HOLD BANQUET.

One of the important social festivities for the week was the banquet held Saturday evening at the home of Miss Edith Francisco on Kinsey street. The guests were members of the high school faculty with their wives and friends. The different rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion. The high school colors red and white were used as a color scheme. In the dining room where dinner was served by a caterer, at six-thirty o'clock, red and white carnations were used in appointing the table. Those participating in the affair were: Prof. and Mrs. C. W. Knouff, Prof. and Mrs. Will Earhart, Miss Alice Locke, Mrs. Bertha Hawkins, Prof. F. L. Torrence, Prof. and Mrs. B. W. Kelly, Prof. Waltrip, Prof. John Thompson, Miss Black, Prof. Miller, Prof. and Mrs. Murray, Prof. and Mrs. Hamilton, Miss Edith Francisco, Miss Elma Nolte, Miss Carolyn Stahl, Prof. and Mrs. Lamar and Miss Edith Tallant.

HALLOWE'EN.

Young and old are looking forward with pleasure to Halloween which falls this year on Sunday, October thirty-first. However several hostesses will entertain on Saturday while others will wait until Monday. This day of the year is always an enjoyable one as it offers all manner of unique and delightfully informal methods of entertaining. The spirit of Halloween is a ghoulish one and the games appropriate for that evening are, as a general rule, those whose end it is to make some effort to peer into the future. Some of the rites of Halloween are reminiscent of the old pagan customs, but the name itself designates the day on the eve of All Saints, one of the principal feasts of the early Christian church. No doubt a large number of delightful social functions will be given at this time.

IS FASHIONABLE.

Jet will be extremely fashionable this winter on millinery and during the summer some of the best parasols employed handles of jet, mostly round. The round ones were most fascinating. The jet handle was handsome and appropriate with a parasol of any color or material. Jet is seen in the most beautiful trimmings, not the dull kind so fashionable ten or fifteen years ago, but the rich, bright variety. Masses of it, as well as touches, will go on some of the handsomest gowns.

WILL GIVE DANCE.

A Halloween dance will be given Wednesday evening by the members of the Wednesday Evening Assembly in the Odd Fellow's hall. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kaufman, Miss Marie Campbell and Mr. Walter Eggemeier will have charge of the affair. Piano and drums will furnish the dance music. Dancing will begin at eight o'clock. The function will not be a masquerade as formerly announced. All members are invited to attend.

IS ENTERTAINING.

Mrs. A. Shepherd, 419 South Twelfth street is entertaining her sister from Cincinnati for several weeks.

GUESTS HERE.

The concert and the late comers were obliged to be content with seats upon the stage. While she seemed a trifle nervous at the beginning of her program, Madame Galski soon assumed her usual fine voice and gave an excellent reading of the entire program which opened with a Brahms group of six gypsy songs, wrought out with distinguishing clearness, technically and interpretatively, followed by "Die Mainacht" and "Dort in den Weiden," both Brahms compositions, which she sang in an authoritative manner. A Schubert group of six numbers—"An die Leier," "Der Wachtelschlag," "Erster Verlust," "Nachstück," "Wanderers Nachtlied" and "Ungeud"—called forth an outburst of applause to which Madame Galski responded with "Forelle," by Schubert. The program closed with "Blumengruss," by Arnold Mendelssohn; "The Swan Bent Low," by Edward A. MacDowell; "Unmindful of the Roses," by Edwin Schneider, and "Isola" and "Nimm Mich Hin," by Max Lebling. In response to repeated recalls, Madame Galski sang "The Year's at the Spring," by Beach, and "Ho o Toho," from "Die Walkure," both of which had to be repeated.

OF INTEREST.

HONOR SINGER.

The city of Detroit bestowed a singular honor upon Madame Schumann-Heink last week. The celebrated singer was an attraction at the Columbus celebration concert given at the Light Guard Armory. In that city, Tuesday of last week. She was introduced by the mayor of Detroit. Early in the afternoon she was invited to appear before the city council and along with the other honors shown to the singer, the councilmen granted her the freedom of the city. Few women have had this honor.

IS IN CANADA.

Madame Marchesi who sang in this city last year at the Gennett theater is now in Canada.

DAVID BISPHAM.

The following clipping from the Musical Courier concerning David Bispham who is expected to give a recital in this city this year, is of interest:

"Mr. Bispham's programs are always interesting," says Philip Hale, in the Boston Herald, "and for this reason he is not afraid to sing new or unfamiliar songs. When he chooses songs from composers of established reputation he often makes effects with those which other singers know not or neglect. Thus, some years ago, concert-goers who thought they were well acquainted with Schubert, were surprised by 'The Dwarf' as Mr. Bispham interpreted it.

"There are singers—some of them excellent vocalists—who never acquire the art of interpretation, who never have the faculty of even differentiating between two moods. Mr. Bispham, as long as we have known him, as operatic and as concert singer, has put stress on interpretation."

CLUB NOTES

DORCAS SOCIETY.

A meeting of the Dorcas society will be held Monday afternoon with Miss Alice Knollenberg at her home on South Fourth street. All members are cordially invited to be present.

ENTERTAIN MOTHERS.

The Domestic Science class of Finley school entertained their mothers Friday afternoon at the school. The time was spent socially. Refreshments were served.

Several important business matters were transacted.

CLUBS ORGANIZED.

Several new clubs have been organized during the past few weeks and the club season promises to be one of the interesting features of the city's social life this year.

