

CONVICT HINSHAW IS VERY ILL MAN

Physician, His Cousin, Says that the Murderer Has No Life.

NOW HAS TUBERCULOSIS

PARDON BOARD HAS THE STORY OF NOTORIOUS PRISONER'S SECOND DOWNFALL RELATED TO IT YESTERDAY.

(American News Service.)

Indianapolis, Sept. 30.—Diagnosis of the ailment of William E. Hinshaw, celebrated murder convict, shows weakness, lack of appetite, decrease 180 to 150 pounds, tubercular lump inside jaw, nervousness, bad heart action, diseased lungs, tubercular pallor. Symptoms listed Thursday afternoon to the pardon board by Dr. C. W. Hinshaw of Lynn, Ind., cousin of the clergyman-prisoner, read like a patent medicine catalogue. "He cannot live more than a year in prison. In all probability he will die in a few years if freed."

Dr. Hinshaw spoke from an examination of convict Hinshaw made August 10, with the prison physicians. He thinks a lump inside the mouth of the prisoner is of tubercular nature. The penitentiary doctors believe it is due to infection from a pair of prison corks.

In the second fight for the freedom of Minister Hinshaw, sentenced for life for wife murder, paroled, and sentenced for an affinity case, C. R. Carter of Lynn, brother-in-law of Mrs. Freeman, wife of the sheriff of Wabash county, was forced to relate again the revolting story of Hinshaw's second downfall which concerned his wife's sister, in a tale that would shock Ellnor Glynn. He rehearsed it manfully, getting rid of an unpleasant duty.

Slightly dramatic was the incident when a member of the pardon board asked Attorney Caldwell of Winchester, representing Hinshaw why the latter did not take the stand during his trial. Caldwell was puzzled, but up spoke John Duncan of Indianapolis who assisted in the defense of Hinshaw and was present presumably without the knowledge of Caldwell. The attorneys were introduced. Then Duncan said it was due to Hinshaw's attorney's confidence his sworn written statement would suffice that the accused man did not take the stand.

"I never knew a preacher yet who had a fair show when a woman was involved," said Attorney Duncan. "She was one of these sympathetic women who didn't believe Hinshaw was guilty. He was ready to receive sympathy after ten years from the sound of a woman's voice," said Attorney Caldwell.

Bucharest. The population of Bucharest is about 300,000. The houses are mostly of one or two stories in the residential section and built separately with a great deal of open space. The city is very widespread and covers an area of about twenty-five square miles.

THIS IS CERTAIN

The Proof That Richmond Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.

Miss Frances Hamilton, 27 N. Ninth St., Richmond, Ind., says: "I was annoyed greatly by pains in the small of my back and shoulders. When my sister advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at A. G. Loken & Co's Drug Store and the use of two boxes freed me from my trouble. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills worthy of recommendation."

The above statement was given in July, 1906 and on Dec. 12, 1908, Miss Hamilton added: "I have had no return of kidney complaint since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me. I am always glad to say a word in praise of this excellent remedy."

A Candidate for Governor of Nebraska Tells His Life Story

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 30.—In an authorized interview published here Mayor James C. Dahlgren of Omaha, democratic candidate for governor of Nebraska, tells the story of his life, how he came to Nebraska under an assumed name after fleeing from Texas, his career on the plains and the part he played in the development of the state. Rumors that have been circulated from time to time that Mr. Dahlgren was compelled to leave Texas because he killed a man are given a different version in his own recital. Mayor Dahlgren admits he shot a man named Bree in Texas more than twenty years ago, and supposing he had killed him, fled to Arkansas, later coming to Nebraska. Later, he says, he learned the man he shot recovered. It was a case, he said, of shooting or being shot, and he (Dahlgren) was quickest on the draw.

The atmosphere in which he was reared, the mayor says, was such as to give him the reputation he has sometimes rejoiced in of being a "bad man."

Why He Killed His Mate. His version of the Texas shooting is as follows:

"An older sister married a man named Charley Bree, a shiftless sort of fellow—nothing but an outlaw. They lived together for two years, and some time after their child was born he deserted her for no apparent reason than that he was tired of married life and his innate cussedness. I was a fiery, quick tempered boy, less than twenty years of age. There was scarcely any law in the country and none that was likely to reach a cuss like that."

"I sent him word that I would shoot him the first time I saw him. Things went on in this condition for some time and Bree and I did not meet."

IRONCLAD CASTE.

Its Rule Among the Hindus Absolute and Unchangeable.

