

CHINESE RIOTING WITH GREAT FURY

Reported Today Three Missions in Human Province Are Demolished.

REFUGEES BOARD A SHIP

BUT IT IS FEARED BRITISH GUNBOATS SENT TO RESCUE THEM WILL NOT ARRIVE IN TIME TO SAVE LIVES.

(American News Service)

Hankow, China, April 16.—Rioting at Chang-Sha, province of Hunan, where three missions have been demolished, continued with fresh fury today, according to advices received here. With all the foreigners refugees on a merchant in the Ssang river, their position is precarious. As it is feared that the British gun boats dispatched to their aid will not arrive in time to be of material service, because of the shallowness of the river. Advices received here say that the draft of the gunboat Thistle, the first ordered to the scene, is greater than the river's depth at many points.

The local authorities are helpless in the face of the rioters. The police protection has proved inadequate and the Chinese officials are reported to be utterly dismayed.

Whites to Give Battle.

No confirmation of the report that the governor was injured when his Yamen, in which the foreigners had taken refuge, was destroyed, has been received here. It is said, however, that the treasurer is acting in the governor's place.

The whites, including the force of the British consulate and of the maritime customs officers, who were driven to flee the city for the haven of the merchant vessel, have prepared the ship for a battle, according to reports reaching here today. It is not believed, however, that the fury of the mob would lead it to attack the larger craft in light river ships.

Although general reports say that there was no fatality in the first disorders, the Chinese authorities today began a thorough search of the ruins of the Yamen for bodies.

News of the rioting has spread throughout the surrounding country, and the whole province of Hunan is agitated. Small outbreaks have already occurred in villages near Chang-Sha and it is feared the trouble will increase in gravity.

The question how now resolved itself into the ability of the British gunboats dispatched from Shanghai to reach Chang-Sha and to overawe the mob.

DEDICATION FOR NEW HOSE HOUSE

West Side People Plan to Hold Jollification Meeting For Event.

A NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

FOR THE WEST SECTION OF THE CITY IS ALSO DESIRED AND PEOPLE THINK NOW IS THE TIME TO PURCHASE.

The West Side Improvement association held a meeting last evening and decided to hold a banquet on other form of jollification meeting at the dedication of the new hose house in West Richmond, which will be completed about June 1. The placing of the new hose house on the west side was directly due to the efforts of members of the association who waged a campaign for better fire protection for some time before they were successful in accomplishing their object.

The west siders believe that the school board should buy property in West Richmond for the location of a new school building now before the price of land advances any more. Within the past few years it is said, the price of lots in that section of the city has advanced steadily. A resolution favoring the purchase of lots has been prepared and will be presented to the school board soon. It is said that a new school building will be needed on the west side before long and the suggestion will be made to the board that the lots be purchased before they become too expensive.

The association heartily indorses the ordinance controlling the fares charged by cab drivers and hackmen on the west side, which will come up for third reading at the meeting of the city council next Monday night. The ordinance fixing the vehicle tax which will be introduced soon, is also favored by the association.

An endeavor will be made by members of the association to establish a better system of tax collection and especially the delinquent tax on personal property. It is alleged that the method employed at present is very unsatisfactory.

ESTATE TO SISTER.

Miss Elizabeth L. Horney, for several years a teacher in the public schools, who died on January 12, wills all of her property, both personal and real, to her sister, Miss Martha Horney. David L. Martin is named as executor of the will.

ONE CLUE IS FOUND

It Is Thought Trace of Rufus Crist, Missing Man, Is Discovered.

WAS SEEN AT A GROCERY

It is believed that Rufus Crist, the man who mysteriously disappeared Thursday evening and for whom the police and relatives of the man have been making a diligent search, has been located. It is said that he was seen at Brinker's grocery, at the corner of South Seventh and C streets, this morning and that section of the city is being scoured by the police this afternoon in the hopes of ascertaining his whereabouts.

