

MARIAN COCK TO LECTURE TONIGHT

Well Known Traveler Will Speak on Sicily and the Greek Islands.

SHE SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A.

SLIDES SHOWN TO ILLUSTRATE HER LECTURE ARE HAND-PAINTED, THE WORK OF A PROMINENT ARTIST.

Miss Marian Cock will present her lecture, "Sicily and the Greek Islands" at the Y. M. C. A. this evening. Her slides, prepared by an artist under her direction, have an unusual charm of artistic value. They are not colored by a professional "colorist," but by Miss Alice Hunt, who accompanied Miss Cock and made the sketches on the ground, and from these she painted the slides.

Miss Cock handles her themes with rare grace, holding the attention of her audience by the naturalness and ease of her manner and the unvarying freshness and enthusiasm of each presentation.

A slight idea of the grandeur of this production might be gotten from the following synopsis of the lecture:

Sicily and Greek Islands.

Departure from Naples, Stromboli, Harbor of Palermo, with Mount Pellegrino. Pigskins of oil. Gay Sicilian car. Street scenes. S. Giovanni degli Eremiti. Sicily, not Venice, the storehouse of medieval mosaics. The Capella Palatina. Up the hill to Monreale. The cathedral and its cloisters. Cefalu. Straits of Messina. The ruined district before the disaster. Beautiful Taormina. Rock of Aetna. Scene of the Polyphemus myth. Syracuse, reflecting perhaps more history than any city in the world, with one exception. Theater. Galleries of Fort Euryelus. White road lined with prickly pears. The pathetic quarries. Ear of Dionysius. Sulphur Boats. "Evil Eye." Girgenti, "the most beautiful city of morals"—Pindar. Temples of Concord and Juno Lacinia. Old water carrier. A stormy voyage across the Ionian sea. The Aegean Islands. Delos, the sacred island of Greece. Wonderful Mediterranean colors. Naxos. Primitive agricultural methods. Melos, the home of the Aphrodite. Recent excavations in the island of Crete. Our ride donkey-back to ancient Knossos. Curious sights en route. Group of excavators. Palace of the Double Ax—the "Labyrinth." Corinthian canal. Site of old Corinth. Corfu, most beautiful of the Ionian Islands. More white roads. Old olive groves. Where is the "white-arm'd" Nausica, daughter of Alcinoos, king of the Phaeacians? Lo, the Princess passes!

This is a rare opportunity for those who appreciate a really artistic production and those at all interested in such things should be present at the Y. M. C. A. tonight.

SPECIAL ISSUE OUT

The football number of the Earlhamite, has just been issued by the Junior class of the college. The number contains a cut of the class of 1911 and also an excellent picture of the football squad. Earlham has just experienced one of the most brilliant football seasons in its career and much of the matter in the recent issue of the college paper deals with the record of the team. The number is ably edited and worthy of much praise.

Free Laxative For Babies

Just as a mother is careful about the food she gives a child, she should be careful about the kind of a laxative she gives it. Baby's little bowels. Not all remedies for this purpose, no matter how good they may be, are suited to a child.

You should especially avoid pills and tablets and powders for they are difficult to digest and children find it hard to swallow them. And purgatives and salts and such other laxatives are too violent for the young. Better give it a gentle though effective laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is pleasant to the taste and absolutely does not gripe. A fifty cent or one dollar bottle can be bought of any druggist, and if you give a small dose, as the directions call for, before you put the child to bed, or a small dose before breakfast, you will have a cheerful, happy child in a few hours.

This remedy has been sold for almost a quarter of a century and thousands of families know about it, but if you have never used it, and you would like to make a test of it before buying it in the regular way, send your name and address to the doctor for a free sample bottle. In this way, without expense, many mothers have learned of a way of curing children of the little ill of life, and thereby avoiding the graver diseases.

