

GARDNER PEEVED WHEN HIS RIVAL HOVED IN SIGHT

Congressman Put Out Because John Hayes Hammond, Who Wants His Job, Strolled With President.

RELATIONS OBSERVED WITH MUCH SUSPICION

Friends of Gussie Gardner Think That It Should Be Him Resting Lovingly on Arm of Executive.

(American News Service)

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 10.—Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, representative at Washington from this district is quite angry. The sad part of it is that he can not say anything. He rode over to the Myopia club, not because he heard the president was there but because he approved of the place. He was sitting upon the club house veranda when he saw something which made him jump and speak under his breath.

What he saw was the rear view of two men. One was a very large person, about six feet tall and four feet wide, with a mountainous back adorned with a pink striped shirt and gray flannel trousers belted where the waist line ought to have been. The other was a very thin man about one fourth as wide and two feet lower than the other, whose hand was tucked confidentially into the great arm of the other. Congressman Gardner was annoyed because he recognized them. They were William Howard Taft, president of the United States, and John Hayes Hammond, who is said to be a candidate for Gardner's job.

Unknown Quantity.

John Hayes Hammond is an unknown quantity in Massachusetts politics and Massachusetts politicians observe with suspicion his friendly relations with the president.

It was particularly annoying because lots of people around here think it ought to be Gussie Gardner who should be strolling arm in arm with President Taft.

However, there was not much political significance in the golf links appearance of Hammond and the president. It was revenge that they were out for.

The day before they ran up against Gen. Adelbert Ames and W. J. Boardman of the Essex club, and the Hammond-Taft golf team was roundly thrashed. The president demanded a return match and told Hammond that he needed practice if he expected to play with him. A lot of people around here are unkind enough to say that Hammond lost the match on purpose so he could fit in for the return game and whatever practice there might be in it. They are all Gardner sympathizers.

He Gets Hair Cut.

Charley Taft got his hair cut yesterday. He saw his pictures in a newspaper with long and tousled hair and decided that he needed sprucing up. Instead of going to a barber shop, however, he went out to the Sylph and received a sailor's hair cut. This consists of placing an inverted bowl upon the head of the victim and cutting off all the hair that protrudes beyond its edges. When the sea barber got through with Charley his own mother didn't know him.

GETS HER DIVORCE

Mrs. Bessie Lotz of Muncie Winner by the Court's Ruling.

AN INCIDENT RECALLED

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 10.—Judge Lefler granted a divorce, certain extensive property rights and custody of the child, a daughter, to Bessie, wife of Walter J. Lotz. There was considerable sparring for points, the wife being eager to secure the decree on a cross-complaint. This the husband attempted to defeat by filing the suit after Court hours Saturday night.

But the wife quickly filed her cross-complaint which won out today, granting her about everything she asked. Walter Lotz is a lawyer, the only son of the late Judge Orlando J. Lotz, former member of the Appellate Court of Indiana and Judge of the Delaware Circuit Court. The young man was Democratic candidate for Attorney-General of Indiana at the last election and is widely known in state politics. The divorce suits follow a sensational episode 10 days ago at the Braun House. Mrs. Lotz called at the hotel and asked to be shown to the room of Mrs. Mary Donovan, who was recently divorced. As Mrs. Lotz entered the room she introduced herself and then demanded a ring the woman was wearing, saying that it was one which she had presented to her husband several years ago. Following this, cries of murder soon came from the room, and as Mrs. Donovan made her escape from the room through the transom Mrs. Lotz tore most all her clothing from her.

Mrs. Lotz was arrested, but the case was dismissed "for want of a prosecuting witness."

SUTTON'S SISTER GIVES TESTIMONY

She Alleges That She Was Advised Not to View the Remains.

GAVE A STARTLING STORY

GUARD BOOK USED ON NIGHT OF TRAGEDY CANNOT BE FOUND—CORPORAL TARD MAKES STATEMENT TODAY.

(American News Service)

Annapolis, Aug. 10.—The most sensational testimony yet offered to show Lieutenant Sutton was given a terrible hearing before being shot to death, October 13, 1907, was presented today by Mrs. Rose Parker Sutton, sister of the dead officer. She swore that Col. Doyen advised her not to view the body when she came east to bury it, telling her the forehead was bandaged, the nose out of place, a big lump under the jaw and many other bruises. Mrs. Parker said one reason for her fighting to clear her brother's name of the suicide stain was because they were Catholics and as a suicide his body could not be buried in consecrated ground. It also developed today that the guard's log book containing records of patrols on the night Sutton met his death cannot be found. It is claimed that it has been misplaced.