The man's absence has caused his relatives considerable apprehension. It is thought that he is mentally unbalanced. Crist is employed by the city street department and resides at 1230 North F street. He worked as usual Thursday, but failed to return home in the evening. A report that a man was seen running around the old Sevastopol school house at Northwest Fifth and School streets, early in the afternoon with nothing but his coat and a hat on. He caused considerable excitement in that neighborhood and a patrolman was dispatched to the place. However, the man had disappeared before the arrival of the officer. It was thought that this man might have been Crist, but his description did not correspond with that of the missing man.

ODD STORY TOLD BY OLD SOLDIER

Forced Into the Confederate Army Against His Strong Protests.

IS REPUDIATED BY UNION

THIS VETERAN, JAMES CLARKE, DIED RECENTLY AT THE INFIRMARY AT LOGANSPOUT—A HOMELESS OUTCAST.

Logansport, Ind., April 16.—James Clarke, better known as Dad Clarke, who died at the county infirmary this week, had served four years in the civil war, but was unable to get into the soldiers' home in the north or those maintained in the south for veterans of the Confederate army. His history is one of the most unusual in the annals of the war. His ambition was to get into the soldiers' home at Marion, but his repeated efforts were futile, and finally in despair he turned to the county poor farm, and there he had been for three years, bemoaning the fate that made him a man without a home.

Clarke, at the outbreak of the civil war, was traveling through the south with a number of Irish peddlers. The majority of these peddlers lived in Logansport, Marion, Anderson and other nearby Indiana cities. With wagons and packs they traveled throughout the south selling merchandise of all kinds.

Pressed into Confederate Service. The day war was declared thirteen of the Irish peddlers were in Jackson, Miss. Excitement was high there, and Clarke and his companions were as enthusiastic as the natives, only for a different cause. They hastily planned to return to Indiana to enlist and go to the front. But before they could leave they were taken into custody, were pressed into the Confederate ranks and were compelled to fight against brothers and friends in the northern army.

For two years they marched, fought and lived with the Confederates, ever watchful for a chance to escape. So far all had escaped death and injury. But during one battle, when the two lines were only a few hundred feet apart, the little band of northerners planned a dash for liberty. At a given signal they broke for the Yankee lines. But they had not gone very far before a hundred Confederate guns were turned on them. Twelve fell dead to the ground, and Clarke, the only survivor, fell to escape the reign of lead.

Saved from Impalement. A burly sergeant was about to impale him with a bayonet when a colonel thrust the sergeant aside, ordered Clarke back to the line and made him again take up the fight against the Yankees.

Soon after this Clarke was transferred to Andersonville prison, where he did guard duty for three months under Captain Wirz. Compelled to shoot at any prisoner who stepped across the dead line, Clarke always shot wide of the mark. Later when he was sent to the front again, the company to which he was assigned was captured in battle by the Union forces and the prisoners were sent to the northern prison near Detroit. Clarke protested that he was a Yankee and had been pressed into service, but none would believe his story. However, on the third day of his imprisonment he met and was recognized by his half-brother, Joe Murphy, who was on guard duty. Murphy had heard of the fate of Clarke and the other Irish peddlers, and when he explained the circumstances Clarke was paroled and sent back to Logansport.

Several years ago, he spent his spare time building a coffin. He was very enthusiastic over the project and was buried in it.

NEW LOCAL PLANT

TO BE A FINE ONE

L. M. Fleish Will Model Local Concern After the One at Piqua, Ohio.

WHAT PIQUA PAPER SAYS

STATES THAT IT IS TO BE REGRETTED THAT THE NEW CONCERN CANNOT BE LOCATED THERE—GIRLS SCARCE.

A Piqua paper, commenting on the probability of L. M. Fleish of that city locating a factory in Richmond says: It is announced in the Richmond, Ind., newspapers that L. M. Fleish and his associates have decided to locate a plant there for the manufacture of underwear. Mr. Fleish when asked about the matter today, said:

"Yes it is true, that we have decided to establish another underwear plant, but we have not positively determined upon Richmond. We found a very desirable location there and made a cash offer for the site. In the event it is accepted we will build there, otherwise we will probably go to Dayton, O."