In the family of Martha Wheeler of Yorkville, S. C., and J. S. Bower of Jamestown, Colo., no other laxative but this is used. It is a remedy for all the family, strong enough to be effective on the most robust and mild enough so that women, children and old people, who especially need a gentle laxative, can use it. You will find nothing better for constipation, indigestion, sick headache, sour stomach, flatulency and such stomach, liver and bowel troubles than this Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Let it be your family remedy from today on and we assure you you will have a healthy household.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample, simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address to Dr. R. B. Caldwell, 1154 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The Burleigh Cash company will open a week's engagement at the Gennett theater next Monday night, when they will present the five act military play, "Winchester." Ladies will be free as usual Monday night and the daily ten cent matinees will be given starting on Tuesday.

"The Girl from U. S. A."
A large company of talented singers and clever players with one of the best equipped and attractive chorus organizations on the road, is promised in the performance of "The Girl from U. S. A.," which will be seen for the first time here at the Gennett tomorrow, matinee and night. This musical drama has a long list of successes to its credit this season and comes with a glowing reputation for its mirth producing qualities and strong situations. Its musical numbers are pronounced popular and tuneful by the press, and its production has been described as a noteworthy effort in scenic art.

Vaudeville at Gennett.
Tonight is the last night of the big vaudeville show which has made such a hit at the Gennett this week. On account of The Girl from the U. S. A. appearing there tomorrow, the vaudeville company will go to New Castle for Saturday. One of the funniest acts ever seen here is that of Gardner and Revere. Dick Gardner having a thoroughly spontaneous humor which keeps the entire audience in gales of laughter. Happy Jack Gardner has made another hit with his billboard song, and in fact there is not a dull moment in the entire evening.

THE SCRAP BOOK

THE TIMID MINER.

Two of His Checks Cashed, He Made Bold With a Third.

A mining man from Mexico came to New York to sell a mine. He had a good one and good introductions and went to one of the big hotels. Here he was presented to the manager and cashier and vouched for.

"You can get anything you want here," said his friend. "I have fixed it with everybody."

Next day the mining man came downstairs and timidly approached the cashier's window. "Bents all how much it costs to live here in New York," he said. "I can't turn around without it costing me something. Can I get some money here?"

"You can," said the cashier. "I am instructed to cash any check you may present."

The mining man wrote out a check for $30 and handed it in. The cashier smiled as he gave him his money.

Next day he came around again. "Son," he said to the cashier, "I am clean put out about the way I have to spend money here. Will you cash another check for me?"

"WILL YOU CASH ANOTHER CHECK FOR ME?"

He wrote a check for $50 and was given the cash. Next day he sallied up to the cashier again. He had sold his mine.

"Son," he said, "am I right in thinking you will cash any sort of a check for me?"

"Certainly," replied the cashier. "Let me have it."

"All right," said the Mexican miner. "cash that, for I'm in a hurry to get home."

And the cashier fell in a fit when he picked up the check. It was for $3,000,000.—Saturday Evening Post.

He Got the Rest.

A certain member of Lord Kitchener's staff in India who had been married a few months previously applied for sick leave, which was readily granted. A couple of days afterward Lord Kitchener happened to meet the wife of the officer. She thanked him profusely for allowing her husband to go to the hills and explained that she was now in the midst of packing up.

"But there is some mistake," said Kitchener. "When I gave Captain— permission to go to the hills it was so that he might have a rest, and I am going to see that he gets it. If you go his leave will be canceled."

Perseverance.

The tendency to persevere, to persist in spite of hindrances, discouragements and impossibilities is this that in all things distinguishes the strong soul from the weak.—Thomas Carlyle.

Needed Scratching.

They were having trouble in getting a jury to try a case in a county court. There had been a good deal of feeling aroused, and no one seemed particularly anxious to put himself on record for either side. One man hesitated a long time about stating the grounds on which he based his claim of exemption. Finally he said:

"Well, your honor, the truth of the matter is I have the itch!"

Got His Man.

Some years ago in Egypt General Hunter was at dinner with some friends when one of his orderlies entered the room and said there was a messenger outside anxious to see him.

General Hunter could not leave the table at that moment and told the orderly so.

"What shall I do with him, then, sir?" asked the orderly.

"Oh, knock him down!" said Hunter impatiently as he turned to his dinner. Five minutes later the man returned, bearing obvious marks of the fray. He saluted stiffly and said to the astonished general, "I had a bit of a job, sir, but I knocked him down at the finish."

