RICHMOND, INDIANA "PANIC PROOF CITY"

Has a population of 73,000 and is growing. It is the county seat of Wayne County, and the trading center of a rich agricultural community. It is located due east from Indianapolis 45 miles and 4 miles from the state line.
Richmond is a city of homes and of industry. Primarily a manufacturing city, it is also the jobbing center of Eastern Indiana and enjoys the retail trade of the populous community for miles around.
Richmond is proud of its splendid streets, well kept sidewalks, beautiful shade trees. It has 3 national banks, 2 trust companies and 4 building associations with combined resources of over $5,000,000. Number of factories, 120. Capital invested, $7,000,000. With an annual output of $27,000,000, and a payroll of $7,000,000. The city roll for the city amounts to approximately $4,300,000 annually.
There are five railroad companies radiating in eight different directions. Daily freight income, $1,500,000. Daily freight handled, 1,750,000 lbs.; outgoing freight handled, 1,500,000 lbs.
Yard facilities, per day 1,700
cars. Number of passenger trains daily, 48. Number of freight trains daily 77. The annual post office receipts amount to $24,000. Total assessed valuation of the city, $15,000,000.
Richmond is a center of interstate railroads. Three newspapers with a combined circulation of 22,000. Richmond is the largest hardware jobbing center in the state, and only second in general business to Indianapolis.
It has a piano factory producing a high grade piano every minute. It is the leader in the manufacture of traction engines, and has a large plant thrashing machines, lawn mowers, roller skates, grain drills and burial caskets than any other city in the world.
The city's area is 2,440 acres;
has a court house valued at $500, 000; 16 public schools and has the finest and most complete high school in the state. The under construction; 3 parochial schools. Earlham college and the Indiana Business College;
five splendid fire companies in fine hose houses. Glen Miller park, the largest and most beautiful park in Indiana, the home of Richmond's annual chautauque; seven hotels; municipal electric light plant, under successful operation, and a private electric light plant, insuring competition; the oldest public library in the state, except one, and the second largest, 40,000 volumes; pure, refreshing water, unsurpassed; 45 miles of improved streets; 40 miles of sewers; 35 miles of cement curb and gutter combined; 40 miles of cement walks and many miles of brick walks. Thirty churches, including the Reid Memorial, built at a cost of $250,000; Reid Memorial Hospital, one of the most modern in the state; Y. M. C. A. building, erected at a cost of $100,000,
one of the finest in the state.
The amusement center of Eastern Indiana and Western Ohio.
No city of its size in Indiana holds as fine an annual air exhibit, the Richmond Fall Festival held each October in Indiana, no other city holds a similar affair. It is given in the interest of the city and financed by the business men.
Success awaits anyone with enterprise in the Panic Proof
City.

Items Gathered In From Far and Near

In the Dollar Book.
Chicago Journal.
When the market closed last Saturday the sales of United States Steel Corporation common stock for the week amounted to 624,100 shares, and the total sales since January 1, 1910,
reached the amazing total of 24,343, 360.
There are only 5,082,625 shares of this stock in circulation, so, within less than seven months, if these sales reported on the New York Stock Exchange are legitimate, the entire common stock of the world's greatest steel company has been sold almost five times over.
Does any one believe that $1,500, 000,000 have sought this stock as investment during seven months?
If there has been such a demand for Steel common why has the price fallen from $91 a share January 3 to $65 3/4 per share last Saturday?
Why did this stock, which sold at $91 when the dividend was 4 percent, sell at $65 3/4 when the dividend has been raised to 5 percent? If it was worth $91 when it earned 4 percent, why is it not worth $113 75 a share
now that it earns 5 percent?
Perhaps some of the gentlemen who lay prices in the dollar book will explain.
If not, how can any sane man avoid the conclusion that Steel common is an open gambling game, with odds
made and manipulated by the book-

A Moral Issue

"Insurgency has changed the reactionary Wickersham bill into a measure for the public good, forced Aldrich and Hale to announce their retirement, defeated Tallaferro in Florida, wrecked the Indiana machine and made Beveridge supreme in the party there; taken Iowa from the rail-road oligarchy, launched revolts in Montana, Washington and North Dakota, won victory over corruption in Denver, shown that New England is dominated by the same moral sense as the west and put democratic and republican states alike in the doubtful column."

