

RECOUNT TALES OF EARLY RAILROADING

Men Slept Out When It Was
50 Degrees Below Zero
—Many Frozen.

New York, Feb. 11.—Peter F. Shelby, whose son, Charles Francis Shelby, was killed recently at Ancon, Peru, in an automobile accident, is at the Waldorf. Mr. Shelby was at Winchester, Va., when he got the news and came to New York to get further particulars.

"My son was thirty-six years old," said Mr. Shelby. "He was general superintendent of the metallurgical department of the Cerro de Pasco Mining company. He is survived by his wife and one son. He was educated by the Jesuits at Buffalo and he used to work for the Greene-Canaan people. The body will be sent home, and will be buried in Painesville, where my son's mother and sister are buried."

Mr. Shelby was in the railroad business for many years with James J. Hill. He said that as vice-president and general manager of the coast lines of the Great Northern he had laid the tracks from Puget Sound to the summit of the Cascades.

"I went into the railroad business just after the civil war, through which I served," said Mr. Shelby. "I got a wound in it which has given me trouble at times since. Of late I have made my home in San Francisco. But the other day I bought a real estate in Painesville, O., where I used to live, and I am on my way there now. The house is a replica of an old English castle, and was built by a man named Storrs, who used to be the agent for Connecticut of the Western Reserve. He sold it to a man named Avery, who was rich at the time Boss Tweed went down, and in the house is Tweed's old mantle, together with some really fine works of art. Storrs built the castle and died poor. I bought the place from Avery's daughter."

Getting Mr. Shelby's mind off his loss seemed to make him feel better.

"I went into the railroad business right after the war closed," he said. "I began in a subordinate position on the Union Pacific when that road had only two locomotives and forty miles of track extending west from Omaha. I went out there with General Casement, who was a famous railroad builder and who had served in the war. Those were wild days in that country. I remember that in '67 the Indians who were on the rampage most of the time and had to be kept off the line by soldiers, ditched an engine at Plum creek, 230 miles west of Omaha, but the engineer in the firebox alive and roasted him. At the time the road was completed, on May 10, 1869, I was in the traffic department in Omaha."

"I started with Mr. Hill twenty-five years ago next October. At the time I was general manager of the Montana Central, and when that was consolidated with the Great Northern I became general manager of the big road."

"Omaha had a population of three thousand when I first went there. All the material for the first three hundred miles of the Union Pacific was brought up the Missouri river. The nearest railroad station to Omaha was Boone, Ia., 150 miles away. The boats used to run all the way up from St. Louis to Ft. Benton, Mont."

"Thirty-two years ago I was sent by Jay Gould into the far northwest to study traffic prospects and determine whether they justified the building of the Utah Northern, now the Oregon Short line. I traveled 750 miles in a sleigh and one night slept out with the thermometer at 50 degrees below zero."

"In reading about recent experiences of arctic explorers I came across accounts of experiences that were similar to one I had that night. The felines formed so thick and fast on the eyelids of the driver that I had to break them off so that he could see his way. Then when my hands got so numb with cold that I could not keep up this work we did lose our way. We wanted the sleigh in the snow so as to break the force of the wind, and the four horses put their backs to the wind and stayed in that position all night. We spread buffalo robes on the snow and with my secretary on one side of me and my driver on the

Many Women Now Doing Without False Hair.

Rats and other false paraphernalia for the upbuilding of woman's thinned out hair may be necessary, but the sight is far from pleasing.

With care nature can supply to most women all the hair necessary for attractive dressing.

Many thousands of women, refined and educated, have learned that it is not hard to have, and to keep an abundance of lustrous hair, if Parisian Sage the hair grower is used daily.

Since its introduction into America, Parisian Sage has become a prime favorite with women who desire luxuriant hair that will not fall out or turn gray, used daily it will keep the scalp immaculately clean; will stop itching and falling hair, and remove every particle of dandruff.

It causes the hair to grow because it is able to penetrate into the roots, where it besides nourishing the hair, destroys the dandruff germs. Leo H. Fihe and druggists everywhere guarantee Parisian Sage to do exactly as advertised, or money back. A large bottle only costs 50 cents, and it is a most invigorating and refreshing hair dressing. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.

