Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE.

Clark Jones, a middle aged farmer of Georgia, owner of considerable property, a man of high standing in his neighborhood, asked a jury to send him to the insane hospital.

He told an astounding story:
"All my life I have tried to walk in the footsteps of my Saviour. I have worked hard and tried to do my duty.
But now impulses foreign to my real and better nature have come over me to do things that are not right.

"I have even bought poison and a pistol and rope to kill myself.
"At the critical moment my right mind has returned. I have never harmed a creature. I hope to get to heaven, but I want to go clean. I fear the struggle between my dual natures will not always end in victory for the better. That is why I ask to be sent to the asylum."

Poor Jones!
He talked so sanely and sensibly the jury hesitated, but, on the advice of the physicians, committed him.

His confession is like a window through which one may look into the soul arena where the good and the bad angels of his life have fought for supremacy.

Fancy his feelings!
He realized that not only was his own life unsafe from that other self, but the life of his dear ones.

His house was divided against itself.
Can you think of a greater tragedy?
The foes that confront a man from without—why, a brave man can face them and fight them to the death. But the foes within—

Moreover, there is a lesson in the soul struggle of Clark Jones: How many men and women may be undergoing such a struggle or may have succumbed?

How many may there be in prison today because of the unequal battle in their inner selves between Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?

I am not condoning crime.
It is not necessary to shield the malevolent or the willfully depraved criminal to suggest the possibility that some offenders may have been overcome by disparate influences foreign to their better selves.

And you and I?
Have we not within us, to some extent, the possibility of such a moral defect?

THE COTTON INDUSTRY.

Alexander Hamilton foresaw its importance in this country.

There exists in the archives of one of the oldest among the cotton spinning families in northern New Jersey a long letter from a banker of New York addressed to Alexander Hamilton when he was secretary of the treasury.
The banker had heard that Hamilton purposed to build a cotton mill at Paterson, N. J. This project the banker condemned and stated that it was the opinion of all the merchants in New York whom he knew that not in a hundred years would the cotton spinning business in the United States employ 200.

Hamilton went ahead and planned the industrial town he named Paterson and also planned and financed a company for developing a water power and for financing corporations thereat.
Hamilton's original company, known as the Society For Useful Manufactures, exists to this day at Paterson.

The agent whom Hamilton sent to England to buy cotton mill machinery was instructed to have it "knocked down" and placed in small boxes that were to be marked "Bibles For the Moravians of Pennsylvania." It was at that time against the laws of England to ship any kind of industrial machinery out of the kingdom. Hamilton's brother and two of his agents were caught trying to ship the cotton mill machinery to Paterson, and they were imprisoned for ten months.—Cotton.

Character.

Should one tell you that a mountain had changed its place you are at liberty to doubt it, but if any one tells you that a man has changed his character do not believe it.—Mohammed.

The Rockefeller War.

Now that Sergeant-at-Arms Riddell of the House of Representatives with his small army of deputies and secret service men have been unsuccessful in trapping Bill Rockefeller in the seige of the latter's New York chateau the War College at Washington should be called upon to provide a general plan of campaign directed against all three of the castles where the great money baron is now supposed to be secreted.

Riddell and his gallant men could be left to beleague the Gotham mansion while the New York police force could act as a reserve to assist in repulsing any attempted sortie.

At the same time there is no doubt that a successful attack could be made upon the Rockefeller stronghold at Tarrytown by sending up the Hudson a fleet of torpedo boats and river gunboats. While this flotilla bombaraded from the river a land attack could be made by a few regiments of New York and Vermont militia, supported by batteries of moving picture machines and mounted reporters.

Simultaneously with the assaults upon the New York and Tarrytown castles the North Atlantic fleet could shell the grim McKay fortress on Jekyll Island, off the Georgia coast.

After all three of these strongholds had fallen and the honor and dignity of the United States had been upheld all that was left of Bill could be dug out of whatever place he had taken refuge in and sent by parcels post to the Pujo "money trust" investigating committee at Washington.

"War is hell," as General Sherman once remarked, but Rockefeller must be subdued even if the cost is the shedding of the last drop of blood of every able-bodied man in the republic.

The call for volunteers and the proclaiming of martial law in the states of Georgia and New York are expected at any minute.

Let every American do his duty.

Kings Too Expensive.

One of the greatest reasons for the increasing popularity of the republican form of government is the fact that royal families are too extravagant luxuries for any people to indulge in this era of high living expenses.

The royal family of Great Britain costs the nation $3,704,800 per year. Of this sum the civil list of the King and Queen account for $2-256,000, ex-Queen Alexandra receives the trifling pension of $336,000, and the rest flows in from various sources to different members of the royal house.

The civil list, that is the direct cash charge on national revenues, of the Emperor of Austria is $4,520,000 per year.

Spain is a very poor country, but she manages to spend $1,944,000 per year on her royal family, one of whom is a deaf mute, one a consumptive and not one with trained wit enough to earn $12 per week.

Kaiser Wilhelm has a civil list of $3,698,000 per year, but that sum is only a fraction of royalty's cost to the German people. The Kaiser owns an enormous amount of private property, enough to make him one of the richest men in Europe aside from his civil list, and the lesser knights of Germany are not small when it comes to expenses.

The King of Bavaria costs the country $1,286,000 per year. The King of Saxony draws $881,000 per year. Wurtemberg is a little principality, smaller than New Jersey, both in area and population. The Governor of New Jersey gets $10,000 per year. The King of Wurtemberg gets $400,000 for the same time.

Uncle Sam pays his chief executive $75,000 a year with an expense fund of $25,000.