Next Best.

A certain young minister in Philadelphia, recently ordained, is still very nervous, and sometimes his remarks do not convey exactly the meaning he intended. A few Sundays ago he rose, fumbled with the papers on his desk, blushed and then said:

"My friends, I—I am sorry to say that I have lost the notes for my sermon, and I therefore cannot deliver it. I will have to do the next best thing and read a few chapters from the Bible."

Wanting In Grit.

At one of the fashionable seaside resorts on a beautiful evening last summer a handsome couple promenaded the beach until they were tired and then threw themselves on the sand to rest. The young woman watched the waves, while the young man toyed with the moonlit sand, tossing it from hand to hand.

"Reginald, dear, you pucker up your lips just then as if you were going to kiss me," said the beautiful creature languorously as she glanced at her companion.

"I intended to," replied Reginald hesitatingly, "but I seem to have got some sand in my mouth."

"For heaven's sake, swallow it," exclaimed the young lady. "You need it badly in your system!"

It Pays to Smile.

It pays to smile. Face and laugh our troubles down. For all our little trials wait. Our laughter or our frown. Beneath the mask of a smile. Our doubts will fade away. As melts the frost in early spring. Beneath the sunny ray. It pays to make a worthy cause. By making it our own. To give the current of our lives. A true and noble tone. It pays to comfort heavy hearts. Oppressed with dull despair. And leave in sorrow darkened lines. A gleam of brightness there. —Fannie E. Emmis.

A Bridal Tour.

At a fashionable wedding in a southern city the contracting parties were a wealthy widower and a handsome young lady, and a faithful old servant who had lived with the first wife all her married life was reporting the festivities confidentially the next morning to a neighbor.

When she finished a fellow servant asked, "Is he going to take a bridal tour?"

The old woman looked startled and then, glancing around to see that no one was near, whispered, "Well, I don't know yet he will take a bride to her if she gets cantankerous, but he sure did take a strap to the other one."

A Tragedy at the Parsonage.

A present of a pair of chickens to a country parsonage where there were a large family and a small income was an event, and the youngest two children (who were usually put to bed with a simple meal) were promised a share in the family treat; but, unfortunately, two neighboring ministers dropped in, and the children's mother had to compromise with the little people. A promise of candy pacified them to wait until the older people were through.

At the table the chicken was fast disappearing when the door which had been suspiciously creaking for some time, was flung wide open. Two faces glared at the visitors, while two childish voices shouted in unison: "Go ahead; that's right! Eat it all up, hogs!"

Wonderful.

A German university doctor, desiring to see a bird catcher exercise his employment, accompanied him to the field. As soon as he saw the birds he hallooed in Latin:

"There they are!"

The birds took the alarm. The sportsman, indignant at the absurdity of the professor, told him of it in very plain terms.

"My good friend," exclaimed the doctor in great astonishment, "who would have imagined that birds would understand Latin?"

USE TUBERCULINE ALL OVER STATE

State Veterinarian Has Submitted an Interesting Report on Matter.

8,720 COWS WERE TESTED

IN INDIANA'S NORTHERN COUNTIES THE PERCENTAGE OF REACTING ANIMALS WAS 8.6, LOWER THAN EXPECTED.

(Palladium Special)

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 26.—Dr. A. W. Bittling, state veterinarian, has a very interesting article in the Monthly Bulletin of the State Board of Health on the subject of testing cows for tuberculosis. The article says:

Last year nearly 13,000 cows were tested for tuberculosis in this state. Official tests were made on 8,720 head in Lake, Porter and adjoining counties. Ft. Wayne tested nearly 1,300 head, 1,000 other official tests were made in various places and the remainder were conducted in private practice. The 8,720 cows in the northwest section were divided into 500 herds and 757 reacting animals were found in 298 herds. The percentage of reacting animals was 8.6, or lower than might have been expected, but the percentage of infected herds, 48 per cent., was very high. At Fort Wayne only 17 per cent. of the herds were found to be infected, but 10 per cent. reacted. This probably more nearly represents the conditions found throughout the state.

