He proposed to cancel his note against the congregation if they would raise enough money to pay off all other indebtedness. Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—When the North German Lloyd liner Frankfurt arrived at her dock at the foot of Snyder avenue yesterday there was at least one man in the crowd gathered on the wharf whose heart was filled with hope. Karl Fischer, of Scranton, Pa., had sent passage money to his sweetheart, Marie Schur, representing the savings of three years, and he was happy in the thought that he was soon to see her.

Elbowing his way through the crowd he soon found himself near a group of immigrants. The next minute his face lit up with joy as he saw the girl who promised to be his wife in the fatherland. Then his expression changed. Beside her was a man he knew well. He had been his rival in the little German village. In a moment he learned the truth. Marie Schur was no longer Marie Schur. She had married Johannes Zygmund, and they spent Karl's savings to come to America.

Without a word the flitted lover turned his back on the pair, boarded a trolley car and caught the first train back to Scranton. There he will recall the invitations sent out for the wedding that was scheduled to take place next week.

Three years ago Fischer had come to this country, leaving his sweetheart in the fatherland. She promised to be true to him, and he worked hard at his trade to get money enough to bring her here. A few weeks ago he sent his savings to her, and she told him in a letter that she would arrive yesterday. There was sufficient money to pay for the passage of two, but Karl hadn't reckoned on that. He said he told Marie to keep the surplus cash for herself.

It had been planned to have a big wedding feast next week and Karl's friends for far and near had been invited. The immigration officers looked over Johannes and Marie and decided that they would be worthy acquisitions to the ranks of the German-American population of the United States and passed the mthrough the lines. The pair left last night for Dakota, where Zygmund will take up farming.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 10.—W. A. Kittinger, of this city, former state senator, will not prepare a complaint for the impeachment of Lew Shank, mayor of Indianapolis, unless a good fee for his services is guaranteed. Mr. Kittinger explained today why he had been reticent in talking about the contemplated impeachment proceedings with himself as counsel in the case. It was all because there was no money in sight for the job, and until there is some showdown along that line Mr. Kittinger will stick to his local clients and let Indianapolis lawyers take a chance for their fee in the case.

Craighead Plumbing and Electric Co., 910 Main St.*NEWS FROM THE LABORWORLD*BUILD UP THE UNIONS

Organize All Workers, Says a Socialist Editor.

FOR ECONOMIC FREEDOM.

Political Action Must Wait Until Wage-workers Are United Under Unionism's Banner—Robert Hunter Tells Socialism How It Has Erred.

Robert Hunter in a recent article, which we reprint from the Minnesota Union Advocate, warns Socialists that they must cease fighting trades unionism if they hope to further their cause. Mr. Hunter says:

We Socialists are fast revising our views. Indeed the revision is proceeding a bit too fast. Yesterday we were extremists on one side; tomorrow we promise to be extremists on the other side. Mr. O'Neill, editor of the Miners' Magazine, said recently "that it was idle to talk of political unity while the workers were divided on the economic field."

"It is a consoling philosophy," he said, "that tells us all we have to do is to march up to the ballot box on election day. But other things are necessary."

"We must have unity in the shops, mills and factories. We must be thoroughly educated and organized. We must be alert, must be conscious of our interests and be prepared at all times to resist encroachments."

"Blind protest voting will solve nothing. Our emancipation will not come from the sky nor from the manipulation of little slips of paper called ballots. Get the workers into the unions. We are slowly rejecting the theory," he said, "that political action alone is necessary."

Now, these are the words of a sturdy Socialist. John O'Neill has fought a good fight, and what he says is worth giving ear to. And we must recognize the fact that in this case he speaks the view of thousands of other good Socialists. We have gone to one extreme, and now we are on the point of going to the other extreme.

Now, men and movements that go to one extreme are likely to swing about and go to the other extreme. Enrico Ferri used to be the most violent revolutionist in the Socialist movement of Europe. The other day he left the Italian Socialist party to support the new capitalist cabinet.

John Burns was in his hunger days a raging lion. Today he is more conservative than Winston Churchill and Lloyd-George, two liberal politicians. Aristide Briand used to be a violent "direct actionist." Nothing but a general strike and insurrection would satisfy his revolutionary soul. Today Briand is premier of France.

The extremist is an extremist even when he turns from a revolutionist into a conservative. I do not mean to say that O'Neill is of this type. Far from it. I only mean to say that with movements, as with men, extremism is dangerous.

John O'Neill and other Socialists all over America are beginning to see that political action will not solve everything. And that is true.

The mistake was made in going to the first extreme. We ought never to have said that political action alone was necessary. We ought never to have derided the unions, jeered at their weaknesses or chuckled at their errors. That was the first error and a terrible one. It was an error the Germans made at first, although they soon squared themselves. And it is a fact that in no other country has this error persisted as it has in America. And it is also a fact that if we continue to persist in this error we shall create a situation that will put back socialism for many years to come. We shall see able and valiant working class comrades like John O'Neill

A UNIQUE DWELLING

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Labor is not an expensive item in the cost of the new home Mrs. John Lavinsky is building on Water street in this city, for she is doing the entire work herself.

The house is a two-story brick building and Mrs. Lavinsky has done all the work that a single person could do, putting in the window frames, setting the studding. She is a well-built, middle-aged widow. When questioned, she laughingly replied:

"I have the time and can do the work myself, therefore I see no reason why I should hire it done. I am getting along fine and do not need any male help. No, I do not take any interest in suffrage, but I think that a woman can do anything that a man can, and more besides."
