ASKS FOR INQUEST

Suit was filed in the circuit court today by Joseph Mitchell, through his attorney, William H. Kelley, against Frank Mitchell, petitioning Judge Fox for the appointment of a guardian and an inquest being held. Frank Mitchell is thirty years old and has been confined in the county jail for several months. His estate is placed at a valuation of about $300. The petitioner hopes to place the defendant in the Eastern Indiana Hospital for the insane.

JURY DRAWN TODAY

Harry E. Penny, county clerk, and Jerry McDaniels, of Cambridge City, jury commissioners, drew a list of names to serve on the jury of the October term of court, which convenes next Monday. The docket has not been made up as yet. However, the docket is light in respect to criminal cases.

Alphabetical Writing.
Undoubtedly the most important invention in human history was that of the art of alphabetical writing. The first alphabet was devised by the Phoenicians, who gave the idea to the Romans, whose alphabet is the basis of nearly all of our modern ones. Capital letters were used altogether till the seventh century, when small letters began to come in. Punctuation, unknown at first, was introduced about 250 B. C. and was finally reduced to a system in 1500 by Aldus, the famous Venetian printer. London Answer.

HAS FISH STORIES

Day Sergeant Mort Little, has returned from a week's fishing trip to the lakes in Northern Indiana, where he went in company with A. G. Cook and Ray Kennedy of this city. Mort knows a bunch of new fish stories and as usual the "one that got away" was the biggest in the lake. The genial sergeant states that he had a fine time and (this is no kid either) that he really did catch a number of pretty, big bass. Special attention is called to the comma between the words pretty and big for the benefit of the more skeptical.

BETTER TRADE EDUCATION.

American Federation Plans Industrial Training of Children.
At the instance of the American Federation of Labor and of philanthropic persons who are interested in industrial education for the children of workmen, whereby they may be better fitted to engage in mechanical and other industrial work, a conference will be held in Washington on Oct. 10 by a committee which will devise ways and means to forward the project.

The last convention of the American Federation of Labor, held in Denver, authorized the appointment of such a committee, which should take up the subject of better trade education for the children. President Samuel Gompers was to have appointed the committee, but in his absence it was designated by First Vice President James Duncan of the federation. The committee includes John Mitchell, the chairman; Frank Duffy, secretary of the Carpenters' International Union; Commissioner of Labor Nell, Raymond Robbins of Chicago, Mrs. Winslow of Massachusetts, James Ross of Albany, N. Y.; Edwin Hirsch of Baltimore, John Warden of Massachusetts, James Wilson of Cincinnati, John B. Leaven of Burlington, Ill., and other persons prominent in trades movements and social uplift work. Frank Morrison, secretary, and Samuel Gompers, president, of the American Federation of Labor, while not members of the committee, will work in conjunction with it.

Municipal Homes For Workmen.
The municipality of Genoa, Italy, is constructing two immense buildings, each to contain seventy-two apartments, termed "popular houses," for the purpose of providing suitable living quarters for the workmen of the city. As it is an impossibility to expand the building area of Genoa, every available site being already occupied, there has been a constant increase of rentals on all classes of property.

The apartments in the new structures are to be from two to five rooms each, and the purpose is to rent each room at $14 a year. The present plans contemplate the construction of from 200 to 400 apartments, to cost approximately from $300 to $500,000. Only laborers or salaried employees, with families, whose annual earnings do not exceed $500, or if without families $300, are to be admitted as tenants.

of the office. He stated that on Friday evening he saw a man standing across the street from the office for some time gazing intently into the room where the safe is kept. He thought nothing of it at the time but now believes that the man was one of those implicated in the affair of last night.

The police got busy right away and late last night arrested Charles Loftis and Allie Earls, members of the court house gang, who have frequently been in trouble. The boys stoutly maintain their innocence, however, and declare that they had nothing whatever to do with the robbery. Even a dose of the "third degree" this morning administered by Chief of Police Staubach and Patrolman Longman was ineffective and failed to throw any new light on the matter or connect the suspects in anyway with the burglary. Chief Staubach declares that some of the members of the court house gang are to blame "as it is a bad bunch" and other arrests are expected to follow within a few days.

GOES TO PITTSBURG

The Rev. Charles Loehr, formerly of this city, but who has for the past five years served as pastor of the Lutheran church at Cleveland, Ohio, preached his final sermon to that congregation yesterday. Rev. Loehr has accepted a call to Pittsburg, Pa., in a Lutheran church there, where he will begin his pastorate next Sunday. Rev. Loehr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. V. Loehr of this city.

saved by appropriately costumed and carefully trained companies of men and women.

In the workshops of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, at 149th street and Exterior avenue in the Bronx, one hundred floats have been built without commercialism by the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission for the free entertainment and instruction of the public.

In the immense structure, half barn and half studio in appearance, a force of 300 artists, sculptors, papier-mache workers, carpenters, blacksmiths and painters have worked for the past year and virtually none except the members of the Commission knew that they were at work. The results of their work, when seen upon the streets, will startle New York and its millions of visitors and evoke applause that will be heard around the world.

Stoddard in Demand.

The man in command of the parades and the building of the floats for them, under the general supervision of the Commission, is Captain A. H. Stoddard and the man who designed the floats was E. R. Wikstrom, who died on April 15th at work at his easel. Mr. Stoddard was for sixteen years the captain of pageantry at New Orleans and the late Mr. Wikstrom for more than twenty years designed the floats for the Mardi Gras there. Mr. Wikstrom, a few days before his death, said that the floats for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration represented his best work, and Mr. Stoddard is confident that the parades will surpass anything that he ever did for New Orleans.

The task of building these floats was a serious problem for the officers and members of the Commission when the parades were first decided upon. Even after the engagement of the late Mr. Wikstrom and of Mr. Stoddard, they were still confronted with the problem of obtaining workmen fitted by practical experience to do the peculiar style of work required and it was found necessary to send to New Orleans for workmen skilled in this class of construction.

Established a School.

Using these men as instructors, a school of float construction was virtually established with skilled New York sculptors and carpenters as pupils, with the result that now the New York contingent in the Commission's workshops is the quickest and most skilled.

One of the most interesting departments of the Commission's workshop is the modeling room in which three master sculptors, assisted by a large corps of both men and girls, have worked in clay and plaster the figures and objects to be used on the floats.

The rough skeleton of the figure has been first built of lath and wire mesh and then masses of soft green clay have been patied on that skeleton. The sculptors' assistants next modeled that mass into some semblance of the design with their hands, with wooden paddles and with wire scrapers, and then the sculptor has carefully modeled the features of the face and form of the figure, or the exact outline of the object to be produced, so that, now finished, it is as accurate as the statues in the art galleries.

What Next Step Was.

The next step has been the taking of a plaster mold of the clay model. The papier mache workers have then taken possession of the apt. Five or six layers of this, tough paper have been pasted over every part of the cast and allowed to dry perfectly. The cast has then been split in two by cutting through the layers of paper and the plaster cast removed, whereupon the papier mache model has been carefully joined and covered with fine wire and the place of opening covered with more layers of past of paper.

Finished and dried, the papier mache figures stand a
