WANT A PREACHER
FOR BALL GAMES

Cambridge City Will Try to Arrange Novel Sunday Feature.

EXPECT TO HOLD SERVICES

PRECEDING THE BALL GAMES IT IS PLANNED TO HAVE A MINISTER CONDUCT RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

Arrangements are being made by the baseball management of Cambridge City with a prominent minister of that place for him to deliver a prayer and a sermon, preceding the Sunday games hereafter, according to a well known Cambridge City man, who was in the city this morning. It is hoped by the management, according to this man, that the innovation will be introduced at next Sunday's game. The purpose in the management in holding a prayer and sermon preceding the game is not for the purpose of novelty or to increase the gate receipts, he said. However the exact reason for holding religious services on the grounds has not been divulged. Just who will officiate at the game next Sunday afternoon has not been announced. Providing the management is successful in securing a minister to officiate, it will not be the first time that a minister has preached a sermon preceding a baseball game. At Minneapolis in the American association, the games are opened in this manner every Sunday when the team is at home.

HAVE NEW THEATER.

AMERICAN CITIES AFTER THE HONOR
Want to Secure the Next International Aviation Contest.

EXPECT BIG COMPETITION
GLENN CURTISS HAS DECIDED NOT TO REMAIN IN EUROPE AND WILL PROBABLY SAIL FOR HOME SATURDAY.

(American News Service)
Rheims, Aug. 29.—New York, Chicago or St. Louis will likely be the scene of the next great contest for the international aviation cup, won by Glenn Curtiss in the first grand tournament of aviation for all nations which closed last night.

Cortland Bishop, head of the Aero club of America, announced that he would immediately ask American cities to compete for the great honor of holding the meeting where the international cup will be defended.

Any challenge for the cup must be made before March 13 of each year. The unique tournament closed in a blaze of glory for America and today Betheny Plain was the scene of a small army of workmen razing sheds and clearing the ground where so lately thrilling contests of the air were in progress. The shed in which the Herring Curtiss car was stored was nearly wrecked by souvenir hunters.

THE WEREWOLF.
A Human Monster in Which the Ancient Fears Believed.

The word "werewolf" simply means a man transformed into a wolf, and the belief in such transformation seems to have been at one time widely diffused over all the countries of Europe, Asia and some parts of Africa.

According to the ancients, a man thus transformed into a wolf or other ravenous beast was believed to become possessed of all the powers of such a beast in addition to his human abilities to reason. His appetite also became enormous and could only be appeased by being glutted upon human flesh. During the latter centuries of the dark ages the belief in werewolves was as common and as widespread as was the belief in witches, which it in some respects resembled.

The belief, senseless as it was, gave rise to much brutal persecution of the accused, and the various systems of torture were usually successful in getting a confession of guilt and the subsequent burning or hanging of the wretched confessor.

In Great Britain, where wolves were scarcely known, the werewolf tales of the continent were hardly credited, but later on, even in "enlightened England," they believed that witches could transform themselves into cats and hares, a belief at least analogous to the "loup-garou" superstition of the continent.

Well Turned.
An eminent lawyer was once cross examining a clever woman, mother of the plaintiff in a breach of promise action, and was completely worsted in the encounter of wits. At the close, however, he turned to the jury and exclaimed: "You saw, gentlemen, that even I was but a child in her hands. What must my client have been?" By this adroit stroke he turned his failure into a success.

Hattie—I hope you don't believe all Fred Thompson says about your good looks and your brilliant conversation and all that sort of thing.

Beesie—Can't say that I do. But what of that? If he did not think a good deal of me he wouldn't take the trouble to flatter me.