Mr. Fleish further stated that Gen. W. P. Orr, Abe Louis, E. A. Todd and H. E. Sims would be associated with him in the new enterprise, and that as soon as a location was positively decided upon that they would at once begin active building operations. It is the intention to make it an entirely separate corporation from that of the Atlas Underwear company, although a similar line of goods, including a few specialties, will be made by them, and both companies will cater to the same trade.

The new plant will be built on similar lines to that of the Atlas, which is conceded to be the finest underwear plant in the world, but in some respects will have marked improvements. It will consist of five floors, four stories and a full basement, will be built of pressed brick, have reinforced concrete floors, and will be fire proof. The motive power will be electricity, and in all respects the new plant will be as complete as modern science can make it.

It is to be regretted that this new enterprise cannot be secured for Piqua, but female help is already fully employed here, and it was deemed best to locate elsewhere on account of this. Richmond with a population but little more than Piqua, has but one-fifth as many women employed.

SUIT ON POLICY TO GET HEARING

Mrs. Von Pein Seeks to Recover $2,500 From an Insurance Company.

SUED THREE YEARS AGO

The suit of Lena Von Pein, widow of Fred Von Pein against the American Central Life Insurance company, to recover $2,500 on a policy, which was filed in the Marion county circuit court, at Indianapolis, during the summer of 1907, will be set for trial soon, according to word received by Wilfred Jessup, attorney for the defendant.

The late Fred Von Pein committed suicide by shooting himself in the head on April 4, 1907, in the cow shed to the rear of his home, 715 South J street. He carried a large amount of insurance; it is said, but the American Central Life Insurance company contested the payment of its policy because it claimed to have had a suicidal clause in its policy.

A TRACTION CAR FALLS IN CREEK

D. and W. Limited Had a Very Unusual Accident at West Alexandria.

THOSE ABOARD NOT HURT

CAR PLOWED UP RIGHT OF WAY FOR CONSIDERABLE DISTANCE BEFORE IT TOOK ITS HURDLE INTO STREAM.

(Palladium Special)

Easton, O., April 16.—While running down a steep grade, just east of West Alexandria, the brakes on the limited Dayton and Western car, leaving Dayton at 10 o'clock last night refused to work, the rear trucks jumped the track and the big car toppled down a 25 foot embankment into Twin creek. The interurban was partially submerged in the water and the five passengers motorman and conductor had an exciting time for a few minutes.

No one was injured. The motorman broke the glass in the vestibule of his apartment after the car had landed in the creek and had to wade out to dry land. Fortunately the passengers were all men and did not object to wading through the stream. The car was badly damaged and will be repaired at considerable expense. The interurban was running at the rate of about 40 miles an hour when the rear trucks left the track. The right of way was ploughed up for a distance of several hundred feet which considerably diminished the speed before it jumped off the embankment.

CENSUS WORK HARD

The census enumerators who started their work yesterday, found the public to possess very little knowledge of the purpose and intent of the collection of statistics. Nearly every one visited was unable to answer all the questions which Uncle Sam is asking his citizens. The enumerators who have sought the job because they believed it would be easy work, say they have profited by reason of their own experience in the matter.

RESTRAINING ORDER

On petition of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern Traction company, a temporary restraining order has been issued by Judge Fox of the circuit court, preventing Simeon Crockett and Charles Gilbert of Cambridge City, from removing a large building now located on Center street. The final hearing in the matter will be on April 20.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that the building is so large that it would be necessary for the trolley wire to be cut in crossing the railway company's tracks. This, it is alleged would be an irreparable damage to the plaintiff's line.

PIONEER AVIATOR

HAS PASSED AWAY

Remarkable Parisian Character Dies Recently at a Ripe Old Age.

HIS REMARKABLE CAREER

AS EARLY AS THE 'SIXTIES HE OUTLINED A HEAVIER-THAN-AIR PRINCIPLE FOR THE MODERN AEROPLANE.

(Special Cable from the International News Service.)

