FASHION'S FADS AND FANCIES

BY FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

New York, Sept. 24.—However great may be the uncertainty as to the general style which will prevail during the coming winter season, there seems to be not the shadow of a doubt that velvet will enter to an unusually great extent into the making of costumes and millinery during the next few months. The French dressmakers are making use of velvet in every possible way. It trims all kinds of frocks, is made up into entire frocks and costumes, is used for separate coats and enters largely into new millinery. At its best it is now so light and fine and supple that it may be used successfully in any way, and the colorings in the new velvets are indescribably lovely.

In a number of imported models for visiting purposes velvet and crepe or velvet and other supple silks have been effectively combined, and it seems probable that this type of coat and frock costume will be much in evidence during the winter. The frock is of silk-crepe, cache-mire de sois, any of lightweight satin finish silks, nixon or chiffon cloth, and is trimmed in velvet, the deep skirt band so familiar during the summer, apparently to retain its popularity, being usually the most emphasized detail in the velvet.

If the entire coat is of velvet, it is usually short and has silk cords, buttons, collar and cuffs. The famous French makers have shown some full length costume coats in velvet, satin, etc., but it is not likely that American women will take up the long coat idea this season.

Most of the imported models show a slight shortening of the waist line by means of girldes and the principal designers of Paris seem to favor a waist line about one inch above the normal. Some of them, like Polret, have gone in for exaggerated Directorate and Empire styles. But these models are sought only by those who affect extreme and bizarre styles. At the same time there will be many dinner and evening gowns worn which are built upon rather exaggerated Empire and Directorate lines.

The greens bid fair to assume great importance in the coming season's color scheme. The color is not insisted upon in the first showing of materials, but at the Paris openings it was distinctly emphasized and the importers all seem to be bringing over numerous models in green. Just what tone of green will be the most popular remains to be seen, but there is already a great variety of the most charming shades on the market.

There are also many beautiful models and fabrics in the soft blues, somewhat less vivid than the tones most prevalent in the spring and summer, though brilliant blues are also seen. One of these new blues, which suggests some of the blues of former seasons, is particularly delightful, soft and warm, and is much used in connection with black velvet. This new shade is seen in the softest and most lustrous of crepes, with a narrow border design in black velvet on the blue ground. Similar materials are offered, of course, in other colorings with the black velvets and there are many beautiful monotone effects on the same general order. All over velvets and silk brocades, light and supple as the finest crepe, are numerous too, both in two tones and in monotone colorings.

Some beautiful model frocks in soft grays are built up of these silk and velvet materials, and apropos of gray frocks the dash of vivid, purple which relieves some of the most effective models, must be noted. This rich and soft yet voyant purple is being emphasized considerably in the early millinery and as a relieving color in frocks and it threatens to take the place held by the vivid king's blue last season. As a relieving note for certain grays it is at its best and several charming frocks in light smoky gray chiffon or chiffon crepe trimmed in gray satin or velvet had crush girldes of purple.

Black and white striped silks, chiffon, silks and velvet and woollens are many, and some admirable models in these materials are shown among the latest importation. Stripes of many kinds are exploited and especially among the sheer chiffons, gauzes, etc., there are fascinating things in the stripe designs.

The printed chiffons of all kinds are beautiful. Persian effects have it said, had their day so far as the ultra fastidious are concerned, but one finds them among all the new materials and sees them in many of the new imported models. Where the designs are not Persian, the soft, rich, Oriental colorings to which the Persian had accustomed people are often used, and wonderful embroidery bands, motifs, etc., in these colorings are shown on the trimming counters. The bugle and bead embroideries also are charming and promise to be used extensively during the winter season.

ing to the Musical Courier this week says:

Without question, the highest criterion of work accomplished by the combined forces of chorus, orchestra and soloists was in Verdi's Requiem. The exquisite lyric qualities of this work, and its rich colorful orchestral scoring coalesced to a finish, grace and suavity of polyphony, came as a revelation, after much that was turgid and heavy in the festival program making. The soloists were Madame De Vere-Sapio, soprano; Edith Clegg, contralto; John Costes, tenor and Robert Radford, basso. The crystalline purity of Madame Sapio's voice and her absolute integrity to pitch were essentially to be observed in her work in the Requiem. The work of the other soloists was also all that could be desired. Other soloists heard in the several choral works listed were Agnes Nicholls, Madame Gleeson White, Amy Simpson, Ada Crossley, Mildred Jones, Phyllis Lett, Frederick Austin, Plunket Green and William Higley. The organists were S. R. Sinclair and G. A. Atkins.

CHARGE OF MUSIC.

With the opening of Earlham college next Tuesday a number of persons in this city will begin their music studies for the year. Miss Laura Gaston will be the head of this department. Mr. John H. Campbell, of Richmond, Ind.,

Writes Letter Which May Be of Great Interest to Skin Sufferers of this City.

Richmond, Ind.
I have been cured of one of the severest and most obstinate cases of Eczema that mortal could possibly be afflicted with. My case dates back ten months ago. My hand had swollen to twice its normal size and the itching burning sensation was almost unendurable. I began to use salves, liniments, ointments and various poultices, etc. In fact I tried everything I could hear of but to no avail. My hands and arms were in a terrible condition. 2-3 finger nails came off. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Could not feed or dress myself. A number of persons who saw my hands shook their heads and said I had blood poison. I was seriously alarmed and thought of going to the hospital. In looking over my evening paper, I was fortunate enough to note the D. D. D. ad. I went at once to my druggist, Dr. Conkey of Richmond. He was amazed and told me I had one of the worst cases of eczema he had ever looked at. But he told me he knew of some bad cases that had been cured and entirely cured by the D. D. D. eczema remedy. After the first two or three applications of D. D. D. I found to my utter and very agreeable surprise, a marked improvement. The itching and burning and the painful misery of months had almost entirely disappeared. After using the third small bottle my hand, wrist and arm had a clean, new soft skin, almost without scar or blemish. I then began using the D. D. D. soap which cannot be praised or valued too highly. Any afflicted as I was and so miraculously cured, may address me and learn more of this wonderful remedy. D. D. D. and what it did for me. John H. Campbell, Ex-soldier of the Civil war, 1534 Main St.

So many convincing statements, similar to the above, have been made to us privately by sufferers from aggravated skin diseases to whom we have sold the D. D. D. Prescription, that we feel "bound to give it our unqualified endorsement. By special arrangement with the D. D. D. Company we can furnish anyone who has not tried the remedy with a special size bottle for 25 cents. Conkey Drug Co., Richmond, Ind.
