PETER PAN SHADE.

Stunning Empire Effect For the Sitting Room Lamp.

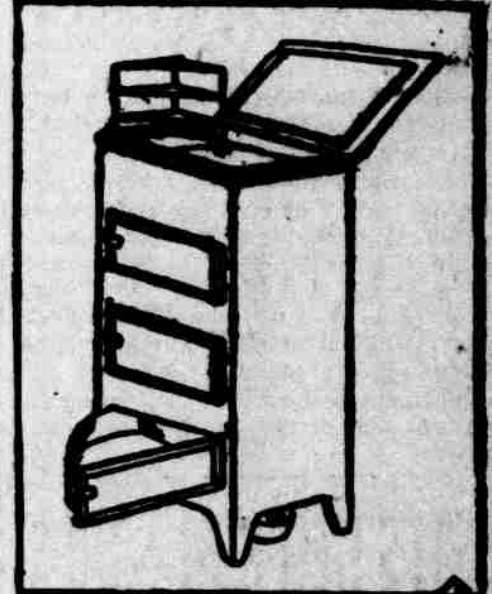

PETER PAN SHADE OF DANQUIN FAIRBANKS AND ELVER.

The empire shade decorated with fairies and elves illustrated in soft rose colored silk decorated with a silhouette of dancing fairies cut out of wall paper blending with the tone of the silk. Though pretty by daylight, it is much more so when the lamp is lighted, as the elves and fairies dance in high glee against the lighted background. Such a shade is within the scope of the amateur artist to evolve.

A NEW REFRIGERATOR.

Drawers Swing In and Out in Place of Having Shelves.
A different kind of refrigerator has been invented by a Georgia man and is shown in the cut. In place of the row of shelves with which the ordinary refrigerator is equipped this new ice chest has a series of drawers which swing in and out and which make the articles kept within much easier of access. The ice compartment is at the top, as in most other types and alongside it in one corner is a row of shelves which lift up and on which may be kept those things which should be close to the ice. The lower part of the refrigerator is equipped with drawers which swing in and out on a hinge at one side. They are rounded at one end and only come out a certain distance. That part of the bottom of the drawers which extends outside when the latter is moved to the limit of its outward range is solid, the other segments being perforated to permit the cold air to pass through more readily. In this type of refrigerator it is not necessary to remove the things in front to get at those in the rear.

Gift For the Traveler.

A very useful collar bag for a traveler, or to be used as a case for that matter, is made of stenciled linen in the usual round style with stiff bottom and drawing top. Two pieces of cardboard, each six or seven inches in diameter, are cut, and each is covered with the linen on one side, and then the two are overlapped together like a pin ball. These are for the bottom. A set of stenciled linen eight inches deep is sewed around the bottom from the inside. Then the top is hemmed and buttonhole loops big enough for a cord to slip through loosely are made at intervals of an inch just below the hem, and a silk cord is run through them to draw the bag up. The buttonhole loops are better than rings, because they wash without trouble. If the linen is stenciled with oil colors it may be laundered. Such bags are made of fine or coarse linen and are often embroidered. In fact, art needlework departments have stamped bags of the kind ready to work and put together. Coarse, natural colored linen worked in Bugarian colors is a present fancy.

No Suffragettes in Russia.

It is somewhat of a surprise to learn that in autocratic Russia women have more rights than in many democratic countries. John W. Foster in his "Diplomatic Memoirs" points out that more than a hundred years ago the Empress Elizabeth conferred upon women absolute equality of civil rights with men. Married women can receive legacies, bequeath property and deal with their estate in all respects as if they were unmarried; consequently Russia has no suffragettes.

He Would Never Know.

"Half a pound of tea, please."
"Green or black?"
"Doesn't matter, here. It's for a blind person."—Bon Vivant.

Promoted.

Actor—I have been in your company now for two years, and I think it's time I had an increase in salary. Manager—All right; you can have the parts in which there is eating.—Filegate Blatter.

Will Issue a Sequel.

"A book which has just been published says that oratory is a neglected art."
"Wait until the man who wrote the book gets married."—Houston Post.

GOOD IN SPOTS.

One Man Who Discovered That War Was Not Wholly Bad.

Lem Jackson loved to loaf. He lived in the mountains not far from Greenville, Tenn., with his wife and a large brood of children. Lem had a "boun' dawg" that he set great store by, and he spent most of his time lounging in a runway waiting to shoot a deer driven in by old Boe or sprawling on the bank of a stream fishing. In that way he was a good provider after a fashion, but not all the urging, scolding, nagging and broomsticking of his shrewish wife could drive him to work. Lem led the lazy life of a Rip Van Winkle until the outbreak of the civil war, and then he joined the Confederate army. At the end of six months Lem was shot through the right thigh, and it was long before he was able to limp out of the hospital and back to his regiment. In the second year he was shot in the left shoulder, and when he returned to duty his left hand was bent far back by a shortened tendon, but he was still able to raise his rifle. Early in the fourth year they got him again—a musket ball through the body—but he was back in the ranks long before the fighting was ended. Every one wondered at Lem's persistence in sticking to the terrible trade of war.

