

ASK THE INSANE TAKEN FROM THE 2 INSTITUTIONS

Those Who Attended the Conference Yesterday Decided That Home for Unfortunates Is Required.

MEETING CALLED BY THE COMMISSIONERS

County Officials Wanted to See What Public Thought Of Existing Conditions—Consider Plans.

It was the sense of the conference at the court house yesterday afternoon that the insane and feeble minded be removed from the county jail and home for the friendless. The conferees were in favor of the erection by the county of a home for this class of indigents separate and apart from either of the other institutions. The proposition of an addition to the jail was held in disfavor.

The conference was attended by members of the county board of charities, county commissioners, representatives of the county council and private citizens who are interested in charitable institutions and care for the unfortunates. It was a meeting for the exchange of opinion. It was called by the county commissioners to obtain public sentiment. The general public was not represented by a large attendance. It was stated by one present that the public seldom shows any real interest in matters of this kind. The inability of Supt. Smith of Easthaven and Secretary Butler of the state board of charities to be present probably had some effect on the public's interest.

What Was Advocated.

The establishment of a separate institution was advocated as the only practical way to dispose of the problem. The law requires that the insane shall be under the guardianship of the sheriff while awaiting admittance to the hospital. Different ways have been proposed so as to accomplish the purpose and not infringe on the law. The proposition which gained most favor was the purchase of a farm and erection of a building upon the "village" theory. The patients could be provided with plenty of grounds for exercise and those in condition to justify it might be given some privileges they can not enjoy at a jail or the home.

The establishment of the "village" at the county farm was favored to a slight degree. The farm is so far removed from the city as to make it somewhat difficult of access to the authorities, although there is direct interurban service.

The employment of a man and his wife as guards was proposed. It was pointed out that women insane should be under the care of a woman custodian. Her duties would consist almost exclusively in looking after the inmates and probably preparing their food. The man would be in control of the male inmates and would look after the farm and premises. It would be required that the custodians be married.

Enlargement Opposed.

The enlargement of the jail was excepted to for various reasons. Principal among them was the probability that the state law will be changed in a few years and district workhouses provided for. The present jail is sufficiently large to accommodate the number of prisoners usually remanded there. The workhouse would reduce the number of inmates at the jail. It would also serve as a preventive against the custom of some men to winter in jail. These men prefer to spend their time behind bars but well fed and kept warm to having their liberty and they are regular denizens of the institution.

It was evident to all that some arrangement must be made soon. The county council meets in September and if an appropriation is to be secured it must be asked for at this meeting. Consequently there is need for quick work. There is an incessant demand and an actual necessity, according to the conferees, that something be done to remedy conditions. No addition to the jail and the removal of all insane from jail and home by providing a separate institution for them was regarded as the only proper solution.

DISCUSS THE PLANS

At the meeting of the entertainment and amusement committee of the Fall Festival association last evening, the program for the festival was considered. It has not been completed as yet but it is the intention of having year and includes in addition to the morning until 12 o'clock at night. The program will be much better than last year and include in addition to the events of last year, a marathon race, hill climbing automobile race, motorcycle race, electrical and fireworks displays, etc. Some evening performances will be provided for. The committee will meet again in a few days and complete arrangements.

October 6, the opening day of the festival will be known as industrial day. Besides the afternoon and evening parades on that day, the fire department will give an exhibition in the afternoon to show how to fight a fire, and it will be a thriller. A great deal of attention will be given to the grand ball, on the evening of October 8. It was in the nature of a military affair last year but as the soldiers will not be here this year, the social event of the festival will be entirely for the benefit of Richmond residents and visitors from out of the city. The program for the horse show is a very extensive one, as there are so many entries that it will require three days to judge the animals. The different races and athletic events and the time when they are to be held has not been determined as yet.

SOON BE ANNOUNCED

The program for the Wayne County Sunday School rally to be held at the chautauqua assembly grounds next Thursday morning will be completed within a day or so. The principal feature of the rally will be the address by the Rev. George W. Hawes, a well known lecturer, of Sharon, Pa. Other events will include musical numbers. The reception committee, which has just been announced, includes J. F. Addleman, chairman, Ed Hasemeier and E. R. Thompson.

SHE HAS COMPLAINT

One of the most unexpected things in connection with the bids submitted to the township trustees today was the receipt of bids from firms who were in the alleged combination to obtain uniform prices for supplies. At the time the bids were refused because the trustees had been informed of the attempted collusion.

The action of the trustees was represented by the four firms in the agreement, and W. L. Baker, one of the supply dealers, charged improper methods of procedure. But Baker was back on hand today and submitted his bids along with the other dozen. The last time there were but six bidders

and this time the number was doubled.

Kicks Registered.

The bidders made constant com-plaint against the blank forms that are supplied them. They claimed these forms are so indefinite as to be mis-leading. One of the blanks provides for a price on twenty gross of pens. What kind of pens is not specified. Dealers could furnish them from 20 cents to $1.50 per gross. Another blank is for a price on wagons. It doesn't say what kind of wagon. Another is for waste paper baskets. There is no further specification and they can be supplied at prices from 15 cents to $4.

Such leeway in the blank forms would permit of any kind of bidding. Dealers who bid on pens at a ridiculously low figure might supply a kind almost worthless, while other dealers whose figures were higher intended to supply a good grade.

Owing to the illness of Isaac Winburns' attorney, the case in which he is named as defendant was continued until next Monday. Winburn is charged with pointing a deadly and dangerous weapon at Mrs. Jennie Morris. The police say there has been trouble brewing for Winburn, who is colored, for some time. He is out on bond. Mrs. Morris makes a variety of charges against the negro and has witnesses who support her allegations.

Winburn claims to have been threat-ened and abused by Mrs. Morris. He told the prosecutor today he wanted to file an affidavit against Mrs. Morris. The prosecutor told him to bring in his witnesses and tell his story.
