

WILLIS CHARGE OF HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Willis Held on This Charge Upon Arrival at Peoria With Local Officer.

When John Willis arrived at Peoria, Ill., jail Friday in company of Patrolman Vogelsong and was confronted with a charge of highway robbery, he collapsed. Willis expected to be released on bond. It developed that Willis was out on a $2,000 bond from the Peoria circuit court when arrested here. His bond would have deflated yesterday. Willis admitted to Patrolman Vogelsong that he was out on bond. It is believed that Willis planned to go back to Peoria as quietly as possible, and then skip his bond there. Patrolman Vogelsong frustrated this plan by immediately locking him in the county jail.

Willis was released by Judge Fox of the Wayne circuit court in face of the protest of Chief of Police Gorman. After his release from the county jail, Willis was told that he would not be permitted to leave the city. Willis made an offer to Patrolman Vogelsong which the officer accepted. Willis agreed to face his trial in Peoria, and to pay his and Patrolman Vogelsong's expenses to Peoria. Chief of Police Gorman agreed to this plan, for he wanted Willis held at Peoria.

Henry Wyles, another member of the strong arm trio is believed to be near Peoria, and Frank Cantwell, the third member, is at Indianapolis again. The three men said to be "bad men" are now out of Wayne county. Chief of Police Gorman believes the men have powerful political friends and cite as proof, a story circulated here, that one of the state's principal witnesses in the case against the man here, has been approached by a man high in affairs in Indianapolis and asked not to press the case against the men.

Made Her Well Woman

Mrs. W. P. Valentine of Camden, N. J., says: "I suffered with pains in my back and side, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I wish other suffering women would avail themselves of this valuable remedy."

For nearly forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and no sick woman does herself justice who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs.

No More Smiling.

The new vicar was paying a visit among the patients in the local hospital. When he entered ward No. 2 he came across a pale looking young man lying in a cot, heavily swathed in bandages. There he stopped, and, after administering a few words of comfort to the unfortunate sufferer, he remarked in cheery tones:

"Never mind, my man, you'll soon be all right. Keep on smiling; that's the way of the world."

"I'll never smile again," replied the youth sadly.

"Rubbish!" ejaculated the vicar.

"There ain't no rubbish about it," exclaimed the other heatedly. "It's through smiling at another fellow's girl that I'm here now."—Pearson's Weekly.

His Eloquence.

The curate of a country parish lately preached a charity sermon, and the collection which followed amounted to $20.75. 41¢d. In the vestry after the service the churchwardens counted it out and mentioned the result. "Well," said the reverend preacher, "I must have preached pretty well to get all that." "No doubt you did, sir," replied one of the churchwardens who had been collecting, "but the squire put in a $20 note, and he's deaf."—London Mail.

Unreluctantly.

"Ralph Darnley called again last night, Bessie, didn't he? You know, he's rather well off, so I hope you didn't treat him distantly," said mamma.

"Indeed I didn't, mamma. I was very much drawn to him—very much," she answered, with blush.

A Hardship.

"They talk of hardships," said an Irish soldier as he lay down to sleep on the deck of a transport, "but, dad, this is the hardest ship I was ever in my life!"

Health and an Umbrella.

"A man's health is something like an umbrella. When once lost it is hard to get back, but when worn a little it may be recovered."

The Murray.

The advent of Gus Sun's Minstrels this evening at the Murray is one of the events of that popular vaudeville house. This aggregation of musicians, singers, dancers and comedians is in high favor in this city and their annual appearance is looked forward to with pleasure not only by the regular patrons of the theater, but by the general public.

There are a number of new faces to be seen this year and a fresh lot of specialties and songs. The company, in fact, was never in better condition to entertain and no doubt will draw large and interested audiences all week.

Orville Harrold.

Orville Harrold who appears at the Gennett on Sept. 12, is creating a sensation in his short Indiana tour. He received an ovation in Ft. Wayne, Indiana-Gazette of that city, saying:

"The program consisted of arias and songs from Verdi, Donizetti, Tosca, Rigoletti, Faust, Bemberg and Dvorak and a number of English songs, concluding with a scene from Pagliacci in costume. Each number was applauded to the echo, and when Mr. Harrold had concluded "La Donna Mobile" (Rigoletti), the audience would not be satisfied until an encore was given. "Killarney" was given with rare brilliancy and Marshall's "For You Alone" was one of the greatest successes of the program.

The number in costume aroused sensational applause and Mr. Harrold kindly repeated a part of it, in spite of heat and weariness. In that he showed not only wonderful beauty of voice but also dramatic power of the first quality. The concert was musically and artistically a great success. The accompanist was Miss Agnes Monroe, who supported the singer in masterful style."

Julie Ring.

The Optimist Club of Chicago gave a reception recently and among the guests were several of the leading comedians of the American stage. Charles J. Winninger, the funny fellow, who has the principal part in the support of Julie

Ring in "The Yankee Girl," was asked to give a definition of an optimist and he replied as follows:

"An optimist can see double; he never looks behind; he brushes by trouble and can smile at any time. It is always Spring with him; he is a booster, a pathfinder and thinks only of the happy days to come. The first man that ate an oyster was an optimist.

