

CAPITALISTS AFTER THEIR MUCKRAKERS

Wall St. Frequenters Form Big Magazine Publication—Opposed.

New York, Feb. 10.—Wall street is reaching out to throttle the muckraking magazines. Periodical literature in the future is to be sugar-coated and dipped in honey, according to the New York Press. That paper gives details of the recent changes in the magazine field and shows how Wall Street men have finally succeeded in getting control of a number of periodicals that have caused them trouble in the past.

J. P. Morgan & Co., according to the Press, is the firm most active in the move, although others are interested. Through Thomas W. Lamont, newest partner of the Morgan firm, that concern is now in position to dictate the policies of periodicals with a circulation of three million.

Lamont Controls Crowell Company. Lamont controls the Crowell Publishing company, which markets the Woman's Home Companion, the Farm and Fireside, and which last week secured possession of the American magazine.

"Lamont's two most important assistants in the Crownell concern, says the Press, are George H. Hazen, president, and Joseph P. Knapp, of the American Lithographic company, who is a director of the Associated Sunday magazines. This periodical has a circulation of more than one million. There are two or three publications reported to be on the ragged edge because of debts. There are publications whose owners, seeing an opportunity to sell out a figure that will make them independent, may conclude to let go to the trust."

Circulation War Predicted.

The Press states that the Curtis publications of Philadelphia, the McClure publications, Hampton's, the John Wanamaker periodicals, Robert J. Collier's and Conde Nast's magazines will not enter the combination and it predicts a fight for circulation between the independents, which will continue their popular fights against those that are syndicated owned.

BABY PUSHED INTO HANDS OF A WOMAN

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 10.—Carefully wrapped in soft, warm blankets, a blue-eyed baby boy, five weeks old was left at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Cox, 535 South Third street, by a mysterious woman in black thought to have come to Lafayette from Indianapolis on an early evening interurban car.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox had just finished supper when they heard a carriage stop in front of their house. Mrs. Cox went outside to investigate. As she approached the carriage a woman stepped from the vehicle and handed her what looked to be a small bundle of clothing.

"Here, take this and treat it kindly," said the woman, and pushing the bundle into the arms of the amazed Mrs. Cox, she hurried back into the carriage and drove away.

Mrs. Cox did not know, until she went inside, what she was carrying. When she recovered from her astonishment she hugged the baby and cried. She and her husband have no children and they will keep the little stranger and legally adopt it. The police were notified, but the identity of the woman will probably never be known.

Clergyman's Son Cured of Tuberculosis

To neglect a cold, bronchitis, lung trouble or Consumption is dangerous. We all know how prone people are to deny they have Consumption. It is a flattering disease, and the sufferer is still with the company of his torment. Call consumption by its own dread name—and then—take Eckman's Alternative. Because it is effective in tuberculosis. None need fear that there is plenty of evidence from live witnesses. Investigate the following:

Albion, N. Y.—Gentlemen: "Prior to taking Eckman's Alternative, I was located in Rochester, N. Y., suffering with LaGrippe, which developed into one month to live. My physician gave me one month to live, was having terrible night sweats and mid-day chills, and losing flesh rapidly, having gone from 112 to 102 lbs. I sought and remained home, and became so weak that walking a few feet exhausted me. On my return home my regular physician gave me an alternative treatment. My father, who is a clergyman, heard of Eckman's Alternative and induced me to take it. The night sweats and chills disappeared, my appetite came easier and gradually diminished and in a few days I developed an appetite, perfect health back to 135 lbs. I feel certain that I owe my life to Eckman's Alternative."

At Local Theaters

Russell Players.

You have heard of them for they have played all the city time around here and were in stock at Dayton and Zanesville, Ohio, for nine weeks each another reason why you have heard of them is they are using only the big royalty bills of Broadway and the prices remain the same. Now this is not a repertoire company playing melodramas but a company producing good comedies and dramas.

Among the plays for here are "The Girl in the Domino" a piece full of comedy in fact "The Girl in the Taxi" was taken from it. "The New Magdalene," "The Parting," "The Prince of Liars," "The Beau Brummel Burglar," "The Bachelor and the Maid," and "The Devil."

Don't forget we open Monday at the Gennett with ladies free when we play "The Beau Brummel Burglar."

The Man on the Box.

Those who have read "The Man on the Box" that popular novel by Harold McGrath, in which Henry E. Dixey starred a few years will receive with pleasure the news that the play which many critics concede is better than the book, will be presented at the Gennett theater tonight. The company is headed by Randolph Gray and Bernice Trousdale, and includes C. C. Archer, Ralph Dean, Florence Wright, Jay Coggshall, Howard Melville and Sydney Belmont. It is one of those clean wholesome comedies, in which the lover becomes a coachman and butler to be near the woman he loves. The play contains many striking funny situations which are bound to keep the audience in good humor. The first act is laid in a private room of Justice Watts' court in Washington, D. C. The second and third acts at the home of Colonel Amesley, a retired army officer, who resides at Chevy Chase, the most fashionable part of our national capitol. Count Karloff, a Russian nobleman and spy played a prominent part. While the play is a comedy of the highest type, the third act, where the count tries to force Col. Amesley to give the hand of his daughter in marriage, gives the company an opportunity to display their real dramatic ability, this scene being especially tense. The staging and costuming being correct in every detail.

At the Murray.

