Crawfordsville, Ind., March 29.—Temperance folk scored three decisive victories in Montgomery county Wednesday in the elections held under the Proctor option law. Crawfordsville gave the "drys" a majority of 138, Coal Creek township a majority of 226, and Clark township a majority of 65.

In this city the temperance people carried three of the four wards with majorities ranging from 36 to 86. The only ward carried by the "wets" was the Third, which they won by 29.

Both sides showed remarkable organization, and an early heavy vote was cast. Both sides issued many challenges. Every Wabash college student who voted was made to swear that this city was his residence. The "drys" lost many votes by the absence of students who are at home on spring vacations.

Stop Disfranchised Man.

James Shelton, a disfranchised man, attempted to vote for the "wets," but was turned down. Extra police guarded each poll. Many spotters kept close watch on several "wets" who it was thought might attempt to purchase votes. The "drys" offered a reward for the conviction of any one for buying or selling of votes.

The total vote by wards, in Crawfordsville follows:

First Ward—"Dry," 329; "wet," 253; "dry" majority, 86. Second—"Dry," 214; "wet," 178; "dry" majority, 36. Third—"Dry," 355; "wet," 384; "wet" majority, 29. Fourth—"Dry," 388; "wet," 343; "dry" majority, 45. Total "dry," 1,296; "wet," 1,158; "dry" majority, 138.

Coal Creek township, which includes the towns of Wingate and New Richmond, went "dry" by 226. Precinct No. 1, of this township, in which Wingate is located, voted 201 "dry" and 81 "wet," while precinct No. 2, in which New Richmond is situated, gave the "drys" 163 and the "wets" 57.

Henry Vote Is Cast.

The two precincts in Clark township voted as follows: Precinct No. 1—"Dry," 169; "wet," 98. Precinct No. 2—"Dry," 121; "wet," 127. Ladoga is the only town in Clark township and was "wet" until this county voted "dry" two years ago.

The vote polled in both this city and the outlying townships was heavy. A total of 2,454 votes was cast Wednesday in this city out of a possible 2,485. In the majority election of 1909 a total of 2,185 votes was cast, but since then annexed territory has added about 250 votes.

The machine used in the Second Ward in this city failed to record ninety-five votes. In the Coal Creek township 502 votes out of 604 votes were polled, while in Clark 515 out of 588 were polled.

Moses E. Jones of Terre Haute, a chauffeur, was arrested on a charge of illegal voting. He formerly lived here, but has been away for the last six months. Jones's arrest resulted from an affidavit sworn out by the "drys." He waived preliminary hearing and was released on cash bond. His case was set for trial April 8.

FIRST VOTE IS "DRY."

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 30.—Perry township, Allen county, voted "dry" by a majority of 20, the vote standing 162 against the saloons to 142 for them. Huntstown is included in this township, and there are three saloons there now. Wednesday's election was the first held in Allen county under either option law. The county commissioners, meeting Wednesday fixed the saloon limit in Allen county under the saloon regulation law at not more than one saloon for every 750 population. As a result of this action the county is limited to 112 third parlor—eighty-five in Fort Wayne, three in two townships, two in three townships and one each in fifteen other townships. At the present time the saloons number more than 300, of which 235 are in this city.

"That was clever."

"Far from it. She swallowed the chip, and the doctor's bills cost me more than the lock port."

Master Violin-Maker Clark Returns to Workshop Again

Enfeebled by old age and disease, from which he has suffered acutely for the last several months, Alvin B. Clark, aged 87, believed by many prominent musicians and instrument makers to be the Stradivarius of America, is passing away the shortening days of his life in his little two-room workshop and home at 14 South Fifth street. Reclining in a large chair in the small room filled with tools with which he has worked since a boy, here and there a product of his hands and mind, hoary-haired and showing signs of ravages of time and human affliction, the old violin maker and master presents a beautiful picture, as he sits idly dreaming of the golden past or works intently on instruments, to whose making he has given the fruitful years of his life.

And in the dim little rooms which have sheltered the old man for many years there hangs the shadow of tragedy and pathos. Years ago death robbed him of his life companion and unrelenting time also has taken from him the companions of his youth. So now he spends the declining days almost alone and unattended. One meal a day he takes at a nearby restaurant; all other wants he provides for himself within the enclosures of the little rooms.

