"A Toothsome Flavour"

True for you, there's a treat in the crisp, nutty, delicate sweet taste of Grape-Nuts served with cream or milk. (Don't spoil the food by trying to cook it. That work is done and perfectly done at the factories.)

The cream should soften it a bit, but not enough to excuse the teeth from at least a few good earnest "chews" for old Dame Nature sends rich blessings to the long chewer. Of course the one with weak teeth can soften the food with milk down to a mush if necessary but the good old Dame doesn't smile quite so cheerfully on them.

You know, children and adults must use the teeth strong and to preserve them. Then the act of chewing brings down the much needed saliva from the gums and that helps amazingly in the digestion of foods of various kinds. The saliva is not so much required with Grape-Nuts, for this food is partially pre-digested, that is, the starch turned into a form of sugar in the process of making, and that helps give it the fascinating flavour.

Grape-Nuts people are healthy and enjoy good things. "There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

"The most expatriating citizen I encounter," says the retired professor, "is the chap who's always excusing himself for his neglect of you on the ground that he's too busy to pause a second. His days and nights are so full, the demands upon his time are so many and so urgent, that you must forgive him if he appears rude. You're willing to forgive him for anything if he'll only forget to apologize. There are thousands of such citizens, buzzing like tops, trotting around a circle as big as a silver dollar and getting from $15 to $20 a week out of life—if they have luck—while their deliberate neighbor next door'll sit down and think a few minutes and earn $100,000 a year."—Duluth Herald.

FASHION'S FADS AND FANCIES

BY FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

New York, September 10.—Earlier in the season there was a rumor to the effect that wider skirts would be worn in the fall and winter, but this prediction has proved to be unfounded. At least, it is asserted by those in close touch with the foremost dictators of fashion in Paris, that the vogue for narrow skirts will continue for some time to come. The models recently imported all show narrow lines, although banded effects are not favored by the best makers.

The new fall suitings shown in the shops are extremely beautiful. Softness of texture and lightness of weight are combined in new weaves of wool, of mohair and of permo. The French inspirations in fabric and this luxurious material is used by all the great houses for street-tailored costumes of a dressy character. From Bernard comes a street suit of seal brown, satin backed with cloth, which is one of the most important models of this kind shown in America so far. There is a straight, narrow skirt fitting smoothly over the hips and slightly gathered in at the ankles under a six-inch band of seal skin. The hip length coat is in the new box shape, which defines the figure very little, and this coat has a broad collar and revers, and also cuffs of the seal-skin.

Ratine is a new wool material that is as light and soft as thistle-down, and which is used for smart motor coats and for utility suits. Brocades of great beauty are being used for handsome limousine and evening coats. Broadcloths and serges hold the palm for coat and skirt costumes, and there are basket weaves and chevrons which answer for rough-weather coats and suits. All of these materials are more or less trimmed with fur, Hudson seal being the most popular fur for bands and border trimmings, though the soft, silky moleskin is used on some suits and frocks of light material.

Serge and chevrot are the materials that bid fair to occupy first place in the long list of autumn fabrics. They are wide, cutting advantage, and the variety of colors and weaves is worthy of favorable consideration. In Paris these dresses that are built on shirtwaist suit lines, will be worn until November without a coat, with perhaps black satin scarfs to protect the chest and throat. These dresses are very attractive not only for street duty, but also for the house and the place of business. There is a vogue for striped materials. These are frequently combined with bands of plain buttons, satche and black pipings are generally used as trimming.

Black and white is very fashionable this season; grays of all sorts are high in favor and black and gray combinations, though somber in tone, are extremely chic. All the shades of mauve and violet will be in vogue during the autumn and winter, and there is a new purple color which is particularly well liked by the Paris courtiers. Huckleberry is a blue-violet shade, which is shown in cloth and satin fabrics, elderberry being a similar shade with more of the burgundy tone. The coats of many rather somber colored suits are brightened by very cheerful linings of bright satin or of Persian silk.

Christian Endeavor--Home Missions

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 11, 1910.

Topic—Proud of what?—Jer. ix. 2, 24; I Cor. 1:31; Rom. xii. 3. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The Bible has a great deal to say about pride—our undue self esteem, personal exaltation and a feeling of superiority over others—which leads to a haughtiness and a lordliness over others that are contemptible and despicable. No Christian Endeavor should ever possess such a spirit, for it is one of the most conspicuous of faults and at the same time one of the most unconscious after it has been allowed to fully develop itself in us.

There are many things in life of which men are proud that, instead of showing them to possess a noble spirit, only prove that they are unworthy. Jeremiah quotes the Lord as saying, "Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might; let not the rich man glory in his riches. And yet how many are proud of these very things—wisdom, power and riches! But why should they be? Why should a wise man be proud? He inherits his wisdom or the ability to accumulate wealth, so why should he be proud of what cost him little or nothing? Moreover, in comparison with God, who alone is all wise, their wisdom is foolishness and the foolishness of God is the wisdom of men," says the apostle.

The heathen nations declare the apostle, "thinking themselves to be wise, became fools." Thinking themselves wise, they forgot God, to whom they should have glorified God, and thereby they became fools.

Why should men be proud of their physical strength? They should not, answers the apostle, because "the weakness of God is stronger than men." How uncertain physical strength is! Who gave it to man but God, so why should the strong man be proud? And one who only normal strength develops a certain poor cause for pride.