The Philadelphia North American in summing up the Insurgent movement has done a service which needs to be done far oftener. It should not escape the people of Indiana that their Insurgency—their progressive attitude—is part of the general awakening all over the country.

Whether you look at the Progressive Republicans of New Hampshire who have made it their fight to stand for the people against the corporate greed of the Boston and Maine railroad, or the Insurgents of Kansas who have backed up Governor Stubbs and Murdock in their work—Insurgency is living, vital, widespread.

This all happened for the most part while Mr. Roosevelt was in Africa. The fifteen months of his absence saw a new band of men pathetic in their numbers, turn themselves into an effective barrier against bi-partisan greed in the National Legislatures.

The question now arises, where is Roosevelt going to stand? J. C. Welliver, the best informed writer of progressive movements says in Hampton's:

"But after all, Roosevelt, as we have known him thus far, is essentially an agitator. Perhaps, with his limitless versatility, he will presently appear in a new phase as a constructor; but his genius for construction will be doubted until he shall have given more demonstration than has been had thus far. If the country needs more agitation, it needs more Roosevelt; if it wants constructive statesmanship, it wants a leader of proved capacity for constructive statesmanship."

Roosevelt undoubtedly prepared the way for the Insurgents—yet is he an Insurgent? It is certain that as far as the moral issues are concerned Roosevelt has never faltered.

Regarding this question the North American states:
"Roosevelt was not part of this movement. He was really against the leaders when in office. He was for Lodge and against La Follette, for Root and against Cummins. He hated Cannonism, but never thought of fighting Cannon. He was for reform, but against reformers unless the first got dispensation from him."

"His future depends on whether he can change his old habit of party regularity and align himself with the new forces. Old party names now count for little. If the Republican party can free itself of the Aldriches and the Cannons it can survive as the party of progress. Otherwise its fate will be like that of the old whig party that could not exist half slave and half free."

And yet there is a greater thing that must influence Roosevelt unless the people of the United States have been mistaken in their estimate of him.

The Insurgent movement as such—though born of the Roosevelt policies has developed in the absence of Roosevelt into the Great American issue, a moral issue the supremacy of the rights of man as opposed to the rights of property. Theodore Roosevelt never faltered on that proposition. And those who believe that Roosevelt is not now in sympathy with the Insurgent movement and what it stands for believe either that Roosevelt does not stand on Garfield's platform, "Manhood first; property second," or they believe that Roosevelt has left his manhood in Africa.

This we do not believe.
Roosevelt has said to the Republicans of Ohio that he stands for progressive policies—those of Garfield.

To the Republicans of Indiana his announcement that he will speak for Beveridge means that he recognizes Insurgency as a moral issue.

THE SCRAP BOOK

Yes, He Knew the Time.
A quiet, bashful sort of a young fellow was making a call on a Capitol hill girl one evening not so very long ago when he came into the parlor with his watch in his hand. It was about half past 9 o'clock. At the moment the young man was standing on a chair, straightening a picture over the piano. The girl had asked him to fix it. As he turned the old gentleman, a gruff, stout fellow, said:

"Do you know what time it is?"
"Yes, sir," he replied. "I do know what time it is."

He went into the hall without any delay and took his hat and coat. The girl's father followed him. As the caller reached for the doorknob the old gentleman again asked him if he knew what time it was.

"Yes, sir," was the youth's reply. "Good night!" And he shot from the house without waiting to put his coat on.

After the door had closed the old gentleman turned to the girl.

"What's the matter with that fellow?" he asked. "My watch ran down this afternoon, and I wanted him to tell me the time so that I could set it."—Denver Post.

The Chainless Mind.
Eternal spirit of the chainless mind. Brightest in dungeons, liberty thou art. For there thy habitation is the heart—The heart which love of thee alone can find.

And when thy sons to fetters are con- signed— To fetters and the damp vault's dayless gloom— Their country conquers with their martyr- dom. And freedom's fame finds wings on every wind.

—Lord Byron, From "The Prisoner of Chillon."

