very frank criticism of the legitimacy of his own chirography. Being upturned in New York one day and wishing to send a telegram and also to get shaved, he entered a hotel and sent his dispatch. Then, passing into the barber shop, he sat down in a chair and, according to custom, was soon sound asleep.

Meantime the telegram had created a decided sensation. Mr. Greeley having thrown it down hastily on the desk and neglected to translate it. Nobody, from the manager down, being able to supply a legible equivalent for the mysterious characters, a messenger was sent into the barber shop with the scroll.

Waking with a start and supposing that the boy had brought an answer to his dispatch, Mr. Greeley took the paper, scanned it for a moment and then, with a look of deep disgust, piped out, "What blamed idiot wrote this?"

The Unkindest Cut.
"We can bear the injustice of being deprived of voting," shouted the suffragist, "but we must protest, and protest with all the vigor of our womanhood, against man, who makes our state of political slavery the target for his insulting irony!"

"Just to think!" she resumed after taking a drink of water and a deep breath—"just to think of the noble form of woman being made to typify in marble, bronze and granite that which has never been here—liberty!"

Java coffee growing is now being introduced into Porto Rico to meet the American demand for a "highly flavored, aromatic coffee."

THE SCRAP BOOKHis Bitter Rebuke.
The dinner had not gone at all well. The waiter was slow, the food was cold, and the cooking was bad. The guest in the German restaurant was of a naturally peevish disposition, anyway, and he complained vigorously to the head waiter, and especially complained of the waiter at his table. As he was leaving the waiter said humbly: "If you only knew what a hard time we waiters had you would not be so hard."

"But," said the guest, "why be a waiter?"

"Vot else could I do?" asked the waiter.

"Well," said the guest, "up at the Metropolitan Opera House they pay a man $5 a night to play the oboe. You might try that."

"But," said the waiter, "I don't know how to play dot oboe."

"What is the difference?" observed the guest as he turned away, leaving a much mystified waiter. "You don't know how to waiter either. You might settler your incompetence."—Cosmopolitan.

On Safe Ground.

A young clergyman who had been appointed to a curacy in one of the parishes of an English university town was embarrassed by the thought of criticism in his cultivated congregation. He sought counsel from his father, an old and sagacious vicar, saying: "Father, I am hampered in my ministry."

lary in the pulpit I am now serving. If I cite anything from geology there is science, right before me. If I use an illustration in Roman mythology, then there is Professor B. ready to trip me up for my inaccuracy. If I introduce something in English literature that pleases me, I am cowed by the presence of the learned doctor who holds the chair of English literature here. What shall I do?"

The old man replied: "Do not be discouraged. I'll give you safe advice. Preach the gospel. They probably know very little of that."

Impertinent.

Sarah, duchess of Marlborough, one day remarked to her grandson, Jack Spencer, "Jack, you must marry, and I will give you a list of the ladies you may propose to."

"Very well, granma," he said, and he proposed to the first on the list. When he came back with his wife from their wedding tour they went to pay their respects to the old lady.

"Well, now," she said, "I am the root, and you are only the branches, and therefore you must always pay me a great deal of deference."

"That is all very well," said Jack impertinently, "but I think the branches would flourish a great deal better if the root was underground."
