

ZIONISTS HOLDING WORLD CONVENTION

Meeting Will Be Held in Switzerland and 400 Delegates Will Attend.

BASLE, Switzerland, Aug. 8.—The World's Convention of Zionists is to begin its sessions here tomorrow. 400 delegates have arrived and 100 hundred more are expected. The United States and Canada will be well represented.

This is the fourteenth annual congress to be held by the International Federation of Zionists. The gatherings have always attracted leading men of the Hebrew faith, and its somewhat sentimental and romantic propaganda—the restoration of Jerusalem to the sons of Abraham—but really, at bottom, a stern business and philanthropic proposition, has created world-wide speculation as to the ultimate fate of the scheme.

"Zionism," as the movement is called, by which, its promoters declare, the Jewish problem is to be solved—that is, the future of the oppressed Jews of Russia and elsewhere is to be provided for—has met with opposition from prominent men of the Jewish clergy and laity.

The present congress promises to be enlivened by the criticism of some of those who have been active workers for the cause, but who now are said to be dissatisfied with the way the movement has been directed by the older leaders. Some of the delegates do not hesitate to declare that unless radical changes are made the whole movement is likely to prove nothing more than a dream, as its opponents have always predicted.

It is pointed out by those who believe that a thorough reorganization is needed that although the Zionists through their international and national organizations have been laboring assiduously for many years to rehabilitate the Hebrews again into a nation, and there have been numerous congresses to this end, until now nothing really definite has been accomplished.

On the other hand, the leaders who have directed the affairs of the organization since the death of Theodore Herzl, the founder of the movement, declare that much has been accomplished within the past few years and they hint that, in view of the reports to be made to the present congress, the dissatisfied element will rally to the standard, creating a solidarity so powerful in numbers and wealth that all will be assured.

FROM NEW YORK.

Mr. Lou M. Emmons has returned from a business trip to New York. While there he witnessed the aerial plane race from the roof of the Imperial hotel. He took several pictures of this race and they will be on exhibition in the window Emmons Tailoring Co. soon. The race was for $5,000 and was to encircle the Gimbel Bros. building opposite Imperial hotel.

THE MONTENEGRIN.

He is hospitable, but Dearly loves the Vendetta. To listen to a Bulgar singing is to make one's flesh creep or want to weep. The centurions of cruel oppression are only too manifest in Bulgarian music and words, but a Montenegrin grows restless over his songs and curses the powers that forbid him to emulate his forefathers' deeds en masse across the frontier. He does so whenever he can, but only in twos and threes.

When the Montenegrin goes raiding border it is really a more fair than the well equipped armed outlaws of the Bulgar "Vendetta." With him it is usually a private act of revenge or vendetta to which he invites one or two friends. Then they steal across the border at night, find their man, do their best to kill him and then make tracks homeward with the whole district at their heels. Perhaps the method of killing is not up to the standard of western sport, for they shoot their victim "sitting," so to speak, and do not give him a chance, but as it is the recognized system on both sides little can be said.

This custom makes men very wary and the stranger can appreciate the reason when he sees a plowman, for instance, attending to his duties with a rifle slung over his back. But in spite of this they are the essence of honor and hospitality. As their guests no one can come to any harm, and they will do all in their power to make his stay among them pleasant and safe.—Wide World Magazine.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

Between Promises and Actual Results. Promises won't overcome hair trouble. The manufacturers of Newbro's Hericide promise nothing which is not justified by an intelligent use of his preparation. The desired end ultimately becomes an accomplished fact. This is the reason that Hericide has thousands of satisfied friends all over the world.