Dr. Girdner met Lem hobnobbing down the street in Greenville one morning in June, 1865, still lame and weak from his latest wound, his right leg short and wobbly, his left hand stiffly bent back. "Glad to see you alive, Lem," said the doctor. "I suppose you're glad to be home again?" "Waal," Lem admitted without enthusiasm, "I s'pose I had to get along home. Gin'ral Lee he surrendered us down to Appomattox, an' we all had to go home."

"But aren't you glad to be away from the dangers of war?" "Why, doc, war hain't so bad," cried honest Lem—"war hain't so bad. There's lots of days when you don't have nothin' to do."—Harper's Weekly.

A GAME OF BALL.

How It May Strike a Stranger Who Sees It For the First Time.

Nothing has set America so high in the estimation of foreign nations, says Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, as the adoption of baseball as the national sport. If a foreign spy wanders into America seeking to fathom our real inwardness and sees a game of baseball any feeling of contempt for our newness gives way instantly to a respectful admiration. At his first glance baseball is to him a mystery, and it remains a mystery to him. He sees 30,000 men and women suffering the tortures of the lower regions on hot grand stands. He sees a man pick up a small white ball as hard as a pine knot. Facing him is another man who holds a smooth but deadly club in his hands. Behind this second man is a third man whose face is hidden behind a bird's face. Suddenly the man with the ball raises one foot in the air and shows the man with the bat the sole of his shoe. The man at the bat sees that there are spikes in the sole of the shoe, and it angers him, and he raises his bat to strike it at the man with the ball. But—oh, but—the man with the ball is too quick for him. He throws the hard, white ball at the man with the bat with all his strength. The man with the bat waves defiance by swinging the bat in the air. The ball proceeds. The batsman never flinches! Will the ball kill the man or will the impact crush the bat? But see! The ball finds man unflinching; the ball is struck; the ball dodges around the man; the ball is lost, buried in the huge leather chair cushion that covers the hand of the bird's face man behind the batsman! "Strike one!" says the umpire. "Thirty thousand cheers! Why?"

Grub Street's Pawnshop.
If the Avant is not the oldest and best known pawnshop in the world it deserves to be. It has been in existence ever since the days of Shakespeare and Ben Jonson. It is in Fleet street—Grub street—and has been the poor writer's uncle for all these centuries and years. It has an old legend something like this: "Old Literary Friends Never Forgotten." There are many souvenirs, sayings and traditions of the greatest men on earth who, going broke, had to patronize it. Outside of its own name it is well known as the Grub street pawnshop.—London Mail.

Unspoilable.
The Newfoundland seal folk for some reason not given by the St. John's correspondent of the New York Sun describe their greasy spout as "swallows," and they also say they "spoil" an object when they mean to carry it. One can imagine the amazement of the young clerk who on one occasion asked a curly hunter how he spelled "swallows." "We don't spell 'em; we haul 'em," was the bewildering reply.

The Retort Courteous.
"I hate to press this bill, Mr. Slow-pay," said the tailor, taking a much wrinkled memorandum of accounts from his pocket, "but—"
"Oh, don't bother, Snip," said Slow-pay genially. "You don't need to press it. I don't mind the wrinkles in it at all. Fact is, I've got a dozen fresh copies of it at home already."—Judge.

A Wide Waist.
Miss Thynn—I saw Jack put his arm around you. Miss Plumleigh—You didn't, either. Miss Thynn—Well, then, as far around as he could get it.—Boston Transcript.

"Senator," said the interviewer. "It is rumored that you intend to retire from politics."
"Well, well," replied the senator. "It's queer how rumors start. I suppose this one grew out of the fact that I attended church with my wife last Sunday."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Titles.
Reginald—My father had D. D. put behind his name. Jimmy—Dat's not it. Day took me father to de alcoholic ward an' put D. T. behind his name.—Philadelphia Record.

When the Mule Kicks.

"No man unless he is blind should ever be kicked by a mule. There is no excuse for it. If kicked he is as much to blame as the mule," said a mule raiser. "A mule never kicks without first wagging his ears and switching his tail," said the breeder. "All you have to do is to keep your eyes on his ears and tail. And when he begins to wag his ears or switch his tail then it is time to dodge. And if you dodge quickly you will never be touched."—Kansas City Journal.

A Cold Bite.
"You were twenty miles from the north pole and starting," exclaimed the credulous housewife. "And how did you save yourself?" "Why, mum," responded Frigid Fred as he wiped away a tear, "in me starving moments I remembered de Eskimo dogs. Pushing out through the snow, I twisted one of der tails, an' den—ay deen!"
"And then what, my poor man?"
"I got a cold bite."—Chicago News.
