NAPOLEON'S FAREWELL.

The Most Dramatic Scene in the History of Fontainebleau.

It was at Fontainebleau that Napoleon received the pope in 1804. It was at Fontainebleau that he imprisoned the pope—the apartment which served as his prison is still shown—in 1812 and 1813. Finally, for Nemesis would have it so, it was at Fontainebleau that Napoleon signed his abdication and said farewell to his army in 1814, coming down the horseshoe staircase and placing himself at the head of the guard as for a review.

"For twenty years," he said, "I have been well content with you and you have always been with me on the path of glory. With your help and that of all the brave men who are still loyal I could have carried on the war for three years longer, but France would have suffered, and I did not wish that to happen.

"I might have died—that would have been easy—but I would not. I prefer to follow the path of honor and to write the history of our exploits.

"I cannot embrace you all, but I will embrace your general. Come, General Petit. Bring me the eagle! Dear eagle! May these kisses find their echo in every brave man's heart!

"Farewell, my children!" That surely is the most pathetic scene in also the most dramatic scene in the whole history of Fontainebleau. T. P.'s London Weekly.

OLD TIME ENGLISH.

Words as They Were Pronounced in Shakespeare's Day.

The innovation of pronouncing Shakespeare's words as they were probably pronounced in his own day was carried out at a fete arranged at University college, London. The experiment inspired this comment by the Manchester Guardian:

"For 'one touch of nature' Shakespeare probably said 'own tooch of nature,' and very much like a modern Irishman, he would say, 'A haste that wants discourse of rayson.' It would be 'Loov's Labber's Lost' and the 'Midsummer Neech's Dramme.' Scraps of 'Hamlet' would sound thus:

"A haste that wants discourse of rayson / Which have moored longer." / "Be they as pure (French u) as grass / Is grace!" / "A broken voice and his whole foonction / shooting (sulting) / With forms to his consort."

"To take arms against a say of troubles." / Our ancestors of even some 150 years ago said "Heed" for "Home," "cheer" for "chair," "oblegged" for "obliged," "greet boult" (the "ou" as in "out") for "great bowl," and further back, Milton would say "biling water."

Real Thrillers. "Talk of dime novels!" exclaimed the insurance man. "You ought to read a detective bureau report on an insurance case if you want a thriller. Our company carries a great deal of burglary insurance and, of course, when a robbery occurs to any of our customers we put detectives on the case. The reports that these men send in are simple statements of facts boiled down hard and containing nothing but what is absolutely essential to the business. But for intense interest they beat any novel I ever read or expect to read. Occasionally after a case is finished and has become an ancient history I get out these reports and read them to a group of my friends, and no play can hold a more absorbed audience. The actual trailings of a criminal by detectives and the marvels of ingenuity on both sides are world beaters for dramatic situations and excitement."—New York Press.

Whittier's Visitor. Pilgrims used to visit Whittier continually. A typical one came from Missouri. Though told that Whittier had a headache, he forced his way into the poet's study, where he declared that he adored all Whittier's works, which he knew almost by heart. He asked Whittier to write his name several hundred times on a large sheet of foolscap, so that he could cut out and distribute the autographs among his Missouri friends. In fact, it was all the poet could do to keep the enthusiastic Missourian from clipping all the buttons from his coat as souvenirs.

"And all the time"—so Whittier would end the anecdote pathetically—"all the time he called me White-taker."—Exchange.

An American firm has established a large pig packing house at Nazli, the chief producing center of Asia Minor. The fruit is moistened for packing with sea water, which has to be sent in barrels from Smyrna, 120 miles distant on the coast. Hereafter the pig crop has been transported to Smyrna for final drying and packing. It has averaged about 110,000 camel loads a year, a camel carrying 450 pounds.

THE TRAVELING DOG.

How the Up to the Minute Woman Carries Her Pet Canine.

All is not gold that glitters and things are not always what they seem. Witness this traveling bag which might be filled with almost anything for the journey and has much the look of an English steamer roll until, presto, without warning, out from the watch hole in the upper corner comes a little muzzled head with a black shiny nose and two pointed ears. He gives the outer world a good natured survey, for he has traveled before, but never in such comfort and security. It is certainly much more comfortable to be carried by handles like a bag than to be led around by a chain and left in the care of strangers or nailed up in a box with half a loaf and a pan of water. He knows a good thing when he sees it and he wags his sensible little tail under cover and ducks when the conductor makes his rounds.

This bag is actually of English importation and was conceived and fashioned from the ideas of the brown canvas steamer roll, which will hold an infinite number of garments. It is usually made to order and cut to fit its future occupant when he is standing, but he may also lie down in it with comfort and without being suffocated, equipped as his little cabin is with a port-hole on the forward deck. The two stout handles are made of leather, and the whole opens from the top and is secured with catches.

