

BRYAN TELLS ABOUT THAT MOVE OF HIS

(National News Association)
BALTIMORE, June 28.—William J. Bryan said today that he had played a game of checkers in the Democratic national convention last night, and won. He likened the introduction of his resolution against the Wall street candidates to a checker player who had moved his man between two pieces belonging to the enemy, with the blank spaces on the board about him cleared so that the capture of one or the other is inevitable.

"Don't you see," he continued, "that I was bound to take one of them? I could afford to be indifferent as to what they did. The resolution put the convention on record against those influences as soon as it was offered. There was no way out of that."

"The convention itself is a small affair compared with the party it represents. I am fighting for the party, and with this resolution adopted I believe the way is opened to a great Democratic victory. I was indifferent as to what the delegates did. If the resolution was voted down it compelled a progressive to be nominated in order that the convention redeem itself."

It Wins Both Ways.
"If sustained, the delegates did not dare to nominate a man who would be in contrast or out of harmony with the resolution."

The Nebraskan talked as he glanced over a sheaf of 500 or more telegrams which had come in from all parts of the country commenting on the resolution.

"I am not worrying," he said, "about Mr. Ryan or about Mr. Belmont. However, I do not believe they will be delegates to another Democratic convention in the near future. Some of our Democrats are sincere in the belief that it would be an invasion of the rights of the state to expel the men, although that is one of the reasons I am willing to withdraw the latter part of the resolution."

"I do not agree with them. I believe we have the same right to expel a delegate from this convention as the senate has to expel Lorimer."

"In view of the fact, Mr. Bryan, that the contest between the progressive candidates has apparently narrowed itself until there are two who are leading, would you be willing to express your beliefs as to the possible winner?" the Nebraskan was asked.

"I shall not discuss candidates," was the emphatic reply, "further than to say that my position is as it has been from the very beginning. My position regarding the two leading candidates is neutral, but I am instructed for Clark."

"Does that mean that you lean towards Clark in your preference?" he was asked.

"I announced before the primaries that my support of the man for whom the delegates were instructed would not change my preference."

"Let me put another question: How would you feel towards Senator John W. Kern, of Indiana, if neither Clark nor Wilson could be nominated?"

Must Be Progressive.
"Any progressive suits me," said Bryan. "My position from the first has been opposed to a reactionary. This is my whole fight."

Mr. Bryan was told that Colonel James Guffey, of Pennsylvania, had said that the resolution introduced last night had shattered any fleeting hope that the Commoner himself might be the party nominee.

Mr. Bryan smiled.
"Well, Colonel Guffey is an authority on shattered hopes, and therefore I feel apprehensive after what he has to say."

"Mr. Bryan, a rumor is rife throughout the convention and in various headquarters that you are seeking an opportunity to bolt the party, and that last night's resolution was to pave the way for such a move. Has this any foundation?"

The good humor vanished. The telegrams were forgotten. Mr. Bryan arose from his chair and walked to the window, glanced outside for a moment and then wheeled about.

"That question is always the last that is put to me by newspaper men, because they know that it will end the interview," he said. "I regard the question as impertinent, and one that is not deserving of an answer."

The Art of Accepting Gracefully.
I wish that there were more of the gracious receiving of favors or gifts. Did you ever think how really limited are the abilities of most persons along this line?

Many of us can give beautifully. We can say the pretty phrases, write the timely good wish to accompany a gift, but when it comes to receiving graciously our energies are overtaxed, and we become embarrassed, ill at ease and sometimes very tactless.

Learn to receive as well as to give. Let your gratitude be shown in as fine a way as your generosity. It can be acquired.

"Fast Flying Virginian" Rolls Down Embankment.—No One Was Hurt.

(National News Association)
PERU, Ind., June 28.—The "Fast Flying Virginian," through passenger train on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, was wrecked at Howe Switch just east of Peru, yesterday afternoon. No one was seriously hurt.

The train was rounding a sharp curve when the engine jumped the track and rolled down the embankment, with Engineer John W. Hunt and Fireman Ezra Ross still in the cab. Both were slightly hurt.

Besides the regular coaches there were attached to the train two official cars occupied by stockholders and officials of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Company for funds advanced to defray the expense of improvements on the Indiana branch. Some road improvements, including fifty miles of heavier rails and rebalancing the line, were authorized.

At the meeting the stockholders authorized an issue of stock certificates to the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company for funds advanced to defray the expense of improvements on the Indiana branch. Some road improvements, including fifty miles of heavier rails and rebalancing the line, were authorized.

The Tailor Made Shirt.
Twilled silk shirts are being made the accompaniment of tailored skirts, and the shirts when cut in the corselet manner have an outside belt of soft suede and show above the belt a double frill, scant in front and at the sides and rather closely plaited at the back.

There are numerous forms of collar for the twilled silk shirt, but the favorite is of a turnover shape, with pointed fronts. In some models eyelet holes are punched, and the sides are drawn together by means of narrow silk or cord knotted and left to fall with tasseled ends.

The shirts are made in the simplest possible manner, with three large pearl buttons down the center, or they are given no visible fastening at all, the necessary opening being concealed beneath the box plaited front.

Something New.
The sanitary envelope moistener is something quite new and is really very useful as well as attractive. It is simply a small china box about the size and shape of a lip salve case with a few small holes at the top through which the water comes to moisten the envelope and stamp.

RUMBLINGS OF WAR WERE HEARD TODAY

At the Convention of General Federation of Women's Clubs at Frisco.

(National News Association)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Rumblings of approaching war in the game of politics being played by the delegates to the eleventh biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in session here were heard today with increasing distinctness.

Referring to the rumors that she would withdraw her name as a candidate for the presidency, Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker, of Texas, declared she was still in the race for the presidency and would remain in it until the bitter end. Mrs. Phillip Carpenter was just as determined. It was a day of civics and civil service and every plan of betterment that arose, every petted subject that came up for discussion, harked back to Chicago for examples, instances or comparison.

Afternoon councils included the subjects of school centers, housing conditions, neighborhood centers, playgrounds again and the juvenile court. And again each subject found its ready illustration in the actual accomplishments of the Chicago clubs.

Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker of Colorado spoke in the civil service council on the work of the juvenile court, and especially concerning the interest which she takes in boys and their needs.

Following her was Mrs. George Bass, president of the Chicago Women's club, who spoke of the work Chicago women were doing, not only among the needy newsboys, but also among the girls who have quite as Almost Like Magic. Guaranteed.

You'll Quit Everything Else for "GETS-IT."

Any corn just loves to be cut and gouged, but it's mighty rough on you. Plasters and salves usually take away some of the toe with them, and leave the corn to flourish.

The new corn cure "GETS-IT" is perfectly harmless to the healthy flesh, but it does go for a corn, bunion, callous or wart right off the reel. The corn shrivels away from the healthy flesh and drops off.

You can apply "GETS-IT" in two seconds and it begins its work right off. Pretty soon you'll forget you ever had corns or bunions.

MILK SUPPLY GOOD BUT NOT PLENTIFUL

Milk now sold in Richmond is of a very good quality stated Charles Flook, dairy inspector, this morning. All tests made in the last few days met the government requirements of 3.25 per cent butter fat, some of it running several per cent above this standard. Dairymen are now having much trouble getting enough milk to supply the demand for the reason the flies annoy the cows to the extent that some dairymen complain their milk supply is falling off daily to the amount of several gallons. The pasturage is good.

Several of the dairymen are making changes in their dairy barns, according to directions left by pure food inspector Hutchens who made an inspection trip here several weeks ago.
