

RELATION OF THE LIBRARY TO CITY

Speakers Declare That It Is Not Mere Storehouse For Books.

AS A SOCIAL CENTER

"Make Library Moral and Intellectual Force," Says Miss Jayne.

Following the general topic for the week of special lectures the speakers at the summer school for librarians at Earlham college, today, discussed the library and its relation to the community, showing how it could be made more than a mere storehouse for books of reference and works of fiction.

The speakers at the morning session, which began at 8 o'clock, were, Miss E. G. Browning, Indianapolis, Miss Henriette I. Scranton, Elwood, Miss N. W. Jayne, Bluffton, and Miss W. F. Tice, Huntington.

Miss Mary E. Ahern, Chicago, and Miss Elva L. Bascom, Madison, Wis., spoke at the afternoon meeting.

The possibilities of the library as a social and civic center were discussed by Miss E. G. Browning, of the Indianapolis library. Miss Browning showed that the library had a place in the new movement for the establishment of social centers in all the cities of the country, and gave practical suggestions for the organization of the work in the smaller towns.

Library Advertising.

In her talk on library advertising, Miss Scranton discussed the bulletin to be used about town, and that to be used in the library, expressing the caution that they should not be given too much time and effort but should be simple and direct in appeal and should have a definite use other than decorative. She considered also the annotated list, a most important method of advertising; the news, which should appear regularly every day; the new book shelf, the catalog of known books; complete sets of an author's works shown with portrait and sketch of life; letters to rural readers and annotated lists of books interesting to them; the posting in the library from week to week poems of interest, and the use of the moving picture theatre to call attention to the library and to those books which the pictures frequently illustrate. In conclusion, she gave as the two greatest advertisers a library could have, well stocked shelves and the well stocked librarian.

"To make the library a moral and intellectual force in the community, to bring it in touch with the various activities and interests of the town are some of the duties of the librarian, according to the new conception," said Miss Nannie W. Jayne.

Improvement of City.

It is no longer sufficient to do well the duties in the library, she said. The librarian should work in all movements for the improvement of the city. Educational exhibits may be secured and placed in it. Lists of books can be compiled and spread among the people, dealing with topics in which the town is interested.

"The library may furnish amusements, to an extent, and should see that the town has lectures and other profitable entertainments."

The talk this afternoon "On Being a Modern Librarian" and "What Every Body Wants," concluded the week of special lectures.

TEAMSTERS' STRIKE FELT IN RICHMOND

Pennsylvania Freight Agent Issues Notices to Local Shippers.

Because of the teamsters' strike at Cincinnati, Freight Agent C. D. Slifer of the Pennsylvania offices at Richmond has notified local concerns and manufacturers through his assistants, that no less than carload shipments of freight will be sent to that city. This includes Cincinnati delivery proper only and shipments of any size will be sent through to points beyond in any direction.

The embargo placed on the company was issued by the general superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad and notices were distributed to division superintendents and freight officials of lines entering Cincinnati. Bulletins announcing the embargo have been posted in all the freight offices of the Pennsylvania lines affected by the order.

As many Richmond shippers as could be communicated with over the telephone were notified of the embargo. When it is lifted they probably will be advised.

Freight Agent Greenstreet of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad here said that he had received no notice of an embargo on his road and could not state positively whether one would be issued or not.

The teamsters' strike is the outgrowth of complicated labor difficulties and has been in progress for several days. The embargo placed on the Pennsylvania lines entering Cincinnati probably will not be lifted until the strikers have consented to re-

RICHMOND OFFICIALS FINISH INSPECTION

Superintendent J. C. McCullough, accompanied by C. C. Schaad of the office of General Superintendent McCarty of Columbus, and the Richmond division staff of officials, completed an inspection trip of the line Tuesday night. The trip from Logansport to Cincinnati required two days.

The inspection is a periodical event in connection with the business of the local division. Superintendent McCullough had nothing unusual to report at the completion of the trip, and only the routine matter of investigating the general condition of the divisions line was the result, he says.

The talk this afternoon "On Being a Modern Librarian" and "What Every Body Wants," concluded the week of special lectures.

MULHALL IS TODAY PLACED UPON GRILL

Senate Committee Picks to Pieces the Story of the Lobbyist

(National News Association)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Having protected Martin Mulhall while he had built up a huge mound of accusations against the legislative activities of the National Association of Manufacturers, the Overman lobby inquiry committee today began to pick this evidence to pieces for the purpose of finding out just what wrong acts the manufacturers committed.

"It is not Mulhall, but the manufacturers who are on trial here," said a member of the committee today. "Mulhall may have told many falsehoods, but if he convinced his employers that he could do certain things by the use of money, and they knowingly advanced him money to accomplish such ends, they are subject to criticism to what ever degree the ends to be attained were appropriate or contrary to public policy."

J. P. Ralston, counsel for the American Federation of Labor, said today that he did not propose to submit to the committee any questions in cross-examination of Col. Mulhall.

Names Auxiliaries.

Col. Mulhall today submitted a list of associations which he declared in 1909 were under the control of the National Council of Industrial Defense and an auxiliary of the N. A. M. Mulhall said the list was given to him by S. C. Schwedtman of St. Louis. The list included the employers of Chicago, the Employers' Association of Indianapolis, the Illinois Lumber Dealers' Association of Chicago, of which Edward Hines was connected; the Citizens' Industrial Association of St. Louis, and the Citizens' Association of America, of which C. W. Post of Battle Creek was the head, and the National Erectors' Association of New York.

The Erectors' Association gained much prominence at the McNamara dynamite trial at Indianapolis. Senator Nelson asked Col. Mulhall about his discharge from the N. A. M.

"I demand a civil and pertinent question to the witness," cried Senator Reed.

"I wasn't discharged," said Col. Mulhall.