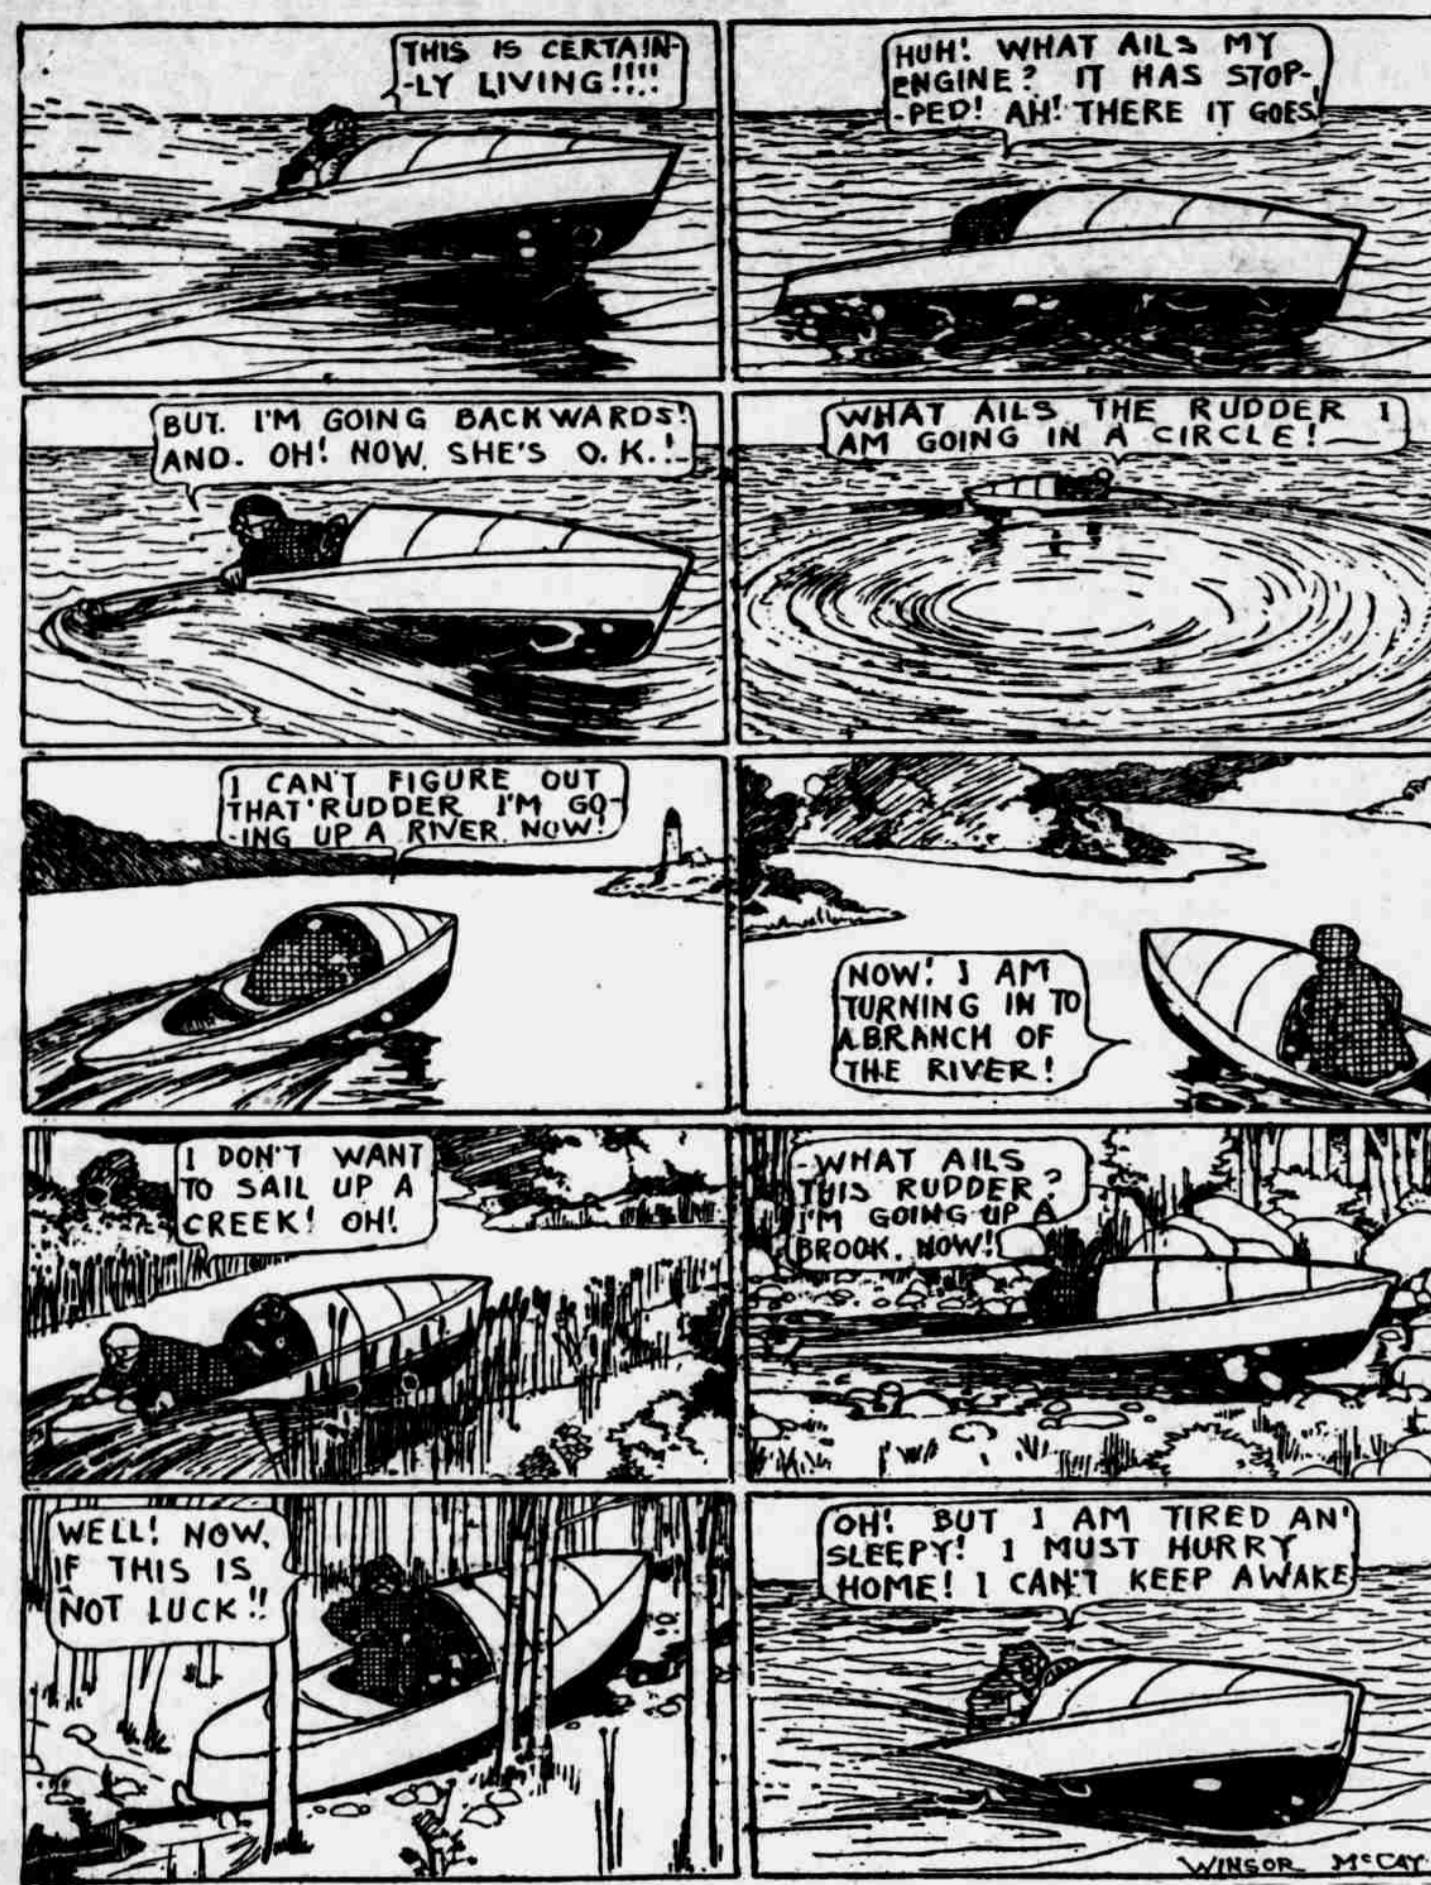

By keeping the scalp clean and healthy and destroying the dandruff germ, Newbro's Hericide makes beautiful hair. Hericide prevents the hair from falling and allows it to grow unhampered and naturally except in cases of chronic baldness which is incurable.