The first man that married the second time was an optimist. The first man that built a house in the suburbs was an optimist. The first man that saved his money was an optimist. Once there was a man who fell out of a window of a twenty story building, as he passed the tenth story, he said, "Everything is all right, so far." That man was an optimist. The ladies are all optimists. I ask you to gaze at the men, coolly and dispassionately and then tell me how any girl could love him if she were not an optimist. Woman is the original optimist and she converted man to her way of thinking. The poor old pessimist is the only man that flocks alone."

"The Yankee Girl" will be the attraction at the Gennett on Wednesday evening, September 11, and Mr. Winninger, as chief assistant to Julie Ring, will endeavor to convert stray pessimists and send them forth full fledged optimists.

Thimbles.

Fashion in thimbles is very luxurious in some far eastern countries. Rich Chinese women have thimbles carved out of mother-of-pearl, and sometimes the top is a single precious stone.

TRUTH TRIUMPHS

RICHMOND CITIZENS TESTIFY FOR THE PUBLIC BENEFIT.

A truthful statement of a Richmond citizen, given in his own words should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use Doan's Kidney Pills.

A Richmond citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Could you demand more convincing proof of merit?

F. P. Brooks, 215 South Fifth St., Richmond, Ind., says: "We think highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and are glad to confirm our former public endorsement of them. I had pains through my back and sides and my kidneys were disordered. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I began using them and they made me well. Another member of the family who had weak kidneys and also suffered from backache used Doan's Kidney Pills and received complete relief."

SYRIA'S HUGE MONOLITH.

LARGEST STONE EVER QUARRIED IS A RELIC OF ANTIQUITY.

One of the most interesting proofs of the wonderful civilization of the ancients is afforded by the great slab of stone at Baalbec, in Syria. This huge monolith is sixty-nine feet long, fourteen feet broad and seventeen feet in depth. It is said to be the largest piece of stone ever quarried and its estimated weight is 1,500 tons.

It is thought by archaeological scholars that this huge stone was intended by the ancient builders to adorn the Temple of the Sun near by—now, of course, in ruins. Here in one of the walls which still stand are to be seen huge slabs of stone, which careful measurements show to be sixty-three feet long and thirteen feet high.

And, more remarkable still, they are placed in position nineteen feet above the ground level. Moreover, although no sign of any cementing mixture is to be found in these ancient buildings, the stones have been squared and polished so evenly that only after the most minute search can the joints be found and when traced it is impossible to thrust the blade of a pocket knife between them!

How these things were done is a standing mystery to the scientist—Wide World Magazine.

THROWING THE DISCUS.

METHODS OF THE GRECIAN ATHLETES IN HOMERIC TIMES.

Discus throwing was a refined form of hurling the stone. In Homeric times, and even at Olympia, a stone or mass of iron was first used for the purpose. This was held by a leather thong, swung in a circle and hurled as far as possible. A circular or lenticular disk of bronze was used at least as early as the beginning of the fifth century.

A standard weight must, of course, be assumed for the great games. A discus now in the British museum, which seems to have been used, weighs 11 pounds 9 ounces, but whether this was the standard weight or not is not definitely known.

The thrower took his stand upon a slight elevation of limited circumference, where he could have a secure foothold and was prevented from running. Then, with a swing of the arm and a corresponding movement of the whole body, he hurled the discus as far as possible.

The value of the body movement was recognized by the sculptor Myron in his famous statue, "The Discobolus," and is understood by the modern athlete when he swings the hammer or even when he makes a drive at golf.

The figures on which suits get their final shaping are the kind used by good dressmakers and tailors. I have all sizes and covered so that the suits get as nearly as possible the shape of their owners. I keep the figures arranged in fresh petticoats and shirt waists, and when the freshly washed suits are on them I'm not ashamed for any one to walk into my shaping rooms. Each suit is taken from the figure and placed in its box for shipment. Great care is taken to see that every part of it is perfectly dry."

PETITIONERS MUST PAY THE COSTS

IF COMMISSIONERS TURN DOWN PETITION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS.

Subscribers to petitions asking for the improvement of highways under the three mile act, by affixing their names to the petition, make themselves financially responsible for part of the cost of advertising and other incidental expenses if the petition is voted down by the board of county commissioners. The preliminary expenses usually amount to between $400 and $500.

Many persons have signed petitions for road improvements under the three mile act in ignorance of the fact that they may be called on to pay part of the costs in case the county commissioners turn down the request.

Thus far the board of commissioners has rejected but one petition, that one being the improvement of Northwest Eighth street petitioned for by Richard Sedgwick and others. The improvement would have been partly in the city and partly in the township. When the city board of works turned down the project, the county commissioners also dropped the petition.

It is understood that a petition for the improvement of Northwest Fifth street under the three mile act, also a joint city and township improvement, will not be presented to either the board of works or the commissioners until the signers know that the board of works will act favorably on the measure.

If the commissioners pass favorably on a petition, the entire costs are borne by the county, and the petitioners are exempt from paying the preliminary costs.

Something to Show.

"Do you mean to tell me," demanded Silicus angrily, "that you actually ordered $10 worth of groceries of a total stranger at prices less than any wholesale dealer can buy them and paid for them in advance?"

"Yes, that's what I said," replied his better half.

"And you hadn't sense enough to see that it was a barefaced swindle!" roared Silicus. "Well, your money's gone now, and you have nothing to show for it."

"Why, yes, I have, John," said his wife. "I have the man's receipt for the money."—Lippincott's.
