

LIGHT RAIN FALL RELIEVES DROUTH AIDING FARM CROPS

At last the weather man has consented to break the long drouth and the heat wave which has caused unusual suffering for this time of year and caused farmers to fear for the crops.

After a week during which the mercury hovered at the dizzy ninety mark, it took a decided fall early this morning when a shower fell. The rain while not as heavy as needed settled the dust and was of great value to farmers, according to A. D. Cobb, county agent. The rain, he believes, has meant hundreds of dollars to Wayne county.

Stephen Kuth, berry grower and agriculturist, said today the rain would not benefit the strawberry crop very much. Days of intense heat, with the soil parched, large cracks appearing in places, caused the vines to wilt and fall to the ground. The rain will not be able to resuscitate the languishing plants, and housewives will either pay heavier prices for berries to eat, or forego the luxury.

Worry About Hay.
The effect of the rain on the hay crop is problematical. It was predicted late last week that the crop would be short, and whether the downfall will help timothy was a matter of conjecture with farmers today. Some asserted if the rain continued, two weeks would see timothy round out, while others asserted the crop was too far gone to be benefited. A general shortage of timothy was predicted.

Blackberries and raspberries, according to Mr. Kuth, will be assisted in maturing into good crops by the rain of today. He asserted the fruits were just through blooming, and with today's down pour to assist the fruiting would assure Richmond housewives a copious supply for the table and for canning purposes.

Small Crops Benefit.
Small crops and vegetables were aided by the rain. This observation, according to farmers, held true also of meadows. In places where the soil is light, meadows were burned out by the heat. Dairywomen were anxiously awaiting rain.

Corn is standing good and the wheat crop showed little suffering. Lawns about homes and the sward in Richmond parks needed rain.

Three days of last week, the thermometer registered 91 degrees, and on Thursday broke the season record with 92 degrees as the maximum for the day. The minimum for the week was fifty degrees on Sunday night.

The record of the co-operative observer follows:

	Max.	Min.
Sunday	84	50
Monday	91	59
Tuesday	91	65
Wednesday	90	63
Thursday	92	60
Friday	91	62
Saturday	83	54

OVERCOME BY HEAT

Haas Forced From Line-up of Murrys.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., June 1.—Shelbyville defeated the Richmond Murrys here yesterday 13-10. The game was marred by the injury of one of the visiting team, Haas and Stittow. Haas was overcome by the heat at the end of the first inning and had to retire. As the other catcher of the Murrys had been injured the day before, a backstop man had to be hunted up out of the crowd and this fact caused the downfall of Richmond. Stittow turned his ankle in the chase, a fly and had to leave the game, further crippling the team. Guyman, pitching for the Wayne county boys, was far more effective than Shelbyville's mound man but the loss of Haas allowed the locals to run the bags at will.

OBJECTS TO SPOUSE RIDING WITH OTHERS

Mrs. William Schenck Asks Mayor to Stop Husband's "Joy Rides."

Mrs. William Schenck is irrevocably opposed to her husband buggy-riding with any woman except herself. Of late his invitations to her to share "joy rides" with him have been noticeable by their absence but he has not been so stung by such invitations to other women, claims Mrs. Schenck. Yesterday she took drastic means to discourage her husband against continuing his infidelities. She told the police to arrest him when he arrived at a North Fifth street livery barn to secure a horse and buggy, a difficult request to comply with in the absence of any legal charge against the man. However, a large revolver was found on Schenck when he arrived at the barn and this morning he pleaded guilty to carrying a concealed weapon when arraigned before Mayor Robbins.

In the meantime Mrs. Schenck came to her husband's rescue and pleaded that he be given another chance. Mayor Robbins released the young man, who is the father of an eight weeks old baby, at the request of Prosecutor Reller, when Schenck promised in the future to dispense with the affinity business and be a good husband and father, contributing regularly to the support of his family. "If you keep on chasing around," remarked the mayor as the youth left the court room, "you will be brought back here again and get the limit provided for the offense you are charged with."

COUNTY LEADS ALL IN ROAD EFFICIENCY

State Highway Superintendents Classify Wayne as "A No. 1" in Work.

