

PRESIDENT SEHI RESENTS ATTACK

Switchmen's Charge Against Trainmen Brotherhood
Unfair, He Says.

MAKES STRONG COMEBACK

HEAD OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION
SAYS THAT THE SWITCHMEN
ARE KNOWN TO RAILROADERS
AS TROUBLE MAKERS.

In regard to the bitter attack made on the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen by the Switchmen's union, which is contemplating a strike at Chicago, Charles A. Sehi, president of the local Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, stated that the charge that the Brotherhood was not a labor union because of the fact that they ordered their men back to work, was unjust and untrue. Mr. Sehi declared that the Switchmen's union was a separate and distinct organization and had nothing whatever to do with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, or any of the other different organizations.

Mr. Sehi declared that the Switchmen as a union in the larger cities were not looked upon with favor by the railroad brotherhoods.

Known As "Snakes."
He stated that they had earned the name of "snakes" from the emblem which they wore, which is a large capital "S." He stated that in the larger cities the switchmen were called "wrigglers" and had earned a bad reputation for continually causing trouble in railroad circles and stirring up strife and a general feeling of unrest and discontent.

When asked if the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen or any of the other brotherhoods would join the switchmen in their strike, Mr. Sehi stated that he was of the opinion that there was very little likelihood of any such occurrence taking place. He asserted that he thought the switchmen would be alone in the strike. Mr. Sehi stated that President Hawley of the Switchmen's union was largely responsible for the trouble and seemed to be waging the whole campaign. "Everything is Hawley with the switchmen," declared Mr. Sehi, "and there lies the seat of the whole trouble." Mr. Sehi asserted that members of the Switchmen's union took the places of other men on strike and that they had gained a bad reputation for "scabbing."

ASKED LARGER FINE

Colored Man Pretends Intoxication to Get Long Jail Sentence.

WILL MISS XMAS DINNER

Frank "Snooks" Murray, colored and Tom Jurgens, white, appeared in the city court this afternoon in answer to the charge of public intoxication.

When "Snooks" saw Patrolman Longman coming down Main street last evening, he immediately began to stagger until he took up the whole sidewalk. The result was that his fondest hope was realized—he was pinched. Murray straightened up wonderfully after being arrested and was able to walk unaided to the lock-up, which he entered willingly with a broad grin on his shining black countenance. The negro was fined $5 and costs and was very much dissatisfied, because his fine was not larger. He said that fifteen days in jail would get him out four days before Christmas and he would just miss a free Christmas dinner of turkey and all the trimmings. His efforts to induce Judge Converse to increase the fine proved futile, however.

Shortly after noon today Tom Jurgens, another old offender, staggered into police headquarters and declaring that he was drunk, asked to be locked up. Chief of Police Stauch endeavored to convince the man that he was not intoxicated and to move on, but Jurgens wouldn't listen to such a procedure. His wish was gratified and he was soon asleep on the stone floor of the city jail. When searched Jurgens's pockets were found filled with raw meat and fish hooks. He was not arraigned today.

A Lively Dance.

There was a grand ball progressing, and Mary and Jane were watching behind the door.
"Look at the colonel dancin' the polka," exclaimed the cook in admiration.
"An' is that dancin' the polka?" cried Jane in astonishment. "Sure, Oi thought he had a hole in his pocket an' was tryin' to shake a shillin' down his leg!"—London Telegraph.

COURT TO DECIDE ON A ROAD CASE

Agreement Made to Submit the Claim of Contractor Burke to Judge Fox.

CLAIM AMOUNTS TO $3,000

THE AUDITOR AND TREASURER WOULD NOT ACT IN THE MATTER UNTIL THE CIRCUIT COURT HAD MADE A RULING.

At the meeting of the county commissioners this morning it was decided not to allow the claim of H. F. Burke, contractor for the Washington township three mile gravel road, which amounts to $3,099.16. It was instead agreed between John F. Robbins, attorney for the county, and Wilfred Jessup, representing Burke, that the latter institute mandamus proceedings against the county commissioners, and allow Judge Fox to decide what should be done.

The county auditor and treasurer had both announced that they would not do their part in the payment of Burke, under the circumstances. The law under which the road was constructed, has been declared invalid by the Indiana supreme court, and these two officials did not wish to pay out money under this decision.

Mr. Robbins said that as the road has been accepted, Mr. Burke is entitled to his money and will undoubtedly get it. The county commissioners are following the same action as did the Delaware county commissioners, a week or so ago when a similar case was considered.

NAME ROAD VIEWERS.

Road viewers were appointed today by the county commissioners. Acting on a petition of Abington township residents for a new road, the commissioners appointed John L. Dyne, Caleb Harvey, and Andrew Trem to act as viewers. Property holders in Green township also want a new road and the following persons will act as viewers: Oliver Hatfield, Dan Harris, Oliver Cook.

SUIT ON ACCOUNT.

Suit was filed in the court today by the Kemper Thomas Co., against the Mount Chemical Co., on account, demand, $75.

DODDRIDGE TRIAL ON.