Large size bottles are guaranteed to do these things. Send us 10c in postage for sample and book to The Hericide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

Applications obtained at the best Barber shops.

A. G. Luken and Co., Special Agents.

A Midsummer's Day Dream

ABSTAINERS GATHER

At Local Theaters

Catholic Union in Convention at Scranton, Pa.

(National News Association)

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 8.—The annual national convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America began today with the reception of the delegates, many of whom have been in the city several days, engaged in committee work in connection with the convention. The formal opening of the gathering will take place tomorrow morning in College Hall, following the celebration of pontifical mass in St. Peter's Cathedral. The convention has attracted more than 1,000 delegates and visitors who come from nearly all parts of the United States and Canada. The delegates are headed by the Rev. Peter J. O'Callaghan of Chicago, as president, while leading lights of the Roman Catholic church throughout America are included in the list of those expected to participate in the deliberations.

THE HORSE.

His Appeal to His Master For Human Treatment.

To thee, my master, I offer my prayer. Feed me and take care of me. Do kind to me. Do not jerk the reins. Do not whip me when going uphill.

Never strike, beat or kick me when I fail to understand what you want me to do. Give me a chance to understand you. Watch me, and if I refuse to do your bidding see if there is not something wrong with my harness.

Do not give me too heavy loads. Never hitch me where water will drip on me. Keep me well shod. Examine my teeth when I fail to eat. I may have an ulcerated tooth. That, you know, is very painful. I am unable to tell you in words when I am sick, and when I am ill, and I will try to tell you by signs.

Put me sometimes. I enjoy it, and I will learn to love you.

Protect me in summer from the hot sun. Keep a blanket on me in winter weather, and never put a frosty bit in my mouth, but hold it in your hands a moment first.

I carry you, pull you, wait patiently for you long hours, day or night. I cannot tell you when I am thirsty; give me clean, cool water often in hot weather.

Finally, when my strength is gone, instead of turning me over to a human brute to be tortured and starved, take my life in the easiest, quickest way, and your God will reward you in this life and in heaven. Amen.—From the Swedish in "Our Dumb Animals."

Strength Counts

in all life's affairs. Strength comes of pure blood;—good blood comes when stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are kept in proper condition by a little care and last two of which, the young lady renders some very beautiful solos. They carry their own especial setting and the costumes are beautiful.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Available at Druggists

Ardell Bros., in a series of equilibristic novelties are especially clever. The up side down dancing by one member of the team being one great novelty.

Belle Meyers, was billed as the "girl with the smile" and more than deserves the name. She has a very sweet melodious voice and several good songs that are new, and most assuredly made a decided hit last evening.

The story is written around "Toddy" the performing elephant, one of the trained animals in the circus menagerie. This is by no means "Toddy's" first appearance in moving pictures, he has taken part in more than a score of the films made by the Selig Polyscope Company of Chicago. The same is true of many of the other trained beasts and their trainers with The Greater United Shows. All those who paid a visit to the Arcade last evening saw number of them in action in the picture known as "Captain Kate."

This picture was made last winter while the show was in winter quarters. A force of men were put to work this morning cleaning up the grounds at Bealview park, setting the poles for the wiring required for the 1500 electric lights and the large number of arc lamps to be used in illuminating the grounds.

It will be of interest to some to know that visitors to the carnival will not be bothered with the throwing of confetti, ticklers and other objectionable features of this kind. The Greater United Shows management will not tolerate anything of this kind.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

It will be of interest to some to know that visitors to the carnival will not be bothered with the throwing of confetti, ticklers and other objectionable features of this kind. The Greater United Shows management will not tolerate anything of this kind.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

It will be of interest to some to know that visitors to the carnival will not be bothered with the throwing of confetti, ticklers and other objectionable features of this kind. The Greater United Shows management will not tolerate anything of this kind.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacock and magpies." They were attired in turbans or lofty miters, with ribbons floating from them