Noting this American executive economy, Portugal some time ago sped from the tip of its boot its spendthrift Manuel, who alighted with a dull thud in England, and last year furnished the astonishing spectacle of the newly awakened Chinese people chasing their baby emperor and his mother and uncles and aunts into the tall and uncultured districts of Mongolia.

Forgot His Own Tongue.

A traveler in arctic Siberia, Mr. Vanderlip, a gold hunter, told the following of his return to civilization: "I found that half a dozen of the officers and men of the steamer which my employers had sent for me had come to hunt me up. The captain dismounted, and I tried to address him in Russian, but he said, 'You forget that I speak English.' Now, if you may seem careless, and yet it is true, that for a few moments I was totally unable to converse with him in my native tongue.
I had not used a word of it in conversation for months, and my low physical condition acting on my nerves confused my mind, and I spoke a jumble of English, Russian and Korak. It was a week before I could talk good, straight English again."

RANSFORD D. BUCKNAM.

Admiral Ransford D. Bucknam, familarly known as Bucknam Pascha, vice admiral of the Turkish navy and chief naval adviser to the former Sultan Abdul Hamid, was born in Hansport, Nova Scotia, Jan. 2, 1869. Both his parents were lost at sea and his own life reads like a sea novel. His earliest youth was spent with his grandparents in Manitoba, but while still a boy he took up a life on the great lakes.
Longing for more extensive travels, he went to Boston and shipped on an Australian packet. After a shipwreck and numerous other adventures he returned several years later to the United States and became master of a steamship on the great lakes but he again tired of this berth and proceeded to San Francisco, where he accepted a position as captain of a Pacific liner.
When he left the Pacific it was to enter the employ of the Cramps at Philadelphia. Here he was assigned to deliver a war ship built for the Turkish government. In Turkey he won the favor of the Sultan and became the latter's chief naval adviser. He remained virtually the head of the Turkish navy until the overthrow of Abdul Hamid.

ARMY CIRCLE WEDDING

(National News Association)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 2.—The fashionable St. John's church was the scene of the first military wedding of the year this afternoon, when Miss Frances Hodges, daughter of Col.
Harry F. Hodges, U. S. A., and Mrs.
Hodges, became the bride of Lieut.
Albert H. Archer, of the engineering corps of the army. The best man and ushers were all brother officers of the brigade, while nearly all of the bride's attendants were daughters of prominent army officers. Following the ceremony at the church there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents in Massachusetts avenue.

CHILDREN OF UAP.

They Don't Have to Worry About Food, Clothes or Shelter.

In describing Uap, one of the Caroline islands, Dr. W. H. Furness says that children become more or less public property on that island as soon as they are able to run about from house to house.

They cannot without extraordinary exertion fall off the island, and, like little guinea pigs, can find food anywhere. Their clothing grows by every roadside, and any shelter or no shelter is good enough for the night. They cannot starve. There are no wild beasts or snakes to harm them. What matters it if they sleep under the high, star powdered ceiling of their foster mother's nursery or curl up on mats beneath their father's thatch?

There is no implication here that parents are not fond of their children.
On the contrary, they love them so much that they see their own children in all children. It is the ease of life and its surroundings which have atrophied the emotion of parental love.

When a father has merely to say to his wife and children, "Go out and shake your breakfast off the trees," or "Go to the thicket and gather your clothes," to him the struggle for existence is meaningless, and without a struggle the prizes of life are held in light esteem.

Somebody's children are always about the houses and to the fore in all excitements, and never did I see them roughly handled or harshly treated.

RAILROAD NOTES

Youngstown, Ohio has the distinction of having the only female master boilermaker in the world. Miss Alice B. Chute is the general manager of the Enterprise Boiler company of that city, and she has just completed the work of installing some steel tanks on the roof of the Park theater annex, a ten story building. On leaving high school Miss Chute entered the drafting department of the Varley Iron company of Cleveland, and remained with the company until she became assistant to the president. She assumed her present position at Youngstown twelve years ago.

"SAFETY ALWAYS."

Nearly all the letters passing from one department to another at the Wabash railroad shops, depot, freight house and yards bears the stamp "Safety Always," and the Wabash banner, the emblem of the company.
This stamp, it is said, was designed by a switchman and approved by the company officials.

TO CLEAN CARS.

The Pennsylvania has adopted a policy of thoroughly cleaning all freight cars before they are weighed and sent to shippers. In previous practice a shipper would get a car containing refuse matter from a previous load of merchandise. In the case of a coal car the bottom would be sprinkled with fine coal, which would also lodge on the trucks and about other portions of the cars. Now, however, every car is scrupulously brushed out, corps of men being employed at terminals to attend to this work. It has been found that the superfluous weight removed from each car averages of 200 pounds.

This means a great saving to the railroad, for under the old method the shipper could clean his car after it had been weighed and would thus have freight amounting in weight to the refuse removed, hauled free of charge.

BUDGETS FOR 1913.

Most of the large railway systems have not yet made up the budget for improvements to be made in 1913. The improvement in railway business is making greater activity in this line possible. An improvement in average rates would undoubtedly give it great impetus. Until that comes the railways will hardly be able to meet the legitimate needs of the country.

DOUBLE TRACKING.

Although nothing could be learned here to substantiate the rumor it is reported in Muncie that the Pennsyvania Railroad company is contemplating double tracking its main road from Chicago to Cincinnati by way of Anderson and Richmond and that a line is to be built connecting the Muncie division which formerly was the old C. L. & E., with the main line at Hagerstown.
