CHANGE

Quit Coffee and Get Well.

A woman's coffee experience is interesting. "For two weeks at a time I have taken no food but skim milk, for solid food would ferment and cause such distress that I could hardly breathe at times, also excruciating pain and heart palpitation and all the time I was so nervous and restless."

"From childhood up I had been a coffee and tea drinker and for the past 20 years I have been trying different physicians, but could get only temporary relief. Then I read an article telling how some one had been cured by leaving off coffee and drinking Postum and it seemed so pleasant just to read about good health I decided to try Postum in place of coffee."

"I made the change from coffee to Postum and such a change there is in me that I don't feel like the same person. We all found Postum delicious and like it better than coffee. My health now is wonderfully good."

"As soon as I made the shift from coffee to Postum I got better and now all of my troubles are gone. I am fleshy, my food assimilates, the pressure in the chest and palpitation are all gone, my bowels are regular, have no more stomach trouble and my headaches are gone. Remember I did not use medicines at all—just left off coffee and drank Postum steadily."

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Even the most domestic of women cherishes a bit of frivolity and loves to dress and look the part on her few occasions of mild dissipation. It is for her that these new fancies in evening cloaks, easily reproducible at home, are given here.

Most of the new cloaks are of chiffon or net over silk. The silk or satin lining is rather tight, being made in coat style with semi-fitting sleeves, from shoulder to elbow length, and caught here and there by bows or bands of silk or colored embroidery.

Sometimes there is a plain silk cape surplice, like a college gown or a choir boy's dress, and the chiffon, this time closely lined with china silk, flows from this in graceful lines. The bottom and the front opening are edged with wide bands of the moire silk, which is fastened by means of silk braid frogs.

Mr. Kuhn has been very active both in the religious and political life of Richmond and Sixth district. A MISSISSIPPI ENTHUSIAST

Mrs. Lena Gresham, of Clinton, Miss., Has a Few Facts to Tell Our Readers About Cardui.

Clinton, Miss.—"Thanks to Cardui," writes Mrs. Lena Gresham, of this place, "I have been greatly relieved."

"I suffered for three years from female inflammation, and had taken medicine from four different physicians without much benefit."

"I have received more benefit from seven bottles of Cardui, than from all the physicians."

Just try Cardui. That's all we ask. It speaks for itself. It has helped so many thousands, it must be able to help you.

Trying Cardui won't hurt you. It is safe, harmless, gentle in action, and purely vegetable.

If you are weak, tired, down and out, try Cardui.

If you are sick, miserable, and suffer from womanly pains, like headache, backache, dragging feelings; pains in side, arms, legs, etc.—try Cardui.

It is the medicine for all women. It is the tonic for you.

MISS ETHEL ROOSEVELT.

And Her Scotch Terrier, Bongo.

MISS ROOSEVELT ON DECK OF THE KALSERIN.

"She's a charming girl," enthusiastically declared a man who came over in the steamer with the Roosevelt party when asked how he liked Miss Ethel. "She's so unaffected and unspoiled," he continued, and that's saying a whole lot for such a young girl who has had enough attention to turn a head less well poised."

Miss Ethel Roosevelt, while of a bookish turn of mind, is most decidedly an "outdoor girl," and while on shipboard it was her delight to take brisk walks on deck accompanied by her latest pet, the Scotch terrier Bongo.

sent to her by her host, Mr. Arthur Leigh, just before she left London. The illustration shows Miss Roosevelt standing on the deck of the Kaiserin holding the dog in her arms.

One girl who objects to "horrid dark clothes that are dirty even if they don't show" hit upon a plan last summer that may prove helpful.

Early in the spring she went carefully over her wardrobe and laid aside every garment that would stand only another washing. This gave her a goodly supply of underwear, blouses, neckties, handkerchiefs and even a shirt waist dress or two.

They were all carefully laundered and put together in readiness for the vacation in the woods.

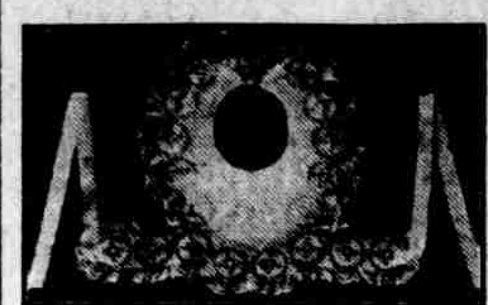

It was surprising how well dressed that girl looked, yet her laundry bill cost her not one cent. As soon as a garment was soiled it was straightway thrown away, or, rather, swelled the camp bonfire.

It is well to make a collection of garments on their "last legs" through the year, as it may not be possible in a hurry to get enough worn-out clothes to make the plan feasible. Call it your "outing outfit" and give it a separate drawer where it can be kept in neatly folded piles, with layers of blue paper between.

A Practical Bib. What could be more sensible than the baby's bib illustrated? It is a wonder that it was not designed years ago, but "all things come to him who waits" is a trite but true saying, and now we have this smart bib.

Every mother will appreciate the fact that there is no medicine so safe and at the same time so pleasant to take as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the positive cure for all diseases arising from stomach trouble. The price is very reasonable—50c and $1.

practical value of a bib that has a waistband, as this one has, and straps that tie the bib securely in place so that there is no working around to the back of the neck, thereby spoiling the front of the frock.

As seen in the cut the bib is of handkerchief linen and is hand embroidered, but the same design could be carried out in a less expensive manner.

A Better Plan.

It was the dreamy hour after dinner and the girls were talking in the hushed tones appropriate to the occasion.

"I've just heard of a new charm to tell whether any one loves you and if so, who it is," whispered Elsie. "What is it?" queried Sophie, absent ly fingering her new diamond ring. "Well, you take four or five chestnuts, name each of them after some man you know and put them on the fire grate, and the first one that pops is the one that loves you."

"H'm!" said Sophie. "I know a better way than that."

"Do you?"

"Yes, indeed. By my plan you take one particular man, place him on the sofa in the drawing room, sit close to him with the light a little low and look into his eyes. And then if he doesn't pop you'll know it's time to change the man on the sofa."

Couldn't Tell.

"Has your pocket ever been picked?" "Really, I don't know. It never was before I got married. If it has been since I, of course, would have no way of finding out about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Inspiration.

"This is a pretty good poem. You must have had some strong inspiration."

"I had. The editor promised me $10."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The heart of a loving woman is a golden sanctuary where often there reigns an idol of clay.—Linnæus.