The tests in the northwest section of the state have a special value in that they include nearly the entire bovine population of that section. In 187 herds, or one-third of those tested, there were only one or two reacting cows, a total of 245 head, or just one-third of the entire number of reactors. These herds could have been freed from disease by sale or slaughter at little sacrifice to the owners, and instead of only 52 per cent. of the herds being free it could be easily increased to 85 per cent. The first year the 29 herds having the highest number of reactors had 282 diseased cows or more than the 185 herds. These highly infected herds had been kept together for a long time or had been made up to a large extent from purchases at the stockyards. They serve to show what may be expected to occur in the other herds unless some measures are taken to eliminate the infection.

The last locality at which testing was done, out of 137 cows tested, 257 reacted, 111 were slaughtered and 20 condemned as unfit for food. An even more startling record than this was found. A man took 25 hogs to market, and upon slaughter and federal inspection 23 were found to be diseased with incipient tuberculosis. Four were condemned as unfit for food. An inspection of the premises was made and suspicious looking stock killed and well developed lesions of tuberculosis were found. Seven head of cattle were tested and 19 hogs, 1 of the cattle and 5 of the hogs reacted. The family cow, two of the hogs and some apparently sick shoats were slaughtered and all had clear cases of the disease. At this time there were 25 head of cattle and 200 hogs on the farm. Later 104 of the hogs were unlawfully sent out of the state, and upon inspection the following record is obtained: One packer bought 132 head and 130 were diseased, 61 being condemned; another packer bought one and it was condemned; 15 head were reshipped to one point and 8 condemned, and 16 became mixed with another lot and the record lost. Later 13 head of cattle were taken to market or slaughter, 3 were killed and found to be diseased and the butcher refused to kill the remainder. The 10 remaining head and one other were then shipped to another point and on post-mortem, 6 were found to be diseased. Still later other cattle were shipped, 7 of which were found to be diseased and 4 were condemned. The inspector visiting the premises reported that the chickens were diseased; the owner has died since the trouble began and the statement is given that the cause was "throat trouble." There are still other chapters to be added to this record.

One of the results of the testing during the past year has been to develop a good economical system. The method of taking temperatures for a period of forty-eight hours, limited the work to small numbers and made the cost amount to from one to three dollars per head. It was found that the work can be done in one day, and that the cost need not exceed 30 cents per head. Two men can test between 200 and 250 head per week. Upon this basis, a city the size of Lafayette could test all the herds furnishing its milk supply in a few weeks and at a cost not to exceed $300.

The law enacted by the last legislature provides that any dairyman may have his herd tested at actual cost. In the event diseased cattle are found he has three options: 1st. To prepare the affected animal or animals for market and to sell subject to post-mortem examination. The federal rules and regulations shall govern the inspection. If the animal passes as fit for food he receives its market value; if it fails to pass, he can recover only the value of the hide, and body as fertilizer. 2d. He can retain his cows for dairy purposes provided the milk be pasteurized in a manner approved by the State Board of Health. No animal showing any physical evidence of disease can be used in such manner. 3rd. He may retain valuable breeding stock for breeding purposes under conditions approved by the state veterinarian. The state makes no compensation for diseased animals except when condemned by the state veterinarian. In the case of tuberculosis, he must quarantine and give the owner a choice of one of the three options.

Indiana has a good law, much better than most states. By the enactment of local ordinances, most of the cities could have a tested milk supply in a very short time. The season in which to do the work is at hand, and will continue until about April 1.

FEZ A MERCHANT OF FEZ.

Description of His Rise and His Ignominious Fall.

The merchants of Fez are to be found all over Morocco. In due course All Mahmoud launches out into business on a large scale. He prospers exceedingly and presently purchases a black female slave to assist his wife in her duties. All Mahmoud takes a house in the Medina quarter of Fez, overlooking the pleasant olive groves. In course of time he buys two more slaves and is fairly set up as a householder.