He Didn't Drop.
The great operatic star Signor Foll John McCormack, when singing in grand opera in his native city, Cork, had to sing one of his songs from a stage balcony. The arrangements were not very perfect, and the manager, fearing the carpenter had not made the balcony strong enough to sustain the weight of the big man, told off two assistants to hold it up from beneath. The lengthy signor was only half through his song when one man said to the other:

"He jabsers. Molke, the Oltalian is moighty heavy."

"Let's drop him, Pat. He's only an Oltalian, after all."

Voice from the signor above, "Will ye, ye divils, will ye?"

"Tare an' 'ouns, Pat, but be's an Oltishman! Hould him up for the love of ye?"

An Impossible Name.
In the Jefferson Market police court, New York city, several years ago a man and a woman upon being arraigned for disturbing the peace told the magistrate that the commotion between them had started in an argument as to what they should name their baby boy.

"What do you want to call him?" asked the magistrate of the father, who was employed as a waiter at a Broadway restaurant.

"Ludwig," answered the German.

"And you?" he asked the mother.

"Adolph," sighed the latter.

The modern Solomon thought a moment. "I'll tell you what to call him," he said at length. "Call him Adolph Ludwig."

"Neln, neln," shouted the father. "Ludwig Adolph, yes; Adolph Ludwig, seffer!"

The magistrate demanded the reason for his stubbornness.

"Der reason is der odder valters," explained the father. "am Carl Components, and if we called our little boy Adolph Ludwig Components every valter at der restaurant would see his initials as A. L. C., vich means a la carte, and we don't seer no la carte by our restaurant, only table d'hote."

Getting Back at Him.
The young man was timid, but he loved the girl so fervently that he mustered up enough courage to wait upon her wealthy father and ask him for her hand.

"So you have the impudence to ask for my daughter's hand, eh?" exclaimed the father cruelly. "Why, sir, at your present salary you couldn't more than keep her in gloves."

"Well," stammered the suitor, "wouldn't that be enough?"

"What! Do you mean to insinuate, young man, that my daughter would wear only gloves?"

"Pardon me, sir," replied the young man, with sudden courage. "I asked only for her hand."—Young's Magazine.

The Transfiguration. Matt. xviii: 1-5, 14-20.

Golden Text—This is My Beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased, hear ye him. Matt. xviii: 5.

Verse 1—Why did Jesus select Peter, James and John, on this momentous occasion, and not any of the other nine apostles? Did he have favorites?

Verse 2—Are the words describing Jesus' transfiguration to be taken as strictly literal, or figurative, and in any event, describe what change you think actually did take place in the appearance of Jesus?

Can you recall any similar event mentioned in the Scriptures? (See Exodus xxxiv: 29-35).

Verse 3—What difference, or resemblance, is there between the appearance of Moses and Elias to Jesus, and presumably to the three Apostles, and the claims of modern spiritualism?

What, if any, evidence is there, that Jesus was often conscious of the presence of those who had departed this life?

State what, if any, scriptural or other evidence there is, that it is possible for Christians in these days, to be conscious of the presence of their departed friends? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verse 4—Is it possible for a Christian to have a constant vision of Jesus, and if so, does it give perpetual peace, or elation, to the soul? Give your reasons.

Verse 5—Were the "cloud and the voice subjective only, or were they objective, i. e., would a collied dog, for example, if present, have seen the one and heard the other?

With what kind of voice does our Father speak to his children today? Jesus had the clear testimony that God was well pleased with him, why is it not possible for every other son of God to have similar testimony?

Verse 6—Is there any good reason why a child of God should ever be afraid in the presence of the supernatural?

Why were these three intimate friends of Jesus afraid, in the presence of this glorious scene?

What reasons are there to believe that we are often afraid of God's best blessings, and that he sometimes removes them in condescension to our weakness?

Verse 14—If this man had stood, instead of kneeling, and made his petition to Jesus, what reason is there to think that it would not have been just as pleasing to Jesus?

Verse 15—What benefit do we derive today when we pray for our sick ones?

Verse 16-17—What had the disciples done to deserve being called, a "faithless and perverse generation?" Why should a good man with weak
