Appears Before House Committee for "Fight Pictures" Interests.

HE EMITTED A LOUD WAIL

(American News Service)
Washington, May 17.—Battling Nelson, the prize fighter, was before the house committee on interstate commerce today. He spoke against the bill introduced by Representative Smith of Iowa, to prohibit the transportation through interstate commerce of moving picture films of prize fights and boxing matches. The Battler told the committee such a drastic law would kill boxing and do much to injure athletics. He said $5,000,000 was invested in the "game" and the Smith bill, if it became a law, would destroy that property.

ASSAULT ATTEMPTED

Young Farmer Boy Held for Brutal Act Toward 7 Years Old Girl.

ARRESTED BY EMPLOYER

Gary Moyster, aged 16, son of Jerry Moyster, a farmer residing near Dalton, is being held at the county jail on a serious charge. It is alleged that on last Saturday afternoon the boy attempted to commit a felonious assault on the person of Agnes Crane, the 7-year-old grandchild of Joseph Morris, a well known farmer of near Dalton.

Moyster has been employed on the farm of Oscar Poor, a mile and a half north of Dalton. It is said that Poor discovered the boy attempting to criminally assault the little Crane girl. He seized a club and then took the youth in custody before the squire at Hagerstown, where he was bound over to the circuit court.

Moyster declares he is not guilty and did not commit an assault on the girl. He says that the Crane girl was driving the cows home when he met her in the field and that she made advances to him. The authorities, however, do not put any credence in the story, owing to the girl's tender age. It is not believed that the assault was consummated, as the boy was discovered by Mr. Poor before he had an opportunity to carry out his alleged purpose.

Prosecuting Attorney Ladd is investigating the matter.

TROUBLE OVER ROAD

Commissioners Ordered South N Street Opened by the Trustee Delayed.

ACTED ON LEGAL ADVICE

The opening of South N street, across the C. C. & L. railroad tracks, as authorized by the county commissioners at their meeting in April, was not carried out owing to the advice given by County Attorney John F. Robbins to James Howarth, trustee for Wayne township. However, it is probable the matter will be straightened out immediately and the road constructed.

The members of the South Side Improvement association had petitioned for the opening of the road. The county commissioners appointed viewers and the report of these officials was that the road was a public necessity. No remonstrance was filed with the commissioners. The commissioners notified the county auditor to instruct the trustee of Wayne township to see that the order was obeyed, but before he could do this he was advised by the county attorney that he had no right to condemn the property, because the road was in the hands of a receiver and under government jurisdiction. The petitioners became annoyed at the delay and visited Mr. Howarth with the result that he consulted his attorney. It was stated by his attorney today that the county commissioners' order would be obeyed.

Deaf and Dumb Man Talkative

Suspected of Being "Fake" by Chief Gorman He Finally Proves That Such Suspicion Was Well Founded.

"Well shut the door and I'll tell you all about it." This statement coming as it did from Earl R. Wren, a supposedly deaf and dumb man, at police headquarters yesterday evening, somewhat startled Chief of Police Gorman, who was not exactly prepared for vocal expression from his visitor.

Wren was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. In the role of a deaf and dumb man he made a house to house canvass of the city, selling court plaster and small pocket knives after first submitting a card on which it was explained that he had been rendered deaf and dumb by catarrhal fever and finding it impossible to secure employment, was endeavoring to earn an honest living for himself, his wife and aged parents, by the sale of the articles in his possession.

Many persons touched by the appeal, fell ready victims to the clever ruse and Wren did a thriving business for a time. However, yesterday a woman telephoned police headquarters that the man was an impostor.

KONEY IN GRAND FORM.

Early Season Playing Indicates First Sacker Will Have Banner Year. The ease and rapidity with which Ed Koney has rounded to form this season would indicate that the St. Louis Cardinals' big first baseman is to have another successful season. He didn't slam the ball during the spring practice games as he did a year ago, when the fence boards suffered considerably from his bat blows. However, since home was reached he has begun to pick up in his hitting. In the field he is a marvel. Last season Koney was included in the first

ED KONEY, ST. LOUIS' FIRST BASEMAN. ten ball players doing everything. At fielding around first he has few if any equals and probably no superiors. Then his slugging was one of the redeeming features of the Cardinals' work a year ago. For a big fellow he is exceptionally fast, and his work on the bases also ranks with the best in that specialty. Only twenty-four years old, Koney has a great future before him.