It is a most convenient receptacle for those who have cherished animals and are loath to give them over into the care of strangers on the long day's journey. They are as easily handled as a suit case and may be swung lightly to the train by the young mistress herself if there are no train porters at hand to help her.

It was not until 1826 that government lotteries were abandoned in Britain. For the thirty years preceding an average annual profit of over $1,725,000 had accrued, one contractor alone spending $150,000 in advertisements in a single year. The money thus raised was usually for a particular purpose, such as the improvement of London, the purchase of Tomkins's picture gallery, or the repair of various harbors. From the seventeenth century to the reign of George IV the crown repeatedly drew considerable revenues from such sources.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

The undersigned, administrator with the will annexed of the estate of Margaret Frame, deceased, hereby gives notice that by virtue of the power by said will conferred and pursuant to statute, I will offer for sale at public vendue on the premises, at the hour of two o'clock, P. M. on Thursday, September 30th, 1909, the following described real estate situated in Franklin Township, County of Wayne, and State of Indiana, to-wit:

"Being a part of the northwest quarter of Section one (1), Township fifteen (15) north, Range one (1) west, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a marked stone at the northeast corner of said section, running thence south along the west line of said section, one hundred twenty and eight tenths (120.8) rods to the north side of a private roadway; thence east with the north line of said roadway, forty-two (42) rods; thence north one hundred twenty and eight tenths (120.8) rods to the north line of said section; thence west along the north line of said section forty-two and nine tenths (42.9) rods, to the place of beginning, containing thirty-two and six hundredths (32.06) acres.

Also a part of the northeast quarter of Section two (2), Township fifteen (15) north, Range one (1) west, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of said section two (2), running thence south along the east line of said section one hundred nineteen and six tenths (119.6) rods; thence west, parallel with the north line of said section, seventy-eight and forty-four hundredths (78.44) rods; thence north one hundred nineteen and six tenths (119.6) rods, to the north line of said section; thence east along said section line seventy-seven and forty-eight hundredths (77.48) rods, to the place of beginning, containing fifty-seven and seventy-eight (57.78) acres; and both of said tracts containing eighty-nine and eighty-four (89.84) acres, more or less."

Said sale will be made subject to the approval of the Wayne Circuit Court, for not less than two-thirds of the full appraised value of said real estate, and upon the following TERMS AND CONDITIONS:

At least one-third of the purchase money cash in hand, the balance in two equal installments, payable in not to exceed nine and eighteen months, evidenced by notes of the purchaser, in usual bankable form, bearing six per cent. (6%) interest from date, waiving relief, providing attorneys' fees and secured by mortgage on the real estate sold.

Said real estate will be sold free and discharged from liens, except the taxes for 1909.

George Meredith. The legend that in his early days the late George Meredith was so poor that he invested all his funds in a sack of oatmeal, subsisting thereon while he wrote "Evan Harrington," is quoted by Mr. J. A. Hummerton in his "book," "George Meredith in Anecdote and Criticism." One part of that picturesque if baseless story was to the effect that the novelist was not able to buy fuel and was accustomed to carry the bag of oatmeal across the rooms to keep himself warm.

No Harm Done. "We've been having a regular clearance at home," explained Mr. X. at the office, "throwing all sorts of old things away. I put one of my wedding presents on the fire this morning."

"Did you really?" asked a horrified colleague. "What was it?" "A copper kettle," replied X.—London Mail.

Only seven alarms of fire were turned in during the month of August, according to the report of Fire Chief Ed Miller. All of the fires were small and the total loss did not exceed $135 it is said. This is an excellent record and an unusual one for August, when there are usually many fires. Fines in Germany. The German workman who the other day was fined in a London police court probably considered that he had a genuine grievance when he complained that, in addition to the fine, his compulsory attendance at the court had lost him a day's pay. For they do these things better—at any rate, from the delinquent's point of view—in the fatherland. For what may be described as a trivial offense the worker is not compelled to attend the

THE LOADED GUN. A Most Dangerous Thing to Have Around the Home.

The loaded pistol in the home is an object of danger, wherever it may be placed. It is of no use in an emergency. It must be within easy reach. If it is within easy reach it may figure in a homicide or a suicide. Finally, suddenly awakened person may kill a member of the household by mistake. A child may find it and explode it. If it is not within easy reach it might as well be in a shop downtown as far as resisting burglars or serving a useful purpose is concerned. If it is put away as a curiosity it should always be unloaded. If the weapon is a relic of the past, a specimen of an ancient form of gunnaming, it is just as interesting with its chambers empty as when they are filled.

Of course pistols may be put away loaded with the full intention of having them safely fired or unloaded later and then forgotten. This is a matter that cannot be neglected without danger. The loaded gun is a menace to life as long as it remains loaded and within reach. Even at the bottom of a trunk it is possible cause of trouble. It behooves everybody to make sure that there are none of these hidden weapons on the premises, to be found by rummaging children or suddenly disclosed in the course of housecleaning or changes.—Washington Star.
