

GREAT PEACE ARMY HAS DEPARTED NOW

Veterans Leave Old Gettysburg By the Thousands During the Day.

WILSON THE SPEAKER

During the Celebration of the Fourth of July on the Famous Field.

The address of President Wilson at Gettysburg yesterday will be found on page four of this issue.

(National News Association)
GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 5.—The streets of Gettysburg again resounded with the tread of marching men. Thousands of blue and grey clad veterans, the great army of the past that has encamped for six days on the hilltops around the town, are passing through it on their way to the rail-road station and homeward. By tonight the great battlefield will be deserted. Beginning early this morning special trains in all directions pulled out of Gettysburg at quarter hour intervals. It is estimated that 20,000 abandoned camp this morning and the remaining 10,000 will have departed by tonight. The army officers will be withdrawn tomorrow but the tents will not be removed until next week.

GETTYSBURG, Penn., July 5.—Touchingly impressive was the regular army's tribute yesterday to the thousands who sleep under the hills of Gettysburg. Somewhere down in the heart of the tented city a bugle rang out in silver sweet call, that wandered over the field where Lee and Meade made history.

The big flag before the headquarters of General Liggett, flashing in sudden curves of red and white and blue, glorious in the sunshine of a perfect July day, came slowly half way down the shaft. In front of the tent, shoulders squared, figure trim, in sun-uniform of white, face toward the General clicked heels together and stood at attention. Somewhere guns of the Third Battery burst in staccato salute. Every officer over the length and breadth of that wide field, every enlisted man turned away from the duties of the moment and faced the flag, heels together, heads up and eyes alight with the sentiment of the hour.

As the last gun of 48 sent the echoes clattering about Seminary Ridge and Little Round Top, there was solemn silence, the hush of peace.

Veterans Stand Silent.

Veterans who did not realize, perhaps, exactly what was going on stood silent under the spell of the universal feeling that seemed to sweep the field. Even the clattering of pots and pans in the mess tents was hushed and the yell of cooks about the dished up mid-day meal lowered to whispers. For five minutes the camp was quiet.

Then the bugle spoke again in notes more joyous. The silken flag leaped up the staff to its very pinnacle and the noise that 40,000 men can make, resumed their sway, following the regular army's tribute to the dead and to the flag of a reunited nation.

"What five minutes' silence probably was the last formal mark of the semi-centennial celebration. Only a few minutes before President Wilson spoke in the big tent to the veterans in blue and gray, and only a short time afterward thousands of those who were left began their preparations for departure.

The President came into Gettysburg shortly before 11 o'clock from Baltimore. Through the narrow, crooked streets of this war-famed country town, he motored out to camp, with Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, and Representative Palmer of Pennsylvania, by his side.

Usual Salute Fired.

His appearance at the station of Gettysburg was the signal for a cheer and from somewhere down in the Gettysburg College grounds came the customary 21-gun salute. From this station, to the camp, over the village streets and gray and dusty Emmitsburg road the President was driven, while the Pennsylvania constabulary, looking business like and efficient in their slate-gray uniforms, guarded his automobile and kept the traffic clear.

At the entrance to the big tent the President paused for a moment to face the camera battery, standing uncovered between a veteran from either army. His entrance to the strains of "Hail to the Chief" into the tent filled by a crowd, which those who estimate say numbered 10,000, called the veterans from their chairs with a cheer. The speaker's platform was filled with staff officers of Governors, with men in Confederate gray and a few in blue, with women in gray dresses, and the President in his black frock coat was a quiet figure.

Governor Tener introduced him in a dozen words and when he rose to speak there was another cheer.

Ingenious Spiders.

The Royal society in London was recently entertained by a distinguished traveler with an account of a spider living in Australia which makes its habitation along the seashore, in the crevices of the rocks, between high and low water marks.

But when the tide is in their homes are covered with water. Instead of deserting them, however, the spiders solve the difficulty by means of closely woven sheets of silk, which they stretch over the entrances behind which they manage to retain sufficient air to keep them alive during the time they remain submerged.—St. Louis Republic.

Railroad News

STATEMENT ISSUED.

The following statement was issued by the railroads today:

"One hundred thousand conductors and trainmen on the Eastern railroads have completed taking a vote to decide whether or not they shall strike in the event they fail to effect a settlement with the railroads of their demand for an increase in wages of $17,000,000, or 20 per cent per annum.

"The presidents of the conductors and trainmen's organizations in an official circular have cautioned the employees to give 'just as little publicity as possible to the taking of the strike vote and of the date on which the vote is to be completed.'

"The trainmen's and conductor's brotherhoods ordered that a strike ballot should be sent out on June 15, and that the vote should be completed and in the hands of the general chairman by July 1, on which date they were to reconvene in New York city.

"The managers' committee desires the greatest possible publicity given to every feature of the controversy.

"If the railroads are forced to pay extravagant wages to men in train service, the burden must fall on the public, for it is only from the 50,000 people directly dependent on these railroads for transportation facilities that the roads can secure revenue.

"It is obvious, therefore, why, in dealing with the trainmen and conductors, the managers' committee hold the public's interest paramount, and why the managers insist that the public shall be in complete knowledge of every detail of the controversy.

"It is the public that has the most at stake."

MISS DOYLE SHOCKED OVER LOVER'S DEATH

when he was thrown from his car to the track. Knight was well known in Richmond, having frequently visited here while working for the Westcott company.

DETAILS OF TRAGEDY.

COLUMBUS, O., July 5.—Harry C. Knight of Indianapolis and his mechanic, Milton Michaelis of Claves, N. M., were killed here Friday afternoon, when Knight's front wheel-drive car blew a right rear tire and capsized on the 110th lap of the 200-mile automobile race given under the auspices of the Columbus Automobile Association.

Michaelis succumbed to concussion of the brain a few hours later.

Knight had been out of the race for thirty minutes because of engine trouble and had just re-entered. He was said to have been running at seventy miles an hour when the accident occurred.

John Jenkins, of Springfield, O., was following Knight at a short distance, and, according to some of the witnesses, ran over Knight's body, which had fallen to the track. Jenkins declared he ran over something, but does not know whether it was a body or a part of a machine.

Top of Head Mashed Off.
Knight's head was badly mashed and the top part torn off. His legs were driven to his armpits and the remainder of the body badly mutilated. Michaelis, who died in the hospital, was 19 years old.

When the tire blew up the car turned over twice and landed in an upright position. Michaelis was thrown out at the first turn and suffered a fractured skull.

Knight was pinned and mashed under his steering wheel, but fell out just as the car finally righted. He died almost immediately after assistants reached his side.

The accident occurred almost immediately in front of the grand stand and was witnessed by thousands of spectators.

Had Been Declared Out.

Just previous to the time he had started again Knight had been officially declared out of the race because of time lost with engine trouble. Regardless of the officials he re-entered the race.

Ralph Mulford won the race, breaking the world's record for 200 miles on a dirt track. He went the distance in 3:21:48. The previous best time was made on the Columbus track last year by Spencer Wishart in 3:28:45.