THE POWER OF THE BRAHMAN

All the Wealth of the World Would Not Enable a Lower Caste Hindu to Wed Into His Family or Touch His Hand—Tyrannical Social Divisions. Caste distinction in India is a thing difficult for a foreigner to comprehend. All the racial or religious distinctions which separate European nations from each other and divide them within themselves do not equal the number of classes into which the Hindus are divided by what is known as "caste."

The 300,000,000 Hindus are made up of diverse racial elements and speak about nineteen developed languages and over 100 dialects. They are again divided into over 3,000 castes, most of them with subcastes. One of these castes, the Brahmins, is split up into more than 800 subcastes, of which none will intermarry and few will eat together.

The term "caste" includes so many things that it is difficult to define it. There are, however, two properties essential to a true caste—first, there is no entry except by birth; second, marriage outside the caste is absolutely forbidden. To preserve the purity and maintain the exclusiveness of the society many minute rules of conduct, many restrictions on food and many ceremonial observances are imposed on the members and enforced by penalties which cannot be evaded, against which there is no appeal and which in extreme cases follow the offender beyond the grave.

But that is not all. The relations of castes to each other are as much a matter of religious observance as the rules for their internal regulation. The Brahmins are the highest admittedly and undoubtedly superior to all the rest. After them come those who are acknowledged to be twice born. The less honored follow in a graduated descent until the untouchable and unspeakable are reached at the lowest depths.

It may be urged that the separation between the Brahman and, let us say, the Kurni market gardener is no wider than that between the peer of the United Kingdom and the coal miner. There is this essential difference—that it is impossible for an Indian to change his caste. The coal miner may be elected to parliament, may become a cabinet minister and if he can make money enough may marry his son to a duke's daughter.

The Kurni must remain a Kurni. All the wealth of Croesus will not enable him to make an alliance with a Brahman family or to touch a Brahman's hand. The members of a caste may and in some cases do raise themselves in the sight of other castes by adopting more elaborate ceremonies and more scrupulous observances.

Then, one day, purely by accident, we met in a town where neither was known. No sooner did we face each other than we both pulled and shot. I got him, he missed me. We shot but once each. My shot hit him above the eye, and he dropped like lead. I thought he was done for, and wasted no time in getting away. I rode through into Arkansas, and stayed there in secret, soon after coming to Nebraska.

Got to Be Pretty Tough.

"This was the atmosphere in which I grew up and naturally as I became a young man about the only right I knew was that of the pistol and quick hand. The law was but poorly enforced and men lived by the right of might. I got to be pretty tough. I admit it. I went around a good deal of the time with a chip on my shoulder hoping some one would knock it off. The country was full of maverick cattle, and no one was a better hand than I with the rope chasing down these strays and putting the branding iron on them. Everybody did it. I was training with a bad crowd, as bad as there was in the country, harum-scarum, devil-may-care fellows, you know. I can see now that it was only a question of time when I would get into trouble. So I came to Nebraska to get away from it."

Mayor Dahlgren says he assumed the name of "Jim" Murray when he came to Nebraska, and retained it until about the time of his marriage.

His career in Nebraska, he said, was an open book. "From cowboy and sheriff," he continued, "I moved to Omaha, and engaged in the live stock commission business in South Omaha, meanwhile residing in Omaha. I got into Omaha politics, and that is how I came to be elected mayor the first time."

A half civilized Goid, for example, may find himself brought into contact with Hindus as the plow encroaches on the forest. He tries to raise his position and add to his self respect by adopting the exclusiveness of his Hindu neighbors. He will even outdo them if he can, and if the Hindu is scrupulous about his food the convert will wash the very wood with which his dinner is cooked.

No endeavors of this kind, however, will avail to lessen by a hair's breadth the distance between him and the caste Hindu or even to induce the Hindu barber to look upon him as a client whose chin he may shave and whose toe nails he may pare without degradation.

Another point connected with caste which has a very practical bearing and must be taken into account is the power of coercion which it gives to the brotherhood. If a man is excommunicated by his caste fellows nobody in the caste will marry him or will accept water from his hands or will eat with him.

If he is married his wife will not touch him or speak to him. He is dead to his family. The priest will not perform ceremonies for him. The village barber will not shave him, and the washerwoman will not wash his clothes. These are the methods of bringing pressure on the man. The strictest boycott which Irishmen have invented is mild compared to the final sentence of a caste punishment.

A system like this is a stern fact which has to be faced. There is not a police case or a civil case or a trial at the sessions, there is hardly an appointment to an office in India of whatever degree, in which the matter of caste has not to be considered. It forces itself into every assessment of land revenue, into every adjudication of rent. It affects the administration of justice, the proceedings of municipal and district councils.

