

SHOW CASES

Up to date. ALL PLATE and WOOD FRAME. Write us.

Clark Show Case Co., Columbus, Ohio.

BIRD SLAUGHTER STARTS TOMORROW

Local Nimrods Congest Clerk's Office Today to Secure Licenses.

RABBITS ARE PLENTIFUL

OWING TO STRICT PROTECTION GIVEN QUAILS RECENTLY THIS GAME IS NOT QUITE SO SCARCE AS FORMERLY WAS.

Woe to Molly Cottontail and Whistling Bob White. County Clerk Penny's office was congested all through the day by local nimrods desirous of securing a license for the hunting season which opens tomorrow. It is estimated that there were at least 300 applicants for hunting privileges and Clerk Penny now has a severe case of writer's cramp.

With the first dawn of day, tomorrow the season will be on and the fond anticipation of local sportsmen who have been polishing their guns laying in stock of ammunition and overhauling their hunting paraphernalia, will be reality.

Are Well Filled.

Wayne county brakers and covers are unusually well filled with game this year it is said. Rabbits are more plentiful than in years past and quail under the protection that has been afforded them in the past few years by a strict game law and vigilant wardens, are no longer the rarity that they were fast becoming several years ago.

Certain sections of the state are completely overrun with rabbits, it is said, although they cannot be found in too abundant quantities for Wayne county hunters. Quail may be hunted from November 10 to January 1, but hunters must be careful and not kill more than fifteen of the birds in one day or they will be subjected to a stiff fine. The open season for rabbits is from November 10 to October 1 of the following year. The law provides that squirrels may be hunted from June 1 to October 1.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. Cures backache and irregularities that if neglected might result in Bright's disease or diabetes. A. G. Lukon & Co.

IS A BRUTAL SPORT

College President Says Football Is Much Like Bull Fighting.

DISCUSSES DEATH LIST

(American News Service)

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 9.—"Football is a brutal sport as bull fighting," declared President Rhoads of Rochester University today. In discussing the list of the season's casualties on the gridiron so far, Dr. Rhoads, pointing to the three cases of broken spines that have attracted so much attention—at Utica, Annapolis, and West Point—declared that there was no use for a game so vigorous as to cause the death of the participants, or their serious injury. He declared that if the rules cannot be so changed as to eliminate such accidents, the game should be abolished.

HUNT A NOTED MAN

(American News Service)

New York, Nov. 9.—The sea-going tug Dalzelline today cruised about the Atlantic off New York harbor, leading the search for Washington Hull, the noted architect, who last Wednesday left Long Island for a six hours cruise in his little sloop Commodore, and has not been seen since. Two other men were in the sloop, one of them being Trygv Wold, a sailor. She declared today that she would not believe her husband lost, but would wait twenty years for him without losing hope.

DEMURRER IS FILED

Henry U. Johnson, representing Father Mattingly, pastor of St. Mary's church and Bishop Chatard, bishop of the diocese, filed a demurrer in the circuit court this morning, in the case in which Martha Miller is seeking $10,000 damages, on the grounds that the complaint was not plain. Miss Miller was injured last February by a brick wall of the old Hibberd property falling on her. The city is also a party to the suit as a defendant.

THINK CHUPUVIC IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CRIMES

County Officials, as Result of Investigation, Believe the Man Committed Double Murder on Saturday.

ACCUSED MAN IS NOW UNLOCATED FUGITIVE

Joseph Dulic, the Boarding House Proprietor, Has Been Released From Jail on a $200 Recognition Bond.

After taking the testimony of about half a dozen witnesses, Coroner Bramkamp, Prosecuting Attorney Ladd and Sheriff Meredith have reached the conclusion that Joseph Chupuvic is guilty of the double murder at the Austrian camp, west of Centerville, early Saturday morning. In some manner Chupuvic learned that he was to be charged with the crime and made his escape before the officers had time to arrest him. His whereabouts are now unknown. A diligent search is being instituted for the man but thus far he has not been located. However the police are of the opinion that he is in hiding in Wayne county and will soon be found.

