Salt Fish For Lent.

The season of Lent is now with us, and there are still a certain number of people who fast during this time and invariably make a point of having salt fish on Ash Wednesday. Many people shudder at the idea of salt fish at all; but, properly treated, it is by no means to be despised. Too often, however, the necessity for sufficient soaking is not realized, with the consequence that when served, if it is eaten at all, whoever ventures on it literally feels he or she is performing a penance. First of all, having procured the salt fish, let it soak for several hours, placing it under the tap if possible and letting the water slowly run on to it. Should this, however, not be feasible, soak it in plenty of cold water, changing this fairly often and having the last water tepid. Then next it should be soaked in skim milk or milk and water for several hours longer, soaking it in all for twenty-four hours. Having gone through this process, it should be simmered in half milk, half water, with a very little salt, and then it may be served with a variety of sauces. Often the fishmonger will claim that the fish has already been steamed. Should this be so the soaking in cold water may be omitted, but on no account should the steaming in milk and water be forgotten. Treated thus, the fish will be white and firm and most palatable.

To Use Ham.

Sliced ham is more tender if it is baked than if fried. Cut a slice three-quarters of an inch thick, put it into a small enamel pan, turn three-quarters of a cupful of milk over it, cover and bake for an hour and a quarter, basting every fifteen minutes with milk. For luncheon grind the ends of a boiled ham and mix it with a button onion that has been chopped fine and a little minced parsley. Put the mixture into a pan with a little butter and moisten with hot water or cream. Simmer four or five minutes and then heap on slices of toast. For curly bacon cut it very thin and half cook it in boiling water, then curl it, fasten in shape with a toothpick and broil it over the fire. A little grated American cheese mixed with minced ham used in sandwiches is delicious if the sandwich is fried brown and served very hot. Cold ham is tasty if it is shredded and cooked in currant jelly sauce. Put a cupful of the shredded ham into a saucepan with a level tablespoonful of butter and half a cupful of currant jelly. As soon as the jelly and butter begin to bubble add four tablespoonfuls of cherry and a seasoning of paprika. Simmer the mixture about five or six minutes and serve with toast.

Flowers For Dinner Table.

From now until the close of the spring season there are no more attractive decorations of a simple order for the dinner or luncheon table than those of spring flowers arranged in attractive baskets. Charming baskets which are suitable for this purpose are to be had at many of the department stores and at the Japanese shops. The basket may be in any shape that is quaint or beautiful, and daffodils, cowslips, lilies of the valley and lilac branches look lovely when arranged in them. The bottom of the basket is filled with fresh damp moss and the stems of the flowers are thrust into this. If the flowers are to appear for a long time in public and there is danger of their wilting, the bottom of the basket may be fitted with a shallow pan filled with water and the flowers placed in this. The moss may then be tucked in around the stems of the flowers.

A Puzzled Waiter.

An Irish guest at a Chestnut street restaurant called the waiter to him and requested in no quiet tones, "Waiter, he roared, 'There's a dy in the wall'."

"Yes, yes, sir," agreed the waiter. "Remove it immediately," the man directed, stiffly.

"Yes, yes, sir," the dy, sir? the waiter suppressed, dumbly, and the man glared at him for a moment in unspeakable wrath.

At last when he found his voice again he spluttered forth: "Idiot! Not. Remove the soup!"

And the waiter as he bent over to take the plate away murmured patiently: "Yes, sir. And shall I leave the dy, sir?" Philadelphia Times.
