate a man for the senate, Slack did not show up with the strength that he had expected or that people gave him credit with having at his back. He was not able to muster more than about 15 votes at his highest tide, and eventually most of these got away from him and went to Shively. For a time it was understood that the Slack vote would go to Kern, and had it done so Kern would have been nominated. While it was never given out definitely that such was the case, it was the general belief that some kind of an understanding was reached between the Kern forces and the Slack forces by which they were to combine to prevent the nomination of Shively, who was backed by the brewery interests.

You L. Ert!

The is a suspicion among the politicians that Slack is trimming his sails for the nomination for United States senator in 1912 in case the democrats carry the legislature. It is also suspected that he will not have the same kind of opposition from the breweries next time that he had the last time, and fresh fuel is added to the fire of this belief by the fact that he and Judge Shee were in Washington at the same time and that both attended the conference of Indiana democratic congressmen. This is the reason why their appearance in Washington at this time is attracting the attention of the politicians.

John W. Kern has never said whether he will or will not be a candidate for United States senator next year. It is said, however, that he believes a plan is being framed up to keep the nomination away from him in case he decides to become a candidate, and that this meeting of Shee and Slack in Washington is regarded as proof of this.

The word from Washington is that all of the democratic members of congress from Indiana will be candidates again next year and that more hard work is to be done in this state than in any other in the union in the effort to hold the eleven districts which the democrats now have. In doing this the organization will also try to elect a majority of the legislature in order to make sure of another senator, and

PROBABLE REUNION OF MIAMI INDIANS

Indiana Tribe May Assemble At Wabash.

Of general historical interest will be the proposed tri-county reunion of the descendants of Miami Indians. An attempt is being made to bring all of these descendants together in either Wabash, Grant or Miami county. The historical societies are expected to be interested in the affair and lend their support. A correct history of the tribe, which is distinctly an Indiana organization, could be obtained. But few middle west states have any such tribes of aborigines and although nearly all of the Miamis have abandoned the early customs of their race they are nevertheless pure blooded Indians.

Jews Are Making Plans To Establish African Nations

London, July 28.—A new country is about to be born into the world, and the world so far recks little or nothing of it.

It is to be called Cyrenacia and is situated in Northern Africa, between Egypt and Tripoli.

Here the Jews are to establish their long-talked-of kingdom. From Roumania, from Russia and even out of England, they are preparing to move.

The preliminary negotiations have been kept secret for fear of international complications, but it is now known that the powerful Ito society (the object of the autonomous basis for those Jews who can not remain in the lands where they at present live) sent an expedition there quite recently, and though their report is not exactly favorable, it is, on the other hand not so unfavorable as to deter the bolder Jewish spirits from attempting an organized scheme of colonization.
