

OIL MAGNATE TO DISTRIBUTE ALL SURPLUS WEALTH

Outlet for Rockefeller's Vast Wealth to Be Located at Washington if His Bill Is Acted Upon.

WANTS TO BE RIVAL OF ANDREW CARNEGIE

Institution to Be Incorporated Seeks to Advance Civilization and for Progress of Americans.

Washington, March 3.—Steps were taken yesterday to incorporate the Rockefeller Foundation in the District of Columbia. A bill for this purpose was introduced by Senator Gallinger and was referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

The purpose of the foundation is to provide a general organization to conduct philanthropic work along all lines.

It is understood that the foundation will be endowed largely by John D. Rockefeller, and that he takes this means to dispose of a large part of his enormous wealth.

The incorporators named in the bill are John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Fred T. Gates, Starr J. Murphy and Charles O. Heydt. These incorporators are authorized to select associates, not to exceed a total of 25, and it is provided that there shall not be at any time less than five.

To Advance Civilization.

The Rockefeller foundation, according to the bill, is organized to promote the well being and advance the civilization of the people of the United States and its possessions in foreign lands, and for the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge for the prevention and relief of suffering and promotion of any and all of the elements of human knowledge.

It was said by Senator Gallinger that Mr. Rockefeller already had given away $32,000,000, and that he was seeking a method of disposing of his fortune that would benefit mankind.

The foundation is organized on lines similar to the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

As in the case of the latter institution, the Rockefeller Foundation will be authorized to receive and dispense gifts of money other than those obtained from the original endowment, the amount of which has not been fixed.

Intends to Beat 'Em All.

When asked regarding the bill, Senator Gallinger said:

"I am not authorized to speak for Mr. Rockefeller, but there is no doubt that Mr. Rockefeller intends to give away his money on a scale greater than any other living man.

"I am not acquainted with all the details of Mr. Rockefeller's plan, but it is expected that Washington will be made the headquarters."

The scope of the foundation is very broad, although embraced in a very short section of the bill. This section reads:

"That the object of the said incorporation shall be to promote the well-being and to advance the civilization of the peoples of the United States and its territories and possessions of foreign lands in the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge; in the prevention and relief of suffering, and in the promotion of any and all of the elements of human progress."

Still, There's Enough.

Star J. Murphy, one of the incorporators named in the bill, says he does not yet know what endowment the foundation will have.

"The bill introduced today," said Mr. Murphy, "is intended to broaden the scope of Mr. Rockefeller's philanthropies, and is almost identical in form with the act of congress of 1903, under which the Rockefeller educational fund was authorized.

"The bill makes it possible for Mr. Rockefeller to go into any work of philanthropy in the world, whereas the first endowment was specifically limited.

"The fact that the incorporators in both instances are almost identical simply means that Mr. Rockefeller believes their experience will be of benefit in future work."

Estimates of Mr. Rockefeller's past benefactions and present fortune very largely. It is conceded that in charity he has but one leader—Andrew Carnegie—and the best opinion is that Mr. Rockefeller has given away something like $131,000,000, as against $162,000,000 for Mr. Carnegie.

Rivalry Is Friendly.

The rivalry between Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Carnegie in getting rid of their riches has been of the most friendly nature. When Mr. Carnegie gave $6,000,000 to Pittsburgh charities Mr. Rockefeller telegraphed him:

"You have my best wishes in all your grand efforts to help your fellow man. I hope and trust that our prosperous men—the country over will be stimulated to emulate your noble example. I believe that until good would result therefrom."

Mr. Carnegie replied as follows:

"Many thanks, fellow worker in the task of distributing surplus wealth for the good of others. I clasp your hand. Your congratulations are highly valued."

Bald Headed Row

Early Piety Not Always the Cause of Baldness.

In Paris there lived a great physician of the world wide known who proved to the world that falling hair is caused by microbes.

Dr. Eagerbund proved that baldness is directly due to these pernicious and persistent microbes. He proved to every physician on earth that these invisible yet voracious little devils dug and burrowed into the hair root and finally devoured the hair bulb. This of course destroyed the vitality of the hair which fell out and caused thinning of the hair and finally baldness.

Inasmuch as it is an accepted fact that baldness, falling hair and dandruff are caused by a germ, the only way to stand to reason that the only way to prevent such calamities is to kill the germs?