When his first daughter is born there is great rejoicing. The baby is immediately staid all over its little body with henna and then smeared liberally with butter and wrapped in woolen cloths. On the seventh day these are removed, and the child is washed for the first time. When the girl has reached her first year her head is shaved, leaving a little tuft by which Mohammed could catch her up to heaven if he were so disposed. In her seventh year her hair has grown long again. She is then veiled, and her proud father sets about looking for a husband for her. It is still the custom to betroth children from infancy.

All Mahmoud prospers, and, save for a few domestic troubles, his life runs smoothly. In the evenings All will sit and smoke in the bosom of his family. On Thursdays and Saturdays he visits his friends. They pass the time in simple games of cards or in listening to the weird stories of itinerant musicians. Our merchant gets stout as he approaches middle age. One day his world troubles about him. Such is the uncertainty of fate in Morocco.

He was serving in his shop when the customer suddenly raised his voice and cried out that he was getting false weight. The accusation was terrible, and All vehemently protested his innocence. It was an arranged charge by an enemy of the merchant, who philosophically bowed his head with the saying: "Kismet! Mine enemy has found me, and the serpent requires milk." The arbitrators are called, and, having been bribed previously, they find Mahmoud guilty and sentence him to the usual punishment meted out to givers of false weights. He is dragged to the southern wall of the city, to a place where a tall gibbet is erected. By the irony of fate it is within sight of his own house. A rope is made fast to his right wrist and hoisted up until his toes can just touch the ground. Here he is left till sunset. The idlers jibe at him, and the gamblers of the quarter peep him with stones and refuse. At sundown his friends carry him home, a poor, bruised and senseless body. Broken and disgraced, thus ended his career as a respectable merchant.—Morocco Cor. London Graphic.

Oil Bathing.

Oil bathing is a regular institution among the Hindus. An experienced masseur rubs the oil on his patrons, friends or relatives generally once a week. And it is a fact that moles, warts and such faults of the surface of the skin are very rare among them. The newborn infant gets the oil bath daily for forty days. The intervals are then gradually lengthened, but he will be considered a very naughty boy who during his school days tries to shirk the oil bath at least once a week. As a youngster he yells all the time he is being bathed. Perhaps it is good for his lungs. Anyhow, nobody thinks of finding fault with the nurse for the hallooing of her charge, and generally speaking it may be said that Indians have better lungs and better pectorals as compared to the body weight than the Europeans, and the feminine bust is decidedly fuller and more perfect.—C. N. Saidanah in Lancet.

How to Carry Books.

The Philadelphia free library permits patrons to take out six books at a time during certain months.

"If you are not going to wrap those books up let me show you how to carry them," said one of the assistants at the library recently.

Then the young woman slipped a cover of one book inside of a cover of one she placed on the top of it, building up a pile of six books in this fashion, and the man addressed, who was carrying the volumes home to please his wife, the reader of the family, found his difficulties were much lessened.—Philadelphia Press.

Too Much Like Work.

The happy mother of a seven-months-old baby, whose chief business seems to be making a noise in the world, was paying her sister a visit, and the other evening young Master Harry, aged seven years, was delegated to care for the baby while his elders were at dinner. So he wheeled it back and forth, forth and back, the length of the library, giving vent to his sentiments by singing, much to the amusement of the family:

"Gee whiz, I'm glad I'm free! No wedding bells for me!"

—Ladies' Home Journal.

An Expensive Production. "You were very lavish with the snowstorm in the third act." "Yes," explained the manager. "I bought that snow when white paper was not so high as it is now."—Kansas City Journal.

Domestic Note.

"Give the devil his due," he said. "I'm willing to," she snapped, "but you're in pretty good health, and he'll have to wait."—Atlanta Constitution.

Life without liberty is joyless, but life without joy may be great. The greatness of life is sacrifice.—Ouida.

A Carlyle Retort.

An empty headed duke once said to Thomas Carlyle at a dinner:

"The British people, sir, can afford to laugh at theories."

Carlyle, scowling, replied:

"The French nobility of a hundred years ago thought that they could afford to laugh at theorists too. But a man came and wrote a book called 'The Social Contract.' This man was Jean Jacques Rousseau, and his book was a theory and nothing but a theory. The nobles could laugh at his theory, but their skins went to bind the second edition of the book."