"Before we got to the state station at Pleasant Valley, near the summit of the Rockies, curiously misnamed for several reasons, we came across the bodies of seven Chinese who had been frozen to death. They were sitting together in the snow. The two white men who had been with them had unhitched the two horses from their team and ridden them into the station. The place has been known as China Point ever since."

At Local Theaters

Russell Stock Company.
The Russell Players will open a week's engagement at the Gennett theater Monday evening, will be remembered for their very successful stay here during the Thanksgiving holidays when they presented "The Blue Mouse" to two of the largest houses of the year. The opening bill of "The Beau Brummell Burglar" is a new one and will probably be well received as the company headed by Miss Grace Bryan and Mr. Edward Russell were very well liked here before and the Richmond people are always quick to welcome their favorites. With the usual ladies free offering the house is sure to be a big one.

At the Murray.
The great interest and pleasure with which "The Night with the Poet" has been received this week at The Murray, will be excelled only by the regret that tonight marks their close. This is a truly wonderful act and should be seen by every one. Three other acts, Harry Burton, ventriloquist, Bennett and Sterling, European Novelty Instrumentalists, and Parker and Kramer, Knockabout Acrobats, make up one of the most interesting bills seen this season.

Peppered Ice Cream.
"There's pepper in that," said a restaurant waiter, pointing to a small silver shaker he had placed beside a heaping dish of ice cream he was carrying to a guest. "Sure, it's to put on the ice cream, too," he replied when an inquirer failed to see the connection between the two.

"Lots of folks want to put pepper on their ices. You see, if a man's stomach is sensitive the cold cream hurts him, but pepper is stimulating enough to overcome the effects of the cold. And the funny thing is that you don't taste the pepper at all. The ice cream is so cold that it kills the other. If you don't believe it I'll give you some with pepper, and you'll find that there's no taste of pepper there at all."

Miles' Grave.
"Which is the deepest, the longest, the broadest and the smallest grave in the churchyard?" said a pedestrian to his companion while meditating among the tombs in the burying ground at Esher.

"Why," replied his companion, "it is that in which poor Miles Button lies buried, for it contains Miles below the sod. Miles in length and Miles in breadth, and yet, after all, it is but a Button-hole."—Pearson's Weekly.

NEED TO REGULATE MARRIAGE; HURTY

Addressed Sanitary and Water Supply Men—H. A. Dill on Program.

Indianapolis, Ind. Feb. 11.—The good of society demands that steps be taken to prevent the reproduction of deficient members according to state-ments made before the Indiana Sanitary and Water Supply association by Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana state board of health, at the Claypool.

Dr. Hurty was the first speaker at the annual banquet of the association. His subject was "The Conservation of Life, a Sanitary Problem." He outlined the necessity of conserving the best blood in society, and took the grounds that conservation consisted only in encouraging the healthy or sanitary and preventing the growth of the unsanitary or deficient. State regulation of marriages on a stricter basis than at present and the adoption of modern laws governing sterilization were urged by the health board secretary.

Dr. C. S. Woods, city sanitarian, defined the "Duty of the Municipality in the Prevention of Disease," as the duty of separating the sick from the well giving the sick a chance to recover and the well a chance to remain in good health. He told of instances that had come to his attention of four and five tubercular patients living in the same room with one or two unaffected persons. A farm for the care of these tubercular sufferers was advocated by the doctor. Sanitary conditions in Indianapolis were reviewed by the speaker and the danger of wells that permit surface water to enter was referred to as one of the greatest problems of the city at present.

Howard A. Dill, superintendent of the Richmond water works, spoke on the care of fire hydrants, and the meeting went on record as favoring distinct rules by which fire hydrants can be used for no other purpose than fire. Members of the association related the experience they had with hydrants that failed to work in case of fire, and the universal verdict of the water works men was that these failures were caused by improper handling of the hydrants and ignorance on the part of firemen.

Public service corporations that have contracts for fire plugs with cities were urged to incorporate in their contracts the stipulation that hydrants are never to be opened except in case of fire or under the direction of the city engineer.