And doesn't it stand to reason that the only way to kill these germs is to use Parisian Sage, which L. H. Flie has much faith in that he guarantees it to cure dandruff, falling hair and itchy scalp in two weeks, or money back.

Parisian Sage is a delightful hair tonic and is pleasant to use. It is not sticky or greasy, and contains only those ingredients that will surely benefit.

It is now sold by druggists all over America, and by L. H. Flie for 50 cents a large bottle. It is used extensively by women who desire luxuriant hair with a radiant luster. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.

AN ENGLISH GIRL TALKS OF HORSES

Miss Ethel Money, a Noted Whip, Lectures Before Wealthy Women.

CHECK REIN VERY CRUEL

TO GOTHAM'S SWELLEST DAMES THE YOUNG WOMAN TELLS HOW THE STABLE SHOULD BE PROPERLY KEPT.

New York, March 3.—Miss Ethel Money, the English whip, granddaughter of the late Lord Gainsborough, delivered the first of her lectures upon "The Horse," at the Gainsborough studios, 222 West Fifty-ninth street. An audience, mostly wealthy women, listened with interest to her discussion of the proper care of fine horses and their stables, etc.

Miss Money said that in England riding and driving were as much a part of the English girl's education as French.

"A great deal is said about vivisection," she said, "but to my mind as great cruelty goes on under our eyes sometimes in our stables as in the laboratory of the scientist. I speak of the check rein here because I hope that while I am talking to you there are no horses standing outside suffering with this to-ture."

Stable Requirements.

"There are three important necessities in the stable: Light, air and water. Dark stables injure the eyesight of animals and if they get in the habit of shying by not seeing objects clearly it is hard to break them of it. There should be an abundance of fresh air, though it should not be allowed to blow on the horses. Sunshine is as necessary as light and air. The temperature of the stable should be about 60 or 65 degrees—never hotter. There is not a shadow of excuse for dirt in the stable," Miss Money said. "Not a straw should be out of place. Put your hay racks in natural positions and not over the horse's head."

"For beds, sawdust leaves no odor. Horses love it. When I am near a mull I always get it if possible. Generally the expense is small, and in some instances the lumber man is glad to have you haul it away without cost. If your horse has come in wet and is allowed to lie down and roll in sawdust, he gets up half dry. A special room for him to roll in is not a bad idea—but it does no good to spread the sawdust over the floor two inches deep. It should be two feet deep.

"A lump of rock salt should be in the manger.

Use a Long Rope.

The rope to which you tie the horse in his stall should be long and run through a ring with a weight on the end heavy enough to keep it out of his way. Then, if he wants to scratch in the night, he can do it, or he can lie down in comfort.

"I remember one stable where I was called to look at a horse that seemed to be troubled in some way. After the groom had gone out I carefully looked at the halter and found that the horse could not get his head within three feet of the ground when he lay down. You will notice that when a horse lies down outdoors he first carefully smells of the ground, and if he cannot get his head down he will not lie down, for fear of strangling. This is true of the horse in the stable, too. Have your rope long enough so he can lie down. Sometimes lazy grooms do not want their horses to lie down for fear they will get dirty in the night.

"The horse is a most particular creature about his water. He will go without water rather than drink out of a dish that is not clean. Water should be given to horses—all they want, and not one pall a day. What is one pall to a horse? No more, on a hot day, than a teacup to you when you feel you'd like to drink the whole jugful. Always have two pails for water and use them for nothing else. In winter never let it be colder than 55 degrees."

Miss Money ended by saddling the horse and "bringing it around to the front door."

A SETTLEMENT MADE

Damage Suit Against Local Baking Company Settled Out of Court.

CASE WAS A PECULIAR ONE

Settlement out of court was made today in favor of James Strate, who last fall was seriously burned while working in a man hole back of the Richmond Baking company, South Fifth street, and this morning Mr. Strate's damage suit for $3,000 for personal injuries was dismissed from the circuit court at the defendant's costs. The settlement was made by the Baking company.

The Baking company was accustomed to turning steam into the man hole after all baking had been completed. On the day of the accident, the company was unaware of the plaintiff's presence in the hole. It was several minutes before he was able to attract attention and have the steam turned off. He was taken out of the man hole in a very serious condition and his life was dispensed of for a few days, but he rapidly recovered at Reid Memorial hospital.

Mr. Strate's attorney refused to state the amount of damage which his client settled for.