Dulic is Released.

Joseph Dulic, proprietor of the boarding house in which the double crime was committed and who was arrested for the murder, has been released on $200 recognition bond, furnished by Louis Wrede, the saloon keeper on South Sixth street. The authorities are all of the opinion now that Dulic had nothing whatever to do with the murder and took no part in the fight. While they believe that Rodi Redic was indirectly connected with the crime and engaged in the fight, the testimony of all of the witnesses is to the effect that Chupuvic struck the blows that resulted in the instantaneous deaths of the two foreigners. Owing to the fact that the lamp was knocked down, putting the light out just at the first of the conflict when two shots were fired at Sam Cracklin in the darkness, it is doubtful if the authorities will ever be able to ascertain who fired the revolver. It will be several days before the testimony of all of the witnesses will be completed.

Robert Simpson, who was hypnotized at a performance given in the theater here by Prof. Everton, of Newark, today lies dead in the Somerville hospital although the hypnotist is making frantic efforts to restore him to life. The hospital physicians, however, declare that Simpson, who was only sixteen years old, is dead, and not in a cataleptic state, and therefore can not be brought back to life.

JIM JEFFRIES IN FIGHTING FORM*A TARDY REWARD GIVEN A VETERAN

Government Pays Warren Shumard $13 for Services as Soldier.

FOUGHT MORGAN RAIDERS

HE WAS A MEMBER OF THE FAMOUS MILITARY ORGANIZATION KNOWN AS "SQUIRREL HUNTERS."—LOCAL RESIDENT.

Warren Shumard, residing at 905 North I street, has just been paid $13 by the government, for services rendered as a volunteer soldier to repel Morgan's raiders forty-seven years ago. He was a member of the troop known as the "squirrel hunters." Mr. Shumard has many pleasant remembrances of his connection with the regiment.

A Cincinnati account says of the payment of the "Squirrel Hunters" as follows:

Call for Volunteers.

Forty-seven years after they served as volunteer soldiers to protect Cincinnati from a threatened raid by Confederate troops, the "Squirrel Hunters" of Cincinnati have received their pay. In the mail received by a number of Cincinnatians were checks for $13, a month's pay for a private soldier in the United States army.

In 1862 Gen. Kirby Smith's raiders made a dash through Kentucky, and it was feared that they planned an attack on Cincinnati. Governor Todd of Ohio called for 60,000 volunteers to mobilize in Cincinnati, and men and boys with squirrel rifles and the old family fowling pieces trekked to the city in large numbers awaiting the approach of the expected foe. The Confederates got within a few miles of Covington, but turned aside, giving Cincinnati a wide berth.

"The finance committee made a partial report," continued Dr. Jones, "and so far as the investigation has gone has not found anything definitely wrong, but the outlook is bad. We have no idea of Lilley's whereabouts."

"Efforts were made a number of times to secure payment, but nothing was done until at the recent session of congress an appropriation was made giving each squirrel hunter a month's pay."

Miss Maud Pauline Lacey, who has been seriously ill with typhoid pneumonia for the past two weeks, is in such a serious condition that she has been removed to Reid Memorial hospital. Miss Lacey was so ill that the attending physician deemed it best not to inform her of her mother's death, about ten days ago.

Mrs. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H. Evans of Florida, O. D. Evans and Mrs. A. E. Jones, both of this city.

Although well advanced in years, Mrs. Evans is strong and hearty and her relatives believe that she will live many years yet.

She was the president of a woman's society which sent provisions, such as clothing and the like to the defenders of the union. She also recalls the strenuous period of 1849 when cholera was prevalent in and around Boston, at that time her home. She took an active part in the campaign to destroy this disease and nursed many cases.

Mr. Evans is the wife of the late Dr. D. S. Evans, of Boston, who was also a surgeon during the civil war.

To them were born six children, of whom three survive, including Dr. W. H.