Famed "Underground Railway" Man Died Today

Rev. John Wright Johnson, Who Became Quaker Minister After Being Methodist Minister 40 Years, Dies from Infirmities.

THE REV. AND MRS. JOHN WRIGHT JOHNSON.

(Palladium Special)
Fountain City, May 17.—The Rev. John Wright Johnson died this afternoon at 2:55 o'clock from kidney trouble and the infirmities of old age. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, who broke her right hip about a week ago, is very old and not expected to live long. He was 91 years old, while she is 86 years old.

The Rev. Johnson took the keenest enjoyment in discussing the days of the "underground railroad," of which he and his uncle, the Rev. Levi Coffin, were the founders. Of all their adventures in aiding the escaping slaves, that connected with the escape of Eliza Harris, the heroine of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," furnished the greatest interest.

In discussing this he often spoke of the visit which Harriet Beecher Stowe, the authoress of the novel, made to Fountain City and he took as much pride in the novel as though it was his own work. The authoress practically moulded her story from a story told her by the Rev. Johnson and his uncle. When Eliza Harris was turned over to the Rev. Johnson, he took special interest in her because of her intelligence and it was without little difficulty that she was induced to relate her story. Her master had decided to sell her child, and this so alarmed her that she fled one night after dark with her child and sped towards the Ohio river.

When the river was reached she told the Rev. Johnson, she found the ice had broken and that it was almost impassable, even in a boat. She had expected to find the river frozen. She was filled with despair, but nevertheless she did not give up and going to a house, she told her story, finding that the family on whom she called was friendly and she was hidden in the house during the night. The next day, the river was still filled with large cakes of ice and no escape seemed possible. However, during the day a party of pursuers, accompanied by dogs and approached the house. Taking her child, the woman dashed for the river, ran out on the ice and by jumping from one to another was able to reach the Indiana shore.

The Rev. William Lacey, a brother of Major Lacey, of this place, witnessed the escape from the Indiana shore and he assisted the woman to an underground railway station. By different means, she was taken to Fountain City.

The Rev. Johnson was born in Guilford county, North Carolina, October 25, 1819, and was the son of William and Deborah (Coffin) Johnson. He was only 6 months old when his father left North Carolina and went to Ohio to locate a home for his family. He was the youngest of five children, his brothers and sisters being born in Ohio.

The Rev. Johnson was married three times. His first marriage was to Miss Naomi Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Micajah Morgan. It was solemnized on December 31, 1840. His first wife lived but four years. To them were born two children, Micajah M., who lives at Neely, Nebraska, and Adeline, who died soon after her mother's death.

His second marriage was to Miss C. H. Thomas in 1846. To them were born five children, including: Barclay Thomas, a farmer of New Garden township, Luther Lee of Marion, Ind., Dr. Levi C., formerly a physician of Fountain City, but now of Neely, Neb., and Mrs. Anna Bells Hunt of South Dakota.

The third marriage of the Rev. Johnson was to Mrs. Elizabeth Woodruff, widow of the late Israel Woodruff of this place. From 1855 to 1885 she held the position of governess and matron of Earlham college, and in many ways, she was as prominent as her husband. No children were born to this union. The Rev. Johnson moved to Fountain City in 1837 and lived with his uncle, the Rev. Levi Coffin. He learned the carpenter's trade, serving his apprenticeship under Hoel Hiatt. He followed this trade for fifteen years, during most of which time he was contractor. Much of his early efforts were devoted to locating of "underground railroad" stations. In 1854 he went to Daviess county, Ill., and located on a large farm. He returned to Wayne county in 1869, locating on a farm.

In 1846, he was ordained as a Methodist minister. He organized a circuit and held regular services at the various meeting places. After forty years as a minister in the Methodist church he left it and joined the Friends' church.

The Rev. Johnson was radical in his views on the temperance question. No matter what was the nature of a temperance fight he could always be found on the side of the temperance forces and he was accredited with doing much good for the cause. He was just as strenuous an abolitionist and while a resident of Illinois, he always was often given credit for victories achieved by the republicans.
