JUST A WORD.

Quite lovable is the woman who has the disposition to see the good and not the evil side of human nature, who can be severe with her own failings and excuse the faults of others. Some may say that she is dull and almost uninteresting; but if we take the time to look into the matter, we find that she does not laugh at her friends' weaknesses; she does not enjoy knocking right and left and finding fault with the world at large. On the other hand she is always ready with a plea for unseen reasons, which if they could be revealed, would go a long way toward modifying harsh judgment. Men say that women have no sense of humor. Probably this is true for of course one can't argue with a man, but whether the lovable woman be witty or simply prosy, we all like to take our troubles to this sort of a woman, with a feeling that the secret will never be revealed.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The rumor that Miss Taft will spend the social season at the White House, instead of returning to Bryn Mawr, is gaining credence in Washington, and society is looking forward eagerly to such an acquisition to its ranks.

On her last visit home, just before the White House family left for Beverly, Miss Taft was several times seen taking horse-back rides around Washington. Although not athletic in her tastes, she is a good rider, having first grown used to a saddle in her childhood days in the Philippines, when she and Miss Marjorie Aleshire were to be seen riding around Manila on the backs of the little native ponies.

Miss Taft is rapidly realizing the promise she gave of becoming an unusually handsome woman. Her coloring is beautifully fresh and her blond hair sets it off strikingly. Miss Taft is fond of the shade of pale blue which only those of perfect complexion can wear and she looks her best in it.

Judges' Gowns.

The London Law Times points out that the silk gown of the bench and bar owes its original use to its having been adopted as a form of mourning at the death of an English sovereign. On the death of Queen Mary in 1558 the present silk gown was introduced as mourning and, having been found more convenient and less troublesome than the regular dress then worn, has since been continued. The late Sir Frederick Pollock is said to have expressed an opinion in reference to the ordinary costume of the bar that the bench and bar went into mourning at the death of Queen Anne and have so remained ever since. American courts adopted the gown along with the English common law.

Perfect Confidence

Richmond People Have Good Reason For Complete Reliance.

Do you know how—
To find quick relief from backache;
To correct distressing urinary ills;
To surely cure sick kidneys?
Just one way—your neighbors know—

Have used Doan's Kidney Pills;
Have proved their worth in many tests.

Here's Richmond testimony.
David Hershey, 316 S. Thirteenth Street, Richmond, Ind., says: "I was troubled for some time by kidney complaint and the remedies I tried did not help me. Often I was hardly able to straighten on account of sharp, cutting pains across the small of my back and the least exertion or any cold I contracted caused the kidney secretions to pass too frequently. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at A. G. Luken & Co's Drug Store cured me and at that time, I publicly recommended them. I now gladly confirm all I then said, as I still firmly believe that Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy for kidney disorders."

VETERAN IS BURIED

Major W. H. Lough, Survivor of Civil War, Laid to Rest in Eaton.

MANY FRIENDS IN PREBLE

Eaton, O., July 11.—The remains of Major W. H. Lough, who died in Richmond, Ind., on Friday night, after a long illness, were brought to Eaton at 11 o'clock on Monday morning and were interred in Mount Hill cemetery. Short services were held in the cemetery chapel and were in charge of Eaton Mulharen-O'Connell Post G. A. R.

Maj. Lough was 76 years old and is survived by his second wife and one son, Walter Lough, who lives in New York City. The deceased was well known in Eaton and Preble county generally, the greater portion of his life having been spent here.

He was a veteran of the Civil war, and in the service, a year or so after his enlistment, lost an arm. After his discharge upon this disability he returned to Preble county, where for three consecutive terms he was elected to the office of county recorder. Before the tenure of his last term had expired he was appointed to the office of secretary of the National Military Home at Dayton, and in this capacity served for ten or twelve years when he was transferred to the Wisconsin home.

Following the expiration of his governmental Home work, Lough returned to Eaton and resided for about ten years, but later removed to Richmond, Ind., where he has lived continuously until his death.

During his residence in Eaton, Maj. Lough's relations with the city's commercial interests and civic advancement were the closest, and the town's older residents deeply regret his demise. In appreciation of the pleasant relations formed with Eaton and her people, he recently presented to the city his entire private library, which consists of many rare and valued books. The collection is said to have been one of the best in Eastern Indiana.

What Won Her.
"I thought she was going to marry Tom?"

"No; Jack."

"Why, she told me Tom was willing to die for her and—"

"Yes, but Jack offered to make a good living for her."

RODE EAST ON PONIES, RETURN IN AUTOMOBILE

Temple Abernathy cranking the automobile in which he and his cousin, Louis, will return to their home in Oklahoma, accompanied by their father. The two youngsters recently traveled all the way from Oklahoma to New York City on horseback to meet President Roosevelt upon his return to America from his African hunting trip. The lads and their father, "Catch-em-Aliye" Jack Abernathy, were entertained a number of times and when it came to making trips in automobiles, Temple wanted one right away. So the ponies were shipped to their home and their father purchased an automobile for them. Temple was slightly injured at Poughkeepsie when he jumped from the car before it was stopped.

FINED FOR HITTING LOFTUS

Frank Morris was $5 and costs in city court this morning for hitting Larry Loftus over the head with a beer bottle at the Grand Saloon on Saturday night. Morris pleaded guilty. The trouble occurred over an alleged bet. Loftus was not seriously hurt.

At Local Theaters

Ye Colonial Septette.
Do not fail to be one of the first to see and hear "Ye Colonial Septette" at the Murray this week, for by so doing you will be among the first to impart the good news of their greatness to your friends, instead of getting word from them later in the week. There are of course seven people in the act, three ladies and four gentlemen, and each is a soloist on many instruments. They play in three sets of special scenery, carry sixteen trunks of wardrobe, a wagon load of musical instruments, ranging in size from the cornet to the bass tuba with the high bell and tapering off with seven of those long, gold mounted valve post horns that are six and seven feet long. Their costumes befit the parts assumed, that of the colonial period, much belaced and gay with well selected colors. Their scenery is by one of the best artists in the business and the act as a whole is the most novel on the vaudeville stage today. Up until last week they played the big Orpheum time and come here fresh from their American triumphs. In addition to this big act, Weston and Cushman, with song and talk, Tommy Overholt, singing and dancing comedian; Marvelous Ed, equilibrist; and the motion pictures and it is certainly evident to all that this week will be one of real pleasure and enjoyment to the patrons of the Murray.

Solubility of Gold.
Gold is one of the group of metals soluble only in that mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acids known as aqua regia. It has been found, however, that the presence of certain organic compounds renders gold soluble in hydrochloric acid. Thus a mixture of this acid and chloroform is found to be a solvent. Ethyl, or ordinary alcohol, methyl alcohol and amyl alcohol are among the other substances which give to hydrochloric acid the power of dissolving gold. The solution takes place slowly in the cold acid and more quickly on heating.

His mother's mother.
"Joseph," said his mother reprovingly, "I should think you'd be ashamed to be in the same class with boys so much smaller than yourself."
"Well, mother," replied Joe, "I look upon the matter in a different way altogether. It makes me feel fine to see how proud the small boys are to be in the class with a big boy like me."—Delineator.