Friends call on him now and then but they are persons whom recent conditions and later years have brought to his acquaintance. Only a few of the people with whom he grew up are living now; he has outlived them all.

Mr. Clark is suffering from jaundice, believed to be due to a malignant cause, and his days are thought to be rapidly nearing an end. He was taken to the Reid Memorial hospital several months ago, but he was never satisfied with being there, and did not rest easily until his repeated requests were heeded and he was returned to his little shop on South Fifth street.

Violins shaped in the hands of Alvin Clark are now being played before enraptured audiences by some of the most prominent musicians in the country. Hugh McGibney, formerly of this city, now of Indianapolis, and probably the leading violinist of Indiana, uses solely a violin that is the handwork of Mr. Clark, while a number of Pittsburgh musicians and Eastern concert players use only violins made by Mr. Clark.

The instruments turned out by Mr. Clark have been made entirely by hand, from materials carefully selected and have been subject to the utmost care in their making. Already, even within the maker's lifetime, a high figure has been set upon Clark's instruments and they are increasing in value each year, for violins, particularly those made by hand, grow better with time. The opinion has been expressed by men in a position to know that ultimately Clark's violins will be treasured as much as those of Stradivarius are now, and that the name of Clark will be held in the same esteem and honor as the great German master.

Mr. Clark commenced work upon his first violin when a boy of about 15 years on the old Clark homestead in New York. It was a few years later that he removed to Richmond and he has been a continual resident of this city ever since. He has never been engaged in anything but making and repairing violins. The number which he has made is comparatively small. Probably two or three were all he ever made in a year. It was all handwork with Mr. Clark and it took time. The violins were carved out of as few pieces of wood as possible and the result was always perfect instruments.

There are quite a number of people in Richmond who have violins manufactured by Mr. Clark, and there is probably none of the older instruments in the city but what have been in his hands for repairing.

Richmond may some day go down in history as the home of the master violin maker, Alvin B. Clark.

TULIP MADNESS.

The Craze That Raged in Holland in the Last Century.

During the tulip craze in Holland in the last century in one year the sales aggregated 10,000,000 florins. Holland went tulip mad. The bulbs were quoted on the Stock Exchange. Ownership in them was divided into shares. Speculators sold them short. At one time more tulips were sold than existed. At Lille a brewer sold his trade and good will in exchange for a bulb, which was thereafter known as the Brewery tulip. In Amsterdam a father gave one by way of dower with his child. Thereafter the variety was known as the Marriage of My Daughter. At Rotterdam a hungry sailor, happening on a few, mistook them for onions and ate them. The repeat became as famous as Cleopatra's pearls and probably exceeded it in cost. At The Hague a poor fellow managed to raise a black tulip. The rumor of that vegetable marvel spread. Presently he was visited by a deputation from a syndicate. For that ewe lamb of his the deputation offered 1,000 florins, which he refused. He was offered 10,000 florins still he refused. Cascades of gold were poured before his resisting eyes. Finally, tormented and tempted, he succumbed. There and then the deputation trampled that tulip under their feet. Afterward it appeared that the syndicate had already grown a gem precisely similar and, unable to bear the idea that a rival existed, had authorized the deputation if needful to offer ten times the amount which it paid.

NOW A WHITEWASHER

Champion Johnson Begins Labors in Frisco Jail.

(American News Service)

San Francisco, March 30.—Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world this morning began his duties on the whitewash squad of Sheriff Finn's county jail at Ingleside. According to pugilistic records the colored champion's reach is something like 72 inches. According to Sheriff Finn's figures there are that many inches, multiplied by 25 to done at the county jail.

Jack was aroused via the "eight bell" system at 5 o'clock. After the scullery work in his cell he was given a banquet consisting of porridge. Then armed with a whitewash brush he started in.

Johnson is beginning to realize what he is up against. He has had a taste of prison life and he don't like it.

Court interference however is improbable. The court of appeals has decided not to interfere. Johnson's attorneys threaten to go to the superior court today.

