EDITED BY ELIZABETH R. THOMAS. PHONE 1121

A pretty wedding for early fall was celebrated this morning at nine o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal church. The bride was Miss Afton Clapp, the beautiful and charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clapp, and the groom, Mr. W. Ramsey Poundstone, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Poundstone. Miss Laura Gaston presided at the organ and played a program of bridal airs as the guests assembled. About fifty persons witnessed the ceremony, a few coming from a distance. Palms and ferns were used in decorating the altar. At either side of the chancel rail, green tinted baskets filled with white hydrangeas were placed. There were no attendants. Mr. Charles M. Morgan, Mr. Carl Bernhardt, Mr. Thomas Kaufman and Mr. Henry Bulla were the ushers. The bride came down the aisle on the arm of her father, who gave her away. She was met at the altar by the groom. Rev. David Huntington read the impressive Episcopal service. The bride wore an elegant traveling gown of navy blue. Her hat was a large picture one trimmed with white plumes. She carried an arm bouquet of American beauty roses. Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Poundstone left for a wedding trip to northern points. Upon their return they will be at home on South A street street to their many friends. In the dining room, white and yellow blossoms were used in decorating. A French basket filled with blossoms, formed an attractive centerpiece for the table. Strands of smilax were brought from the chandelier and fastened at the four corners of the table. Crystal candle sticks, holding yellow tapers, capped with yellow shades, also added to the beauty of the scene. Tiny baskets filled with flowers and tied with yellow ribbons, marked the plates. The bride presented her maids with gold crescent pins set with pearls. The groom's gifts to the men were silver suit case tags. His gift to the bride was a sunburst of pearls with diamond center. UNIONISM ELEVATES.

Makes Better Workmen and Demands Loyalty to Employers.

Addressing the Philadelphia street railway men recently, John Mitchell said in part:

I desire to extend my heartiest congratulations to the street railway employees of Philadelphia upon the victory won in the late strike. I want to say a few words, however, and to counsel prudence to the trolley men in the exercise of their new found power. He is not always your best friend who appeals to your sentiments. The best friend of the workman is he who tells them the truth and is not afraid to tell them in what they err.

I believe that a union workman is a better worker than a nonunion man. There are many employers who cannot be convinced of this, yet there are thousands who recognize that union labor is a most profitable investment in business. It is said that trades unionism destroys initiative; that it brings the energetic and ambitious down to the level of the sluggish. We deny that. Experience has shown that unionism brings no man down. It creates a level, it is true, but that level is a high one. We insist that instead of bringing good men down we bring poor workmen up. Trades unionism insists upon high grade work. No less a person than the president of the United States said in a speech in New York not long ago that trades unionism elevates workmen and expressed an opinion that employers who now oppose it will soon be brought about to see that their methods are those of the last century and that trades unionism is not only better for the workman, but better for the employer.

I want to impress upon you men the necessity of rendering a high grade of service to your employers. It is one of the principles of trades unionism that its members must give the best that is in them to their employers.

We cannot demand higher wages or better working conditions unless we ourselves are doing our part in our employers' business. You trolley men should heed that. Do not be emboldened by your victory to become lagard or careless. Remember there are two sides to this question, and it is only when you do your work well that you are worthy of good treatment. The labor movement is neither lost nor won by a single defeat or a single victory. Nevertheless every victory gives renewed courage to those who are fighting other battles for labor. Others took heart from your success, and the whole labor movement has been benefited by it. In Philadelphia particularly the cause has had a great impetus from your victory. You now have it in your power to make this city one of the best organized communities in the country. Just keep at it. Stay in your union and help other unions in trouble. For instance, the haters are now on a strike. Support them, and if they win you will be just that much stronger. Also look out for dissensions in your own ranks. Your employers will doubtless try to split your organization. Pay no attention to rumor, but be guided only by what you hear in meeting and in talk with your leaders.

Dr. Chamberlain, U. S. A., says that 80 per cent. of southern-bred soldiers have hook worm disease, and of many new recruits the percentage is at times as high as 85. Southern recruits are less well developed physically than northern ones.

Electric rail welding is said to prevent a large portion of the noise of the passage of the rolling stock.

Girls Who Work

are especially exposed to the dangers of female organic disorders. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has enabled thousands of girls to hold their positions.

Read what this girl says:

Paw Paw, Mich.—"I suffered terribly from female ill, including inflammation and congestion, for several years. My doctor said there was no hope for me but an operation. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I can now say I am well."—Emma Draper.

And this girl:

Indianapolis, Ind.—"I suffered from a severe female weakness and got so bad that I believe I would have died if I had not obtained relief soon. One doctor said nothing would cure me but an operation.

"My aunt advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had done so much good for her. I did and found it to be the right medicine to cure female troubles and build up the system, and I am now in better health than I ever expected to be."—Bessie V. Piper, 29 S. Addison St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls would do the same for any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

These testimonial letters are the genuine and truthful statements from honest people.

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there is lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ill. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.