TARD'S STATEMENT.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Sergeant Archie Tard, stationed at Charlestown, corporal of the guard on the night that Lieutenant Sutton was shot to death at Annapolis, and an eyewitness to the tragedy, will take the stand at the government inquiry now in session and tell the most sensational story yet introduced.

Tard said he was the first to reach Sutton and while his story differs from that of other witnesses as to the location of the wound he insists that Mrs. Sutton is right in her theory of foul play.

He Was On Duty.

"I was on duty at midnight," said Tard today, "and from where I was standing shortly after the hour struck I saw a figure about 250 feet away, about the length of the barracks. He was in his shirt sleeves and I didn't then know who he was. I saw Lieut. Adams and Osterman and recognized them. They were nearer me. The man in his shirt sleeves started running away and I heard a voice cry: 'Stop running; you are under arrest.' 'The man ran on and the same voice cried the warning again. The runner paid no attention and the next moment there was a flash and a revolver report. There were three or four more shots fired and the runner dropped. I ran and bent over him. It was Lieut. Sutton. I saw the hole in his forehead where there was a ragged entrance and a hole back of the left ear where the bullet came out clean. I was watching the man in his shirt sleeves all the time and am positive no shot came from his direction."

A RIDERLESS HORSE

Returns to Home of Novelist, Robert W. Chambers, Causing Alarm.

HIS WIFE FINALLY FOUND

(American News Service)

Amsterdam, N. Y., Aug. 10.—After posess had searched for hours following the galloping home of her horse, riderless, Mrs. Robert W. Chambers, wife of the novelist, was found today by the roadside a mile and a half east of the village of Broadalbin. Mrs. Chambers had been thrown from her horse and for a time was unconscious. When one of the searching parties, headed by her husband, reached her she had regained consciousness but was suffering from shock and almost in a state of collapse. She was carried home, where a physician attended her and said she was not seriously injured when thrown from the horse.

ENGINEERS HAVE NOW OVERCOME A STIFF OBSTACLE

Panhandle Engineers Will Eliminate Quick Sand by Freezing It, Then Cutting It Into Blocks.

A FREEZING MACHINE HAS BEEN SECURED

Thirty Years Ago the Company Failed to Reduce Jackson's Hill Grade Because of Difficult Problem.

By freezing the quick sand at the base of Jackson's Hill, on the Pennsylvania railroad, engineers claim that they have solved a problem which confronted the engineers of the company thirty years ago and prevented them from cutting down this grade at that time. Regular ice-making machinery will be installed on the ground and the quick sand frozen and then removed by cutting it in blocks, the same as ice is harvested. The quick sand will then be hauled away and dumped.

There are a number of springs at the base of Jackson's hill which have no natural outlet. The ground could not be successfully drained. As a result the ground, which is naturally of a gravel nature, became covered with quick sand. It could not be removed, neither could a grade be made on such an insecure basis. About thirty years ago the company ordered its best engineers to go to work on the job with the idea in view of cutting down the grade, which is one of the worst in the entire system. All the ability possessed by the engineers availed nothing and the scheme was abandoned.

Old Problem Again.

Now that the company is again following a reconstructive policy and is preparing to double track its system and reduce the grade to a minimum, the old problem came up. Engineers announced that by installing an ice plant, the sand could be frozen and while in such condition cut in blocks and removed. The plant has not as yet been placed on the grounds. However when it is, it is expected a large number of persons will visit the place daily to witness this novel way of circumventing nature's obstacles.

Another Suit Filed.

Another suit for the appropriation of real estate in order to widen its right of way has been filed in the circuit court by the Pennsylvania Railroad company. The defendants in the case include Robert and Retta L. Hartman and Benjamin Sourbeer, all residents of Jackson township. The amount of land owned by the defendants, which the company wants appraised, is approximately one and a third acres. Four other similar suits were filed by the company last week.

