Marat's Deadly Prescription.
Whether Marat of "the terror" was a veterinary surgeon or a fashionable physician is a point which historians have earnestly debated. Some light is thrown upon it by the memoirs of the papal envoy of the period, who was one of his patients, and reports as follows:

"He prescribed for me some medicine which would have killed me if the celebrated chemist of the Rue Jacob had been willing to give it to me. 'I see well enough,' he said, 'that this is no medicine for you; it is medicine for a horse. I recognize the doctor's signature; he is mad.' Apparently Marat had mistaken me for one of his patients at the stable at which he was a physician."

tend St. Gabriel's church at Connersville, when the word came. She was conveyed to Richmond in an auto where she left immediately for Springfield. But her son never recognized her presence. The burial will be at Washington Court House, Ohio, where his father and brother are laid.