Whether one enjoys the best in literature of prose, verse or song, or dancing and acrobatic features, the bill at the Murray this week will please all. Certainly the feature act, A Night With the Poets, is decidedly one of the best acts ever offered at the Murray. Mr. Lloyd who has become one of the greatest favorites throughout the country as a reader has a host of admirers in Richmond who are taking advantage of the opportunity of hearing and seeing him again. He will present a number of new features during the week so it will pay anyone to visit the Murray several times this week.

The singing and talking act of Bennett and Sterling, the ventriloquist act and the acrobatic act are also worthy of notice. The motion pictures present so vividly such natural scenes and events that they too help to make a program that is pleasing.

SANTIAGO HERO IS CONFINED TO BED (American News Service)

Washington, Feb. 10.—Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, U. S. N., is confined to his bed today suffering from the fracture of two ribs and internal injuries which he sustained in a fall on the icy pavement in front of his residence. He is expected to recover rapidly, however, unless complications develop.

SEIZED AS THIEF; WANTED MONEY BACK

Miss Dodd, Who Dropped a Coin in Box, Took One Agent Shoved Out.

New York, Feb. 10.—In her haste to catch a train at the Hoyt street station of the subway, Marie Dodds, a stenographer of No. 98 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn dropped into the change box both the ticket and the five cents change she had just received from the ticket seller. She asked Thomas McGrath, the chopper, to give her the nickel back, and he referred her to John Enright, the agent.

Enright, instead of the five cents offered a receipt to Miss Dodds, an attractive girl of twenty.

"But it's only five cents and it will cost me ten to redeem the receipt in New York," Miss Dodds objected.

That's the rule," Enright replied, and turned to a woman who had approached the window from the other side. This woman had laid a dime on the sill, and when Enright pushed her ticket and her change toward her Miss Dodds reached for the coin.

Immediately Enright seized her by the wrist and sent McGrath for a policeman. When Patrolman Tevlin of the Adams street station returned with the chopper, Enright was standing beside Miss Dodds, outside his booth. He laid a charge of petty larceny against her, and she was taken to the Adams street police court, where Magistrate Nash was sitting. The girl demanded an immediate hearing.

"I could not see what kind of a coin it was the other woman gave at the window," Miss Dodds said, when she had told the Magistrate what led up to her arrest, "and when the seller pushed out a ticket and five cents the only thought that entered my mind was that he was giving the woman her ticket and that he was giving me my nickel after all."

"Just as I reached for the money he caught me by the wrist so roughly you can still see the marks." She held up her right hand, upon which the marks of fingers could be seen although the incident had occurred four hours earlier in the afternoon. Then he said to me:

"I've got you for once. You got it on me before, but now I've got it on you."

"What he meant by that was that last summer he asked me to go out with him one evening and I wouldn't do it. I complained to the company, and he was censured for speaking to me the way he did. I thought he was offering me my money or I wouldn't have even tried to take it. And I think he had me arrested just to get even with me."

Enright admitted that the complaint had been made against him, through an anonymous letter, and that he had been censured. He denied, however, that he held any malice against the girl.

When he had heard the testimony Magistrate Nash had Miss Dodds in $100 bail for trial in Special sessions. Later he paroled her in the custody of her counsel, a number of men present during the hearing urging him to waive bail.

Diamonds.

Diamonds were first brought to Europe from the east, where the mine of Sumbulpoor was the first known. Golconde, now in ruins, was once a celebrated diamond mart. The mines of Brazil were discovered in 1728 and for a long time furnished most of the diamonds of commerce. In 1867 diamonds were discovered in Cape Colony, and in 1870 the wonderful finds in the Transvaal were made which resulted in the immense fortunes of the late Cecil Rhodes and others. Most of the diamonds of the world are now furnished by the South African fields. —New York American.

ALL OF ONE NAME.

So They Had to Tag Each of the Many Tom Hazards.

Perhaps no community more carefully and frequently set forth its erratic fancy than did the early settlers of Narragansett, R. I., of whom W. B. Weedon tells in "Early Rhode Island."

There were so many of one name that the bearer must have a descriptive prefix lest he be lost in a concordant multitude. Mr. Updike cites thirty-two Tom Hazards living at one time and thus illustrates a few:

College Tom, because he had been at college. New Bedford Tom was his son and lived at New Bedford. Barley Tom, because he boasted how much barley he raised from an acre; Virginia Tom, because he married a wife there; Little Neck Tom, from the farm of that name; Nailer Tom, the blacksmith; Fiddle Head Tom, an obvious resemblance; Pistol Tom, wounded by an explosion of that arm; Young Pistol Tom, his son; Short Stephen's Tom, the father low, against Long Stephen's Tom, the father tall; Tailor Tom needs no explanation.

The Georges were not so numerous, but they were distinguished as Beach Bird George, of little legs; Shoestring George, an opponent of buckles; Wig George, Dr. George and Governor George.

The orders were given before the exact nature of the feast was revealed.

Shaw asked if the theater party had any special significance.

Still Very Good Friends.

"Does look like a wedding breakfast doesn't it?" laughed the stranger. "But it isn't, though I'm going to give one a little later on. The fact is, the guests at this party are all young women to whom I was once engaged. We are still friends, though, and they are friendly with one another—that is, those who are acquainted. I'm really not very good friends."

Johnny's mamma had put several patches on his trousers, when the little fellow tried the trousers on he said gravely, "Mamma, if you had made the patches a little bigger I'd have had now pants."