TWO WERE FOUND DEAD

(American News Service)

Chicago, Aug. 10.—James E. Connor, boiler maker for the Illinois Central railroad and Dennis Crowley, assistant, were instantly killed by an incoming Baltimore & Ohio train this morning. When the engine stopped at St. Lawrence avenue and Ninety-fifth street, the leg of a man was found on the pilot of the engine. This led to an investigation and the discovery of the bodies of the victims who evidently were struck by the engine while walking the tracks. The engineer had no knowledge of running the men down until he discovered the leg.

EVELYN WON'T ASK FOR A SETTLEMENT

States She Has Not Asked the Thaws to Give Her $500,000

EXPECTS TO BE SUPPORTED

STATES IF HARRY IS DECLARED SANE SHE WILL ASK DIVORCE ON GROUNDS THAT HE WAS INSANE WHEN MARRIED.

(American News Service)

New York, Aug. 10.—"I want to deny absolutely the statement made by Mr. Morschauer that I have asked the Thaws for a settlement of $500,000. I don't have to ask them for anything. I am prepared to compel my husband to support me and I shall do my asking in the courts." Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, in the most fetching of morning wrappers and with her black hair massed about her white temples, received an American News Service reporter in her studio today and started her interview with the above declaration.

"What action will you take?" she was asked.

Depends Upon Mills.

"My action depends on the decision of Justice Mills, which will be given Thursday," she replied. "If Mr. Thaw is declared sane and I released I will ask for an annulment on the ground that he was insane at the time the marriage was performed in Pittsburgh."

Mrs. Thaw glanced about the studio where stood figures in clay upon which she has been working as a sculptress.

"I don't want to keep the Thaw story alive," she said, "talking in newspaper parlance. All that I want is to be left alone to lead a quiet life. And I want to be supported by my husband and he will support me."

Her Main Witness.

Mrs. Thaw will use as her main witness in the event of this proceeding being started, Dr. Britton D. Evans the steadfast friend and expert alienist of Harry Thaw. Dr. Evans testified during the trials of Harry for the murder of White that when he signed his will and codicil he was insane.

He changed his will and added the codicil a few months before the marriage ceremony was performed.

"In the event of Mr. Thaw being declared still insane and returned to the asylum," she added, "I may sue him in court for support."

Mrs. Thaw declares that she is not now being adequately cared for by her husband and that $200 due her on the first of the month has not been paid.

HAVE A LARGE SALE

There Is a Big Demand for Season Tickets for the Chautauqua.

WILL BE MANY CAMPERS

The demand for the season Chautauqua tickets is very satisfactory, and it is thought before the opening day that the entire issue will be taken up.

The custom has been to sell 1,200 season tickets at $1.50, and the great majority of them are subscribed for by merchants and individuals in goodly numbers, thus guaranteeing the sale of same, and the non-subscribers have been privileged to get these from the subscribers at $1.50 each as long as they lasted. For several years the issue has been sold before the opening day, and this year the demand is again big.

The demand for tenting spaces still continues and the arrangement to have Secretary Goodwin on the grounds each day from 2:15 to 4:15 to show renters their spaces and make changes when conditions are unsatisfactory, is a good move. The Chautauqua Association recognizes the fact that to make the Richmond Chautauqua popular, it must make the campers as comfortable as possible and to give them the best there is to be had at all times.

TO BUY NEW NOZZLE

It is practically assured that the board of works will purchase one of the two-way universal fire nozzles to be added to the fire department equipment, at its meeting tomorrow morning. The nozzle was tried out this morning at Fifth and Main street for the benefit of B. B. Johnson, one of the members of the board who was absent from the city when the nozzle was tested several days ago. Mr. Johnson was well pleased with it. It is said that the nozzle is as useful as the three type tried out last year, which is much more expensive.

MOTHS WERE BURNED

Woman Pours Gasoline on the Carpet and Then Steps On a Match.

MORE WORK FOR FIREMEN

An effective way of killing moths was discovered by Mrs. George Nelson at her home, 413 South Seventh street, this morning. Her method consisted of pouring gasoline on the carpet and then stepping on a match lighting the gasoline and burning a large hole in the carpet and incidentally the moths. But she didn't mean to step on the match. However it is believed that the moths are now dead despite the fact that Mrs. Nelson found rather an expensive way of destroying the pests. An alarm of fire was sent in and the companies quickly responded. The blaze was extinguished and very little damage was done.