Officers Elected.
Officers were elected as follows: President, Frank C. Jordan, Indianapolis; secretary, W. F. King, Indianapolis; vice presidents, D. R. Gwinn, Terre Haute; E. L. Loomis, Alparaiso; R. L. Sackett, Lafayette; C. R. Semans, Washington; H. Drachs, Anderson.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Pennsylvania is building 1,000 open gondolas in its Altoona shops. Railroad gross earnings in the country at large continue to show an increase over last year.

Cumberland Railway and Coal Company of Canada will authorize tomorrow an issue of $12,000,000 bonds.

Pullman Company will pay its 176th dividend tomorrow—a quarterly distribution of $2 per share from net earnings.

Memorial to the late E. H. Harri-man at Goshen, N. Y., will be unveiled next week on the anniversary of his death.

James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, will speak on Canadian reciprocity at the Association of Commerce dinner in Chicago tomorrow night.

An English magazine prints this month a thrilling account of the warfare waged between the people of Pond Creek, Okla., and the Rock Island railway following the opening of the Cherokee "strip."

According to Munsey's for February, the Chicago-New York Air Line Railroad project is "limping along" with "no chance" of accomplishing its widely advertised plan for building an electric line between New York and Chicago. Much of the "Air Line" stock was sold by Burr Brothers, who were put out of business by the postal authorities.

Grant and Pickett.

New evidence that the great men are the true men—true to themselves to their country and to their friends—appears in a story told in Colonel Nicholas Smith's book, "Grant, the Man or the Mystery?"

While Grant was president General G. E. Pickett, who led the fatal charge against the Union forces the last day at Gettysburg, called at the White House to pay his respects. Grant knew that his old comrade at West Point had been made a poor man by his war and offered him the marshalship of Virginia. While sorely needing help, General Pickett knew the heavy draft made upon the president by office seekers.

"You can't afford to do this for me," he said, "and I can't afford to take it." "I can afford to do anything I please that is right," Grant replied quietly.

HOW OLD PEOPLE May Prolong Their Lives.

At an advanced age waste is more rapid than repair. The organs act more slowly and less effectively than in youth. The circulation is poor—the blood thin and watery—the appetite poor and digestion weak.

We want to say to every aged person in this vicinity that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) will prolong life. It creates an appetite, aids digestion and makes good blood. In this natural manner Vinol retards waste and replaces weakness with strength, giving new life to the worn system.

If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Leo H. Fihe, Druggist, Richmond, Ind.

LADY DECIES SMOKES

Bride of a Few Days Shocks
Southerners on Her Trip.

Brunswick, Ga., Feb. 11.—When Lord Decies and his bride, formerly Vivian Gould, reached here over the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, en route to Jekyll island to spend their honeymoon, Lady Decies provided a sensation by puffing a cigarette in full view of several hundred persons gathered at the depot to get a look at the bridal couple.

When the train arrived Lord and Lady Decies were at lunch in the dining car. The people at the depot gave a cheer as the train stopped. When the couple had finished lunch the bride took a seat at a window in full view of the curious crowd, produced a cigarette from a jeweled case, lighted it and coolly began to smoke.

The crowd broke into a cheer as Lady Decies puffed the cigarette and she seemed to enjoy the applause. In a few minutes the couple left the car and walked to the wharf a distance of 100 yards, between lines of spectators who cheered. Lord Decies lifted his hat and Lady Decies smiled and bowed.

The girl bride seemed both amazed and delighted at the crowd. Lord Decies seemed a bit bored. They stepped aboard the boat and instead of going into the saloon took a seat in full view of the crowd. As the boat left the wharf they both waved goodbye to the onlookers.

Lord and Lady Decies are going to Jekyll island at the invitation of Edwin Gould, an uncle of the bride, whose cottage has been prepared for them and one of his yachts will be at their disposal.

Jekyll island is one of the most exclusive resorts in the country, its inhabitants are limited to one hundred and made up of the Goulds, Rockefellers, Morgans and other well known Americans. Lord and Lady Decies will be on the island for a week.

BISHOP WALDEN IS EIGHTY YEARS OLD

Congratulations Poured into Venerable Cincinnati
Prelate Today.