Paris, April 16.—One of the earliest pioneers of aeronautics has just passed away in the person of Felix Troumachon, a most remarkable, "character," known to three generations of Parisians simply as "Nadar." He died in Paris, aged ninety.

As long ago as the early sixties he outlined the heavier-than-air principle of the modern aeroplane, and although his ideas became the butt of the café, concert and the comic press of the gay Paris of the Second Empire, he lived to say, when he heard of M. Bleriot's flight across the channel, "Now I can die happy."

With his shock of flaming red hair, Nadar was a typical boulevard celebrity. He was in turn journalist, pamphleteer, caricaturist, revolutionary, aeronaut and photographer, and in each capacity he achieved fame. He was an intimate of Baudelaire, Alphonse Daudet, Theophile Gautier, and heart was unbounded. He delighted to do good by stealth. He risked his life by concealing a refugee communitarian from governmental reprisals in 1871.

His Bold Action.

It was he who hid the famous General Bergeret in his house, and who boldly went to Thiers and asked for a passport for his friend. "Hullo," said Thiers, when he saw him, "haven't you been shot yet?"

"No general," was the reply, "that depends on you."

In the 'fifties he turned his attention to photography, and besides contributing considerably to the development of artistic camera work in France this extraordinary man became one of the precursors of color photography.

In 1869 he took ballooning and constructed the biggest balloon on record. Le Geant, which carried fourteen people and contained 215,363 cubic feet of gas. His first ascent with thirteen persons in 1863 was successful and created an enormous sensation, but the Geant came to grief on its next trip. After a terrible experience the monster fell to earth near Hanover. None of the occupants was hurt, but Mme. Nadar, who accompanied her husband, found that her hair had turned white during the trip and Nadar was prostrated for weeks by the shock. Nadar exhibited the Geant at the Crystal Palace in the same year.

From his ascents with the Geant, Nadar hoped to obtain funds to build a "dirigible aeromobile," as he called it, but he lost all his fortune and turned once more to photography, opening a studio, which soon became a social center of Paris. During the siege of Paris he was a commander of a battalion corps and made several thrilling sorties over the enemy's lines and dispatches to the Provisional government.

"The person undergoing the 'no food' cure should take nothing but distilled water, and should exercise caution. The weight should be taken before starting the fast, and if it is below the normal food should be taken in reasonable quantities until the patient is the right weight and ready to undertake the complete fast."

"A fast should not be started in cold weather, for that takes away much of the heat and energy of the organism, but in warm weather there is not this disadvantage."

"In my own experience I have known a patient to fast for fifteen days and derive only advantage from the ordeal. The patient was a young Spaniard living in a London boarding house."

"He had suffered from serious internal trouble since boyhood, and he came to me to ask advice about the first diet I recommended. He was very dark and this I at first put down to his foreign birth, and he looked very ill."

"I said to him, 'The fasting cure would do you good, and I explained to him.' When I saw him again many weeks later, I hardly recognized him. He was the picture of health. His eyes were bright, his tongue a good color, and his pulse normal."

"But the most surprising thing was that his skin was much fairer, and he laughingly said to me: 'Perhaps all Spaniards are not really dark if they only fast.'"

I learned to my surprise, for I had never intended he should go so long without solid food, that he had fasted for fifteen days, taking only distilled water during all that time. And it certainly cured him."

DISCUSSION OVER UPTON SINCLAIR

English Physicians Aroused Over "No Food" Cure of the Novelist.

ITS BENEFITS ADMITTED

EDITRESS OF A PHYSICAL CULTURE MAGAZINE, PUBLISHED IN LONDON, AIRS HER VIEWS ON THE SUBJECT.

(Special Cable from the International News Service.)

London, April 16.—Much discussion has been aroused among the medical profession and general public by the "no food" cure recommended by Upton Sinclair, the American novelist.

Many well known medical experts admit that there are benefits to be derived from fasting if it is correctly practiced.

Dr. Wallace, editress of a physical culture magazine says:

"Fasting is most efficacious as a cure. I have known it to work remarkable cures in my own experience."