Fashions and Fads

Quaint little bonnets for babies are shown in poplin, bengaline and felt for the coming season. The Dutch shape is much favored, probably because it fits so prettily around the wearer's face. Some are drawn in plain, others show a frill flaring away from the face.

A cute little bonnet of French felt displayed recently in a shop was pleated to fit the head, a twisted ribbon edging it and tying under the chin. About at the left temple a rosette of the ribbon held the twist in place, while a prim little bunch of pink roses was put on the same way, on the right. Ribbon and felt were ivory white, and a ruching of white chiffon encircled the face.

A smart autumn gown for a woman past her first youth is a skirt of dull brown peau de sole veiled with dahlia purple ninon, the edges being bordered everywhere with scallops hemmed with a tiny roll of brown silk, each enclosing a worked cockle-shell; to be worn with a shady round chip hat trimmed with a big cluster of spiky purple cactus dahlias and autumnal foliage and with a thick rope of intertwined rouleaux of brown peau de sole.

Shirt waist ruffling has been revived and will be seen on many of the season's blouses.

The most noticeable thing about new blouses is the tiny puff in some of the sleeves. Some are fuller at the top, too, and hardly any are made long or close fitting.

Late Paris fashions in wraps are introducing some startling picture effects, designers drawing from all periods and all lands in the shaping of cloaks and mantles.

Some of the most striking chiffons and gauzes, whether designed for scarfs or evening gowns, are embossed in velvet. The velvet is of the lightest weight quality.

This year again there is a fancy for the fluffy neck bows of illusion or maline, and these fluffy, airy bows, tucked beneath the chin, are bewitchingly becoming.

Fur is to be used extensively as a trimming on tailored coats. The fur will be found not only at the throat and wrists, but as a finish at the bottom of the garment.

The shawl-like drapery of lace or shimmering fabric, which extends from the shoulders far below the waist line, is a decidedly effective finish to the smart evening gown.

Some of the new sweater coats have large outside pockets placed over the hips. These pockets are provided with flaps, which fasten tight with snap hooks or buttons and button-holes.

For evening wear dyed laces are to be used freely over white silk or metallic foundations, and black-and-white all-overs, jetted or spangled, are making up some of the smartest evening gowns.

Earliest Bible Pictures.

The earliest Bible pictures were painted on the church walls instead of being bound between the book covers.

SCHLATTER DENIES REPORT OF DEATH

Following His "Demise" in Nebraska, Turns Up in Michigan.

LIVES AT BATTLE CREEK

HE HAS BEEN LIVING THERE QUIETLY BUT PUBLICITY OF HIS "DEATH" CAUSES HIM TO BREAK SILENCE.

(American News Service)

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 23.—Living the life of a recluse, Francis Schlatter known the world over as a divine healer, has been making Battle Creek his home for the past five months. Though he and Mrs. Schlatter have been living in Battle Creek for several weeks, he has sought no publicity or notoriety, and only made known his presence yesterday because a certain man claiming to be Dr. Schlatter had died in Hastings, Nebraska, after having posed as the genuine healer Schlatter, for a number of years. Mr. Schlatter harbors no ill feeling against this Dr. McClain who assumed his name.

"If this man could do good by assuming my name, well and good," said the Battle Creek man.

Is the "Original."

The man in this city is the original Francis Schlatter, who created an immense sensation in the larger cities of the United States a few years ago is apparently borne out by credentials he has in his possession. Mr. Schlatter has in his possession letters from the late President McKinley who was a close friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Schlatter and there is other documentary evidence which seems to sub-

Woman Who Cannot Tell Name A Victim of Apasia Attack

New York, October 23.—A splendidly gowned woman, wearing expensive jewelry and of evident refinement, is a patient in the North Hudson hospital in Weehaken, N. J., today unable to tell her name or give any information as to her identity following an attack of apasia on a West Shore train in her purse was found a trunk check marked Mrs. Charles A. Nathan and a business card of M. A. Grasse, depot passenger agent of the Wabash railroad at Chicago. On one side of the card is written:

"This will introduce Mrs. Curry, who is enroute to New York. Taravola, agent."

On the other side is written: "Mr. Grasse, please put lady in chair car No. 6 and oblige. W. H."

stantiate every claim made by this man.

Enough For the Present.

According to the Saturday Evening Post, a Washington negro thought he was a prizefighter, so some of the local sporting men watched him.

He couldn't fight, as was soon shown. In the first round his antagonist swung on the negro and knocked him sprawling. The negro remained perfectly still. "One, two, three," began the referee, and then he noticed there was nothing the matter with the negro but fright. "Ain't you goin' to fight no more?" he shouted.

"Yasir," replied the negro; "I'm goin' to fight some more, but not tonight."

"South Eighth Street Friends"—Levi T. Pennington, pastor. Bible school at 9 o'clock, John H. Johnson, superintendent; morning meeting for worship at 10:30; Christian Endeavor meeting at 6:30; prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30. You have a standing invitation to any and all of these services.

MARY ELLER. Gold Medal Flour is the best for making everything.

The baggage check was found to call for a small trunk found in the baggage room. The trunk is marked "Milwaukee to New York," and bears the name "Mrs. Charles A. Nathan." Once the woman uttered the name "Kate Curry," but since that time has been unable to assist in her identification. The card leads the hospital authorities to believe that she is the wife of one of the officials of the Wabash railroad, or at least a friend of one of them. The woman is about 33 years old, well formed and her gown is of light blue color, late pattern and new. Her hat is black. The diamonds on her fingers and other jewelry which she wore are in marked contrast to the cheap empty purse which she carried.
