

ALIENISTS ARE TO PLAY MAIN PARTS

Beattie Case at Richmond, Va., Is to Be Like the Harry Thaw Case.

(National News Association)

Richmond, Va., July 29.—A battle of alienists such as was witnessed in the Thaw case in New York, will probably be the feature of the trial of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., who is accused of murdering his wife while they were taking an automobile ride together on the evening of July 18.

It was learned today that statements of counsel for young Beattie had reached a tentative state and that the insanity plea was being strongly considered as the basis of the defense. Under such conditions testimony would be introduced to show Beattie had an abnormal fondness for women and that he was an excessive cigar smoker.

Beulah Binford, Beattie's affinity, will probably be a witness for the defense and if the insanity plea is definitely adopted she will be asked to define the irregularities in Beattie's life of which she is cognizant.

From his earliest youth the twenty-six year old prisoner has been notorious for his amours although Beulah Binford is the only girl that remained in his affection.

Today there were rumors of another woman in the case, a circumstance not at all unlikely, according to those who knew Beattie. Search for "the man with the scraggly beard" who Beattie charges shot and killed Mrs. Beattie has been abandoned while the authorities are bending their efforts to get further information on the prisoner from Paul Beattie, who says he purchased a shotgun for Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., and Beulah Binford.

NARCOMANIA TOBACUM

ter thirty-five years observation and careful study of all forms of narcomania, the writer is convinced that because of its insidiousness, slow delusive undermining of all those higher aesthetic and spiritual attributes of the human mind, tobacco, more than any other cause of narcomania, is fast driving the people in a mad rush of hedonism, an insane materialism, palate-pleasing and pleasure-seeking.

If, as we believe, tobacco-narcomania is the most prevalent and popular disease in the world, the writer's experience has proved that it is proportionately the more amenable to proper treatment than any other form of narcomania. As a rule with very few exceptions, when a patient with tobacco-beat, nicotine stomach, chronic tobacco constipation, tobacco-kidney, nicotine insomnia or inability to sleep, &c., &c., is shown that while tobacco has caused his ailment, it will also prevent medicines from properly remedying the disease by the law of super-saturation, or in other words the system is so saturated with tobacco that it will supercede all medical influence; when the tobacco user is very sick with any acute disease, he loses the appetite for tobacco, the vital force vaguely called "nature," now has as much as it can do to fight the disease, and simply shuts off all desire for the poisonous vitality-whipping weed; when all this is candidly pointed out to the patient, with no exceptions in our experience, he resolutely says, "well, I will just cut out the tobacco entirely. I have no further use for that in my life;" and he means it, does so, soon is well "and lives happy ever after."

This series of articles on tobacco narcomania will close with the next one, which will discuss the subject from a more optimistic view point.

Two Comrades Who Are Trying to Keep Cool.

While the July torrid wave was felt in nearly all sections of the country, it caused more discomfort in the big cities than where trees wave and grass is green. The picture shows two chums who live in the most crowded places of residence to be found anywhere. New York children do not see many trees and very little grass, but they are not altogether unhappy. Sometimes when the sun is hot the boys jump into the basins of fountains in the parks and even into horse troughs. They have to keep an eye out for the policemen, though, for he makes great pretense of catching them. Our picture boys are sharing the breezes from a fan.

Game of Snowballs.

The game called snowballs is played very like the old favorite, the potato race. The snowballs are little toys, or jokes, or favors, as you please, wrapped in cotton batting very carefully, so that the balls may be perfectly round, and then, last of all, are covered with white tissue paper, glued on. If you put a thin coat of nuchage over the outside of this and sprinkle it with frost powder it will look like a real snowball.

There should be as many balls as there are guests in the party. Two baskets—just ordinary market baskets will do—are provided to hold the snowballs and are placed on two chairs at one end of the room. The snowballs are then laid on the carpet in two long lines from each basket to the end of the room, an equal number in each line and the same distance apart.

A child stands by each chair and at a given signal runs for the farthest snowball, picks it up and, running back, drops it in the basket, then goes for the next farthest, and so on until all are collected. The child who first gathers all in his row into his basket wins the game. No snowball must be broken. If one is torn it counts as a foul in the game.

The children may be divided for this game into two teams, and the side which has the most successful players after all have had a chance to play counts as the winning team.

At the end of the game the snowballs are distributed, and the children open them, discovering the treasures wrapped up inside.

Have a Try.

The bees said "Try," and turned the flowers into honey.
The squirrel said "Try," and he went to the top of the beech tree.
The snowdrop said "Try," and bloomed in the cold snows of winter.
The sun said "Try," and spring soon threw Jack Frost out.
The lark said "Try," and he found that his wings took him over hedges and ditches and up where his father was singing.
The ox said "Try," and plowed the field from end to end.