(American News Service)

Cincinnati, Feb. 11.—Hosts of friends offered their congratulations and best wishes to Bishop John M. Walden today on the eightieth anniversary of his birth. The venerable bishop is remarkably active and vigorous for a man of his age and his keen mind is unimpaired by any weight of years. Considerably over half of his eighty years the bishop has spent in the interests of the Methodist Episcopal church centering around Cincinnati where his official residence has been for over half a century.

Born in Lebanon, O., February 11, 1831, Bishop Walden spent his early life on a farm. He entered Farmers' college, graduating with honors in 1852. Two years later he entered journalistic work. Going to Wyandotte, Kan., he started and published a paper during the troubles in that state. He soon returned to Cincinnati, however, and for two years was employed as a newspaper reporter here.

In 1860 Dr. Walden lacked but a few votes of being chosen as bishop and was elected senior book agent of the Western Methodist Book Concern. He was a prominent member of the Ecumenical conference in London in 1881 and rendered important service in the publication committee and other business features of that body.

He was elected bishop in 1884, and ever since has been prominently before the church in publishing interests and in the legislation of numerous conferences. He has been a prolific writer on temperance and education, and an untiring worker and able preacher as well as platform speaker.

Turks and the Graves.

In Constantinople, as in other Turkish cities, bodies are placed in the ground as soon as the last spark of life has fled. The Mussulman believes that as long as the body is unburied the spirit is in torment and that it is a crime akin to murder to molest a grave. Accordingly the cemeteries around many oriental cities far exceed in extent the abodes of the living.

Sore Throat Wisdom

If every mother could realize the danger that lurks behind every case of sore throat, she wouldn't rest until she had effected a cure every time a child has it.

Your family physician will verify the statement that it is a positive fact that every child with sore throat is in immediate danger of contracting Croup, Quinsy, Tonsillitis or Diphtheria, and is not removed from that danger until the throat is cured. Think of it!

Liniments or outward application of medicines do not and cannot cure the ailment, though they may offer temporary relief. Neither can you cure sore throat with a cough syrup or a cold cure.

To cure, you must get at the seat of the disease, removing the cause. Nothing does that so quickly, safely and surely as TONSILINE. A single dose of TONSILINE taken upon the first appearance of sore throat may save long weeks of sickness, great expense, worry, even death.

TONSILINE is the stitch in time. Use a little sore throat wisdom and buy a bottle of TONSILINE today. You may need it tomorrow.

TONSILINE is the standard sore throat remedy—best known and most effective and most used. Look for the long necked fellow on the bottle when you go to the drug store to get it. 25 cents and 50 cents. Hospital Size $1.00. All Druggists.

The Curious Way They Serve Bread
at Meals in Yucatan.

At school, if we remember aright, says the author of "The American Egypt," the bread throwing was an offense punishable with the sixth book of the Aenid to write out and the loss of a half holiday as the minimum penalty. In Yucatan it is all the fashion in the highest circles.

No sooner had we taken our places at the table than an Indian maid brought in, holding them in her brown hands, a towering pile of soft white doughy tortillas, each about as big as a large biscuit. These she placed at the side of our hostess, who at once began to throw them to us all.

It was so adroitly done that before you had recovered from the amazement with which the mere act filled you, you found yourself admiring the exquisite dexterity of the gentle thrower.

A tortilla whirled circling across the table under your very nose and landed with delicate softness like a tired dove at the side of your host's plate! Whiz, whir, here comes another! Why, it's like boomerang throwing, for this last, you'll declare, circled round you before it sank nestling under the edge of the plate of steaming pork stew in front of you. The air is thick with these doughy missiles.

Nobody is the least surprised except us, and we become quite absorbed in watching the friendly bombardment. Our host engages us, as the newspapers say, in "animated conversation." Inquires the purposes of our tour, and our theories as to the origin of the Mayan people.

It is hard to give him our whole attention, for we feel that we are losing all the fun. The tortillas are whizzing over the table now and round it just like boomerangs, and then the host's supply is exhausted. But here is a plump Indian maid with a fresh supply, snowy white and softly fluffy, such as would fill a London muffin man's heart with envy. It is all very funny.

Stammering is practically unknown among uncivilized people.