In addition to Johnson's old troubles, he is threatened with a very sore pitching arm. When he first became an inmate of cell 43 at Sheriff Finn's resort, he was vaccinated on the left arm. The sore is beginning to get obstreperous and lively results are looked for in the very near future.

The only oasis in Johnson's desert of woe is probably the fact that Policeman Celnar, who was his Nemesis in the racing game, was arrested today for grafting. Celnar is charged with letting speeders off on the presentation of a $5 note.

TURKISH TROOPS TO QUELL THE REVOLT

(American News Service)

Vienna, March 30.—Though the revolt in Albania is growing to an alarming extent, advices from there today stated that Turkey was moving troops and artillery to quell it. Montenegro has been warned to observe neutrality laws and forbid the transportation of arms into the country. The natives, catholics, hitherto enemies, have joined forces against the Turks.

T. R. IS TOO FRANK

That Is Why He Got No "Bid" to Banquet.

(American News Service)

San Francisco, March 30.—The directors of the Pacific Union club do not consider Theodore Roosevelt a desirable guest and after dinner speak at a Pacific Union club banquet.

They so decided at a meeting especially called last Friday to weigh in and pass upon an enthusiastically expressed desire of some of their members that the former President be asked to grace their table on last Monday night, when a splendidly appointed dinner was given in the club's mansion on Knob hill.

The precise reason for the decision that has resulted in no little under-toned grumbling among the Pacific Union men is withheld in club-like silence, but the talk is common that the grave and worthy governors of the club feared Roosevelt's outspoken ways and trembled at the danger of forthright Rooseveltian statements disturbing the polite atmosphere of the club's banquet hall.

"MATRIMONIAL NAT" HAS OPTICS ON NO. 5

(American News Service)

St. Louis, March 30.—Nat Goodwin, who is playing at the Columbia theater here, today refused to discuss his latest divorce, by which his fourth wife Miss Edna Goodrich, freed herself in the New York courts.

Friends, however, intimated that he expects to marry Miss Maude Lannon, a pretty chorus girl, who was mentioned in the divorce proceedings. Miss Lannon is a St. Louis girl and while playing here last summer, Goodwin was frequently with her.

THREE BATHS FROM CRADLE TO GRAVE

New York, March 30.—The average Russian peasant bathes only three times from the cradle to the grave according to Professor Simon Baruch, who is giving a series of lectures on "Water" at Columbia university. The three momentous occasions which the Russian honors by immersing himself are, the lecturer explained, "when he is born, when he is married, and when he is laid in his coffin."

"The nonbathing Russian," he continued, "have their substitute in the sweat bath. A Russian peasant, if he can get one in no other fashion, will sometimes creep into the oven after the bread has been baked. Russia has, however, paid a price for its aversion to water in the tremendous increase in cholera, a dirt disease, from 12,000 cases in 1905 to 25,000 cases last year."

"As a matter of fact, however, the common American idea that bathing opens the pores of the skin is ungrounded. What it really does is to keep the delicate muscles under the skin in a healthy condition and to assist the work of the capillaries which carry the blood to the surface of the body."

The Rude Wide Spread No. 6

IT'S ALL IN THE BEATER

This is absolutely the greatest invention in the manure spreader construction, for the demand has always been for a narrow spreader that would spread wide and spread even. It is easy to make wide spread machines by using paddle wheels and extra attachments, but these only increase draft and absolutely will not give an even spread.

THE RUDE WIDE SPREAD does just what we claim and it is accomplished by our peculiar beater construction. The double diagonal cylinder above has the outer ends low in the bed and they throw their part of the load (which is about two-thirds) away from the center and the auxiliary cylinder in the lower part of the bed throws the remainder of the load directly behind the machine, thus filling the center.

A Narrow Tread -- A Wide Spread -- An Even Spread

THE PRACTICAL FARMER wants a MANURE SPREADER that substantially tracks with a wagon; one that will spread a heaped load and spread it evenly; one that spreads beyond the wheels; one that is very strong and one that will not break.

This farmer wants the RUDE WIDE SPREAD for it is just that kind of a machine and there is no other on the market that will fill the bill.