No hill too steep for Try to climb.
No clay too stiff for Try to plow.
No field too wet for Try to drain.
No hole too large for Try to mend.
Do try, do you? Try trying!

DECLARE PRIMARIES TO BE OF IMPORT

Presidential Primaries in Five States Will Show People's Choice.

A PROGRESSIVE STEP

First Elections of Kind in U. S.—Skeptical Politicians Are Watching.

BY RODERICK CLIFFORD

Washington, July 29.—Growing out of the progressive Republican movement, presidential primary elections will be held in five states next spring and a test of a "closer-to-the-people" government will be made. In these elections delegates to national conventions which are to nominate men for president and vice-president, will be elected and instructed for whom they are to vote in convention by a popular preferential system. These will be the first presidential primaries ever held in the United States.

Four of these states followed the lead of Oregon, the pioneer in the field. The five states which will hold these elections, and the dates of the elections, follow: North Dakota, March 19; Wisconsin, April 12; Nebraska, April 17; Oregon, April 19; New Jersey, May 28.

Scattered as these states are, and of a variety of political faiths, it is maintained among both Republican and Democratic advocates of a popular form of government that the primary election results in these states will indicate what the final result of the 1912 presidential campaign will be. The man who is pointed to as the originator of the Oregon plan, and who is an enthusiast on the subject of preferential elections, Senator Bourne, declares that the selection of convention delegates in North Dakota, Wisconsin, Oregon and New Jersey, will actually determine who the next president and vice president of the United States will be.

But there is a log in the road, say some skeptical politicians. It is being suggested that there is danger of the convention delegates from these states having the convention hall doors slammed in their faces. The supporters of the reform measures scoff at this idea, and are willing to wager that no machine dominating a national convention will dare to refuse to recognize and seat delegates selected under a popular and preferential system.

Other States Interested

With the odds favoring the seating of the popularly elected delegates, the outcome of the primaries in the states named undoubtedly will be watched with the greatest interest. The last of these preferential elections will be held in May, the New Jersey election, just before the national campaign will be in full blast. They will begin in March, in North Dakota, and last through until the end of May, and as the pulse of the people in the five states is read slowly through a period of two and a half months, the stock of different presidential aspirants is likely to rise or fall, as the elections indicate. In June it is expected, the two most important national conventions will be held.

There is one important condition in the Oregon system which makes it uncertain that delegates from a particular state, say Nebraska, will carry out the instructions of the greater number of individual electors residing in that state. It is this: In the event it shall be determined beyond doubt in national convention that a delegation will be throwing away its voting power in carrying out the directions of the state voters, then the delegates may vote otherwise. The obligation to represent the will of the people of Nebraska is a moral one, not a legal one.

The Oregon law, adopted by the people of that state in 1910, provides that in general election years the qualified electors shall be given the opportunity to express their choice for president and vice president, and the ballots shall be cast, counted and canvassed in the same way that state officers are elected. The names of the candidates of the various political parties shall appear on the party nominating ballot from president down to the last elector precinct officer. The final result of the election shall be officially certified to the convention delegates who have at the same time been elected.

How Plan Works.

It is the right of the voter in the primary election to vote for one candidate for national convention delegate in his party for the nomination in turn of one preferential elector. The names of aspirants for the office of national convention delegate shall be placed on the nominating ballot by petition of a certain per cent of the party vote at the election next preceding in the state for members of Congress, or the signatures of a certain number of party voters. The travelling expenses are to be paid by the state for each convention delegate for actual attendance upon the convention, if such expenses do not exceed a stated amount for delegates. An oath of office to uphold the Constitution and laws of the United States and of the state is provided in the preferential preference law. It is also sworn by the delegates that he will, to the best of his ability and judgment follow the will of his district.

The privilege is granted each aspirant for the office of delegate whose name is placed on the nominating ballot, to use four pages in his party's campaign book, setting forth his plea for election as delegate. Each person nominated for president or vice-president shall be accorded four pages of space in his party's state campaign book under the Oregon law, free of charge. Other candidates who are voted for by the electors of the state at large shall be charged $100 for this campaign book privilege, and this amount shall not be counted in the ten per cent of one year's salary that the candidate is allowed to spend in his campaign.

Her Hair Commenced to Grow After Two Weeks' Use of Newbro's Herpicide

"Fever caused me to be entirely bald I had given up all hope of again having hair when I was advised to use Herpicide. After two weeks my hair commenced to grow. I now have the most beautiful head of hair anyone ever saw. Praise to Newbro's Herpicide."

Thus writes Mrs. Howard Bailey, of Bellevue, Mich. We can point to thousands of instances where the proper use of Herpicide has been followed by a remarkable growth of hair.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy which kills the dandruff germ and stops falling hair.
