

BASS WAS IN CITY

Young Negro Wanted by the Police Employed by a Local Man.

LAD IS MISSING AGAIN

Raymond Bass, the seventeen-year-old colored boy who is alleged to have stolen a horse and buggy from Charles Ayres, near Milton and who abandoned the outfit after driving to Richmond, had not been found by the police, up to a late hour last night, but there seems no question that he was in Richmond all of yesterday. Bass appeared at the home of Harry Meek, south of Richmond, Friday night, and said he was without money and friends and wanted a place to stay until morning. Mr. Meek gave the boy lodging and breakfast and a short time after his visitor's departure, he received a Richmond newspaper by mail which told the story of the theft. "The boy did not try to conceal his identity," said Mr. Meek, "for he told me his name was Raymond Bass and that he had lived near Milton. He wanted a job on the farm, but I did not need help." Mr. Meek told Sheriff Meredith last night that young Bass evidently came into Richmond yesterday morning, but no trace of the boy could be found.

JAFFE IS ARRESTED

Junk Dealer Charged With Being Implicated in Theft Of Brass.

WAS RELEASED ON BOND

Sam Jaffe, junk dealer on North Second street, was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with stealing of about $300 worth of brass from the Richmond City Water Works company on North Eighth street. William Smith, colored, pleaded guilty to the same charge yesterday morning and in his confession implicated Jaffe in the robbery. He alleged that Jaffe and showed him where it was and how to get it. He said Jaffe then bought the brass, so a charge of receiving stolen property will also be made against Jaffe. He was bound over to the circuit court on $500 bond which he furnished.

RAID CRAP GAME: FIFTEEN CAUGHT

officers arrived and quietly stationed themselves at the front and rear entrances of the room to block any possible avenue of escape. With a rush, Edwards entered the front door and seized the man near the buzzer to prevent him from warning the players above. Patrolmen Hebble and Lawler then stormed the rear steps and when they reached the scene of action the wildest confusion reigned. The "seven-come-eleven" artists were caught in the act and a quantity of money and several dice were secured before the excited occupants of the room had fully recovered themselves or realized what was taking place. Several tried to make their get away, suddenly remembering some important business they had to attend to in another section of the city, but the exits were barred at every turn and their efforts were futile.

A Source of Trouble.

The officers are being congratulated from all sides for their successful raid. The pool room has been a source of trouble, and scarcely a Saturday night passes, it is said, that there is not one or more fights. It is recognized as one of the most disreputable "joints" in the city and residents in this vicinity have been repeatedly disturbed from their slumbers during the "wee small hours" of the night by the great disorder that frequently occurs there. It is thought the raid of last night will cast somewhat of a damper on the proceedings and do away with trouble in the future.