The influence and power of the Brahman and the idea that he is above the law and is not to be punished as other people are still alive, although a century of British justice has done something toward eradicating them. On the other hand, the suggestion that a man of a lower caste might rise to an equality or nearer to an equality with members of a caste above him is unthinkable. Where the low caste men are, there they must remain. If they behave themselves it will be made up to them in a future existence—London Spectator.

Politeness is a locksmith and opens many difficult doors.

At Local Theaters

At the Murray.

Bristol's educated ponies at the Murray this week are certainly entertaining to such an extent that the little folks are sent into ecstasies of delight and please the grown ups mightily. These little animals do all but talk. They play see-saw, wait, answer questions, play at being dead, act as doctor and parson and many other diverting and entertaining stunts.

"The Colonials" furnish the music for the bill in a most delightful manner and should please the most critical. Eleanor Otis & Co. present a comedy sketch that illustrates stage life and shows that the good is prevalent in every one when the opportunity presents itself. W. J. Mills, the character comedian, presents a number of familiar and known personalities and does it so exactly and so quickly that one hardly realizes that the same person is acting the part of so many different individuals. The motion pictures present some comedy and some pathos. A bill that all must be delighted with is on at the Murray this week. Special school children matinee on Saturday. Next week, "The Mozarts."

Good Way to Use Hyomei For Catarrh

Besides breathing through the inhaler a few times a day, many catarrh sufferers write that they find inhaling HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-mei) from a bowl of steaming water each night before retiring a great aid in curing stubborn cases.

Try it; it's very simple; gives quick relief and makes you breathe easier. Fill a bowl half full of boiling water; pour into the water a teaspoonful of HYOMEI, cover head and bowl with a towel and breathe through nose and mouth the pleasant, medicated, antiseptic and healing vapor that arises.

This method relieves that stuffiness at once, and makes your head feel fine. You can get a bottle of HYOMEI at L. H. Fihe's and druggists everywhere, for only 50 cents. Ask for extra bottle HYOMEI inhaler.

But bear in mind that a HYOMEI outfit which includes inhaler and bottle of HYOMEI costs $1.00.

HYOMEI is guaranteed by L. H. Fihe and druggists everywhere to cure catarrh, sore throat, coughs, colds, asthma and croup, or money back. Try it on that generous basis.

Wheeler Wilcox says, "Laugh and the world laughs with you," but James Whitcomb Riley adds, "You've got to start the laughin' first!" And this is a mighty good time to start laughing. This is not a patent medicine ad.

If a man came up to you and offered you value to the amount of a dollar for a price less than one-third wouldn't you take it? Sure. And where can you find the dollar's value better illustrated than in a hundred cents worth of laughs? This is not a patent medicine ad.

Festival week means a week of festivity, otherwise a week of laughter, a cure for every ailment, a panacea for every ill; and every night's entertainment at the Gennett next week will include a dollar's worth of laughter for a thirty-cent price; some drama thrown in for good measure. This is not a patent medicine ad.

"The Man Who Made Good" is the title of Monday night's play; he makes good with a grin on his face. P. S. This is not a patent medicine ad.

Charlotte Temple Tonight.

Tonight the Imperial Stock Company will be seen at the Gennett theater in another of those popular book plays, Charlotte Temple, which is perhaps the greatest dramatization of the present day. Mary R. Rowson's novel of the same name, will be found in nearly every home in the country and the dramatization used by the Imperial players is the best stage version of the novel ever constructed. It possesses a charm that has made it immensely popular. Very few stories contain so much excellent material in dramatic plot and atmosphere and dramatic offering. There is a depth of feeling and vim of action containing an absorbing tale of the life of the unfortunate Charlotte. It is drama that grips with appeal to the finer emotions and teaches a moral lesson that reaches deep into the hearts of both men and women, combining all the salient features that endear this sort of a theatrical presentation to the theater goers of the present, and is a play that for intensity and strength of story has few equals in the history of the stage.

Never Weary of the Hearing.

"I overheard him telling her a story last night which she has heard fifty times, but she didn't stop him." "She is long suffering, surely." "Oh, I don't know. He told her she was the prettiest girl he had ever seen."

MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Oronogo, Mo.—"I was simply a nervous wreck. I could not walk across the floor without my heart fluttering and I could not even receive a letter. Every month I had such a bearing down sensation, as if the lower parts would fall out. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done my nerves a great deal of good and has also relieved the bearing down. I recommended it to some friends and two of them have been greatly benefited by it."—Mrs. MAE McKNIGHT, Oronogo, Mo.

Another Grateful Woman. St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered terribly with a female weakness and had backache, bearing down pains and pains in lower parts. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly and used the Sanative Wash and now I have no more troubles that way."—Mrs. A. H. HANCOCK, 5723 Prescott Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.