Why should the rich be proud of their riches? Much of it is inherited from others and is no sign of any unusual talent possessed by the heirs. Moreover, when personally acquired there is no room for pride. Nothing is more uncertain than riches. They fly from us, or we die and leave them. The rich fool in the parable of Christ said, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years," but the Lord said, "This night thy soul shall be required of thee. Then whose shall these things be? What a contrast between 'many years' and 'this night'! But how often history has repeated itself in this respect! Men toil and labor to lay up well, neglecting God and the higher aims of life. Gold is their God. When they have enough they expect to give up business, become religious and live comfortably for many years. But who ever gets enough, and if here and there a man does and settles down how long does he live to enjoy it? The least thing in all the world of which to be proud is money, and yet here it most exists and the rich are proud and haughty and use their money to trample underfoot the poor.

Why should men be proud of their birth? Yet how many are! They may have lost fortune and everything else but high birth, and yet how haughty and proud they remain! It is sad enough to be poor in this world, but to be "poor and proud" is about the limit.

Why should men be proud of their personal morality? Yet many are. They are so strictly good that they have no need of repentance or of Christ to save them. They expect to be saved on their own merits, but there is no other name under heaven given to men whereby we must be saved except the name of Jesus.

If we should not be proud of our possessions or talents, what should we do? Thank God in deep humility for the extra blessing which all men do not possess. Glorify God and the crucified Saviour. God forbid that I should glory save in Christ and Him crucified.

May, There, Christian Endeavor! Make hay while the sun shines. Make hay if it clouds. Make hay if the wind whines. Make hay snowing shrouds. Make hay any weather. Make hay any climate. Make hay any time. Make hay all the time.

—Rev. C. Julian Tuthill in Christian Endeavor World.

FIND P. R. R. GUILTY

Washington, Sept. 10.—In a decision rendered by the interstate commerce commission yesterday it was held that Pennsylvania Railroad Company by its rules and practices regarding the distribution of cars to coal mines on its lines, had shown undue discrimination against W. F. Jacoby & Co., and Clark Brothers Coal Mining Company, both operators in the bituminous field of Pennsylvania.

It was held that a special allotment of 500 of its system cars daily to a particular operator for the purpose of supply foreign steamships with coal is discriminatory so long as the cars are not counted against the ratings of the mines during periods of car shortage. It also was held that the defendant's regulations for the distribution of coal cars during periods of car shortage were unlawful.

The commission ordered the Pennsylvania Railroad to suspend the regulations by November 1, and directed that thereafter it count all system cars against the rated capacity of the mines.

The claim of the complainants for damages in the sum of approximately $90,000 was held in abeyance, pending further investigation and argument.

Roosevelt Offered Presidency of University of Minnesota

(Palladium Special)

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 10.—Wouldn't it be a nice thing for the "predatory interests" of Theodore Roosevelt had accepted the offer of the presidency of Minnesota university, formally offered to him by Frank B. Kellogg while the former president was here to speak at the conservation congress and state fair?

Of course the former president has turned down the proposition. A salary of $200,000 a year didn't appeal to him for a minute. According to the story told in the corridors of the St. Paul hotel where President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt were guests, Mr. Kellogg, the St. Paul lawyer whom Roosevelt selected as his "trust buster," told the former president that if he would accept the presidency of the university it would at once receive an endowment fund of $30,000,000 which is within a few millions of the amount John Rockefeller has bestowed upon the university of Chicago. But the former president couldn't see it. He considers that he has worked out for him. And there is the matter of the presidency of the United States at a salary of $75,000 a year.

It is understood that James J. Hill, "the grand old man of the northwest," is the one who would supply the $30,000,000, providing Mr. Roosevelt would take the presidency. Mr. Hill has great wisdom and he knows that no man could bridge the Roosevelt tongue so it is not apparent that he was

AN OLD GRAFT WORKED

Indiana Cities Report One in Which Sympathies Are Played Upon.

AUTHORITIES ARE ACTIVE.

A new graft—one that works on the sympathy and sentiment of people bereft of relatives or friends, is being operated in Gas Belt cities and postal authorities have set their machinery in motion with a view of catching the guilty party.

The scheme which is said to be worked by a former insurance man, brings in many reports that, brings in many an ill-gotten dollar, according to reports that have come to the authorities.

A fountain pen, one of the cheap variety, that sells for $20 a gross, figures in the transaction, and is the medium used for wresting a dollar from persons who have lately lost by death a member of the household.

The scheme is worked like this: Close touch is kept on all deaths that occur and the name and residence of the deceased carefully noted. Within the next few days, a letter addressed to the dead person is sent out.

This letter goes on to say that the company is sorry to have caused delay in sending the fountain pen lately ordered, but the fact is the factory in which they are made is so over-crowded with work that the shipment could not be filled sooner. The hope is expressed in the letter that the delay did not cause any serious inconvenience and that the pen will be found to be just as represented.

In the same mail a fountain pen is sent, and the party to whom it is addressed requested to forward by return mail the dollar, according to previous agreement.

In about ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, the family of the dead person, still submerged in grief, keep the pen and send the dollar. They figure that the fountain pen is probably the last thing that "John" or "William" ever bought, and their feelings will not permit them to repudiate his last contract. So the pen worth probably 15 cents is carefully laid away and a dollar mailed to the grafter, who according to reports is doing a land office business.

Enough Said. "You are an advocate of woman suffrage. What