As far as road work is concerned, Wayne county leads the state, and is acknowledged by all member of the state organization of road superintendents to be A-No. 1. W. O. Jones, county highway commissioner, told the other highway superintendents a number of things in connection with road work, which had not been known before in other counties.

He found that prison labor on the roads was not used in any of the eighty counties represented. As a result of his explanation of the system used here, Marion county, of which Indianapolis is the seat, will place twenty-five to fifty men a day out of prisons on the roads.

Superintendent Jones was the first man called on to talk at the meeting, and was introduced as the representative of the county which is the pacesetter for the state. Mr. Jones found that Wayne county is the only county which is working men in all districts at all times. Financial troubles caused by the 1913 flood are chiefly the reason for the lack of road work in other counties. In some counties, the commissioners failed to make extra provision, and as a result are seriously hampered in financing their road work.

Before coming to this place he was an instructor in the schools of Connersville. He is a graduate of State Normal college, of Terre Haute, and has taken work at Indiana university and Earlham college.

ROYALTY SORROWS FOR SHIPS VICTIMS

LONDON, June 1.—A memorial service for the victims in the Empress of Ireland disaster will be held in St. Paul's this week. It will be national in character and will be attended by a representative of the royal family.

Crowds continue to besiege the offices of the Canadian Pacific line, clamoring for information about relatives or friends who were on board the Empress of Ireland.

The newspapers contained dramatic reports of the accident told by the survivors and cabled here from Montreal and Quebec. In some of these Captain Thomas Anderson of the Collier Storstad, which rammed the Empress of Ireland, is accused of careless seamanship.

That the government board of trade is determined to make a thorough investigation of the collision is shown by the fact that a representative of that branch of the government has left for Quebec to confer with the Dominion authorities and officials of the Canadian Pacific.

DR. COOK INTENDS TO RETURN NORTH WHEN RECOGNIZED

Arctic Explorer in City Says Sea Farming in Northland Will Become Source of Great Wealth.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, explorer, scientist and the man whose name was in every newspaper and magazine and on the lips of every person in the United States three to five years ago after he returned in 1909 to Copenhagen, Denmark, after discovering the North Pole, is in Richmond.

The purpose of his trip throughout the continent and at motion picture theatres, is to create public sentiment in favor of the Peledexter bill, which will practically give him national recognition from the government and a $300 gold medal for his services, establishing his claim of priority to Peary, whose later discovery was the cause of a heated controversy.

Dr. Cook is showing his photographs in color from the plates he brought back on foot from the pole to Copenhagen, where his case was first heard. He announced today that he will return to the Northlands, not only because of his love of the wild rugged country, but to establish a great new industry, that of sea farming.

"I will not make another trip to the pole," Dr. Cook said. "Nothing could be gained by one trip or a dozen. I have the scientific facts, which are of primary importance, and I know the topography and the nature of the country."

Dr. Cook stated that he will not ask money as Peary did although Peary, a later discoverer, was given $50,000 and a pension of $5,000 a year for his discovery.

"We could not go there and put a stick in the place where the North Pole is located," Dr. Cook said. "It is easier to tell within a foot right here than it is to locate it within ten miles at the pole. I was openly frank in admitting this."

To Open New Industry.

"Contrary to general opinion, the far north is not a useless and sterile waste," said Dr. Cook. "The time will come when human life with new industries will extend to within 500 miles of the pole. To that point there is an abundance of grass and animal life. There are minerals and the sea has in it a more usable life than the Gulf of Mexico. We do not mean to say that Arctic agriculture in a large way, will ever be possible, but the long continued summer sun is an asset to the Polar regions which we have not grasped."

PROTEST ON SALOON

Citizens Remonstrate With Commissioners.

The first remonstrance filed against a saloon for some time was brought in against the petition of Michael Mitchell to open a new saloon at 18 North Fifth street. The county commissioners had never considered the application or remonstrance up to a late hour this afternoon and probably will defer action until the Saturday meeting.

There are sixty-nine names on the remonstrance but no grounds are given except that the residents of the Second ward object to the spread of saloons through the ward.

Syracuse, N. Y., has 149,353 people.

DAIRYMEN OPPOSE BOTTLE DELIVERY

Seek to Defeat Attempt to Pass Amendments to Present Milk Law.

The ordinance committee of council at the session this evening is expected to present a favorable report on the two amendments to the milk inspection ordinance