THE INQUISITIVE MAN.

His Curiosity Was Eased, Though His Feelings Were Mangled.

A business man in Boston said to a reporter: "A few days before an election a little incident happened which mortified me deeply. It happened in this way: You see, I had some business to transact with one of the candidates for the legislature, and, as it was something important, I was forced to go out to his house to see him. It was quite late when I got there, and I guess he had gone to bed. At any rate, the servant who opened the door showed me into the parlor to wait for his master. I was obliged to wait some time, and while doing this I amused myself looking at the pictures and other ornaments about the room.

"On the center table, among books and other bric-a-brac, stood a big fancy decanter filled with liquor which looked like whisky. It was a curious looking decanter, and on one side was some fancy lettering which I could not make out. Being rather curious to find out what it said, I lifted the decanter up from the table and tipped it up so that the light fell on the lettering. It said, 'If you touch me I'll tell.'"

"Curious, wasn't it? But, sure enough, it did tell, for I had scarcely had time to read the lettering when my ears were greeted with the tones of 'Johnny Get Your Gun.' There was a music box hidden in the bottom of the decanter, and when it was tipped the machinery started and the music began. You can judge for yourself how surprised and chagrined I was, for I had never seen the master of the house before and he would have a fine opinion of me for my meddling qualities.

"Right in the middle of the tune he walked into the parlor and gave me a curious smile when he heard that music box. It seemed as if it would never stop. I tried to make some sort of apology, but made a bull of it, I know, though now I can not think for the life of me what I said. He saw how confused I was and laughed it off, saying that it was an oddity he had found in New York."

Careless.

The story is told that a letter received some years ago by the Westinghouse Machine company said that the writer had been using one of its standard vertical engines with eminent satisfaction. For eight years it had been in continuous service night and day, handling its load without a hint of trouble, but that "upon shutting it down the other evening it went all to pieces." The letter was passed to the eminent inventor whose name the company bears, who handed it back with the remark, "Ask the blame for what he shut it down for."

Built For the Part.

This is selected from the reminiscences of Mr. F. G. Hales, the famous English war correspondent:

"Once I wandered forth to face a callous world and noticed that a company of strolling players had just arrived in the town. I hunted up the manager and asked him if he was in need of talent. He said he was. Then he asked me if I was an actor. I said I was born an actor. He pulled me into the building and asked me to give him a sample of my powers. Of course I took something easy—the ghost scene in 'Hamlet'—and I played Hamlet, the ghost, and the whole outfit.

"When I had finished the manager took me by the arm and said: 'I'll engage you. I have the part to suit your histrionic abilities.'"

"Then he gave me a big brush, a bucket of paste and a roll of bills. 'Go forth,' he said, 'and decorate this town. You were built for the part.'"

"It was a shock, but I was used to shocks, and so I took it and a half crown payment in advance."

A Swindle.

An old couple went to a Dublin theater to have a night's amusement. The great Mrs. Siddons was playing "Mrs. Haller," and the poor bodies were kept crying all the evening. At length, at one of the scenes where the great lady came in with her handkerchief again to her eyes, the old man could stand it no longer and, starting to his feet, cried out, "Ye long nosed thief, ye call this divarshun!"

Plants That Shoot Arrows.

The arrows are crystal needles of oxalate of lime. They are of microscopic dimensions, and they are shot from minute capsule shaped bodies found in the tissues of such plants as the Indian turnip and the Polynesian taro.

An extraordinary spectacle may be viewed in the field of the microscope when the "bonds" contained in a drop of taro pulp begin to discharge their arrows. Sometimes only one or two needles and sometimes groups of four to ten were discharged at once, the bomb recoiling as the projectiles left it.

It has been suggested that the intense burning and pricking sensations experienced in chewing such plants as those just mentioned are due to the release and discharge of these crystal arrows when the plant tissues are crushed in the mouth.—Harper's Weekly.

A Fine Distinction.

Sometimes a small boy can draw a fine distinction. Two fishermen of the sportsman type, equipped with all the latest appliances for angling, were walking a mountain road when they met a barefooted boy with a tin can in his hand and a carelessly trimmed branch of a tree slung over his shoulder.

"Hello, sonny!" exclaimed one of the men. "Going fishing?"

"No," drawled the youngster, with only a glance at the splendid outfits, "I ain't goin' fishin'. I'm just goin' down to the creek to catch some fish."

Air In the Lungs.

In one minute, in a state of rest, the average man takes into his lungs about 48.8 cubic inches of air. In walking he needs 97.6 cubic inches; in climbing, 140.3 inches; in riding at a trot, 201.3 cubic inches; and in long distance running, 347.7 cubic inches.

An Optical Delusion.

Affable Stranger—I beg your pardon, but isn't this Miss Greenleaf?

The Lady—No; I am Miss Redpath.

A. S.—Ah, excuse me! I must be color blind.—Boston Transcript.

Revenge.

She—You ask me to marry you. Can you not see your answer in my face?

He (absently)—Yes—er—er—it's very plain.—Life.

Take a good book slowly. You see much finer country in a mover's wagon than you do from a car window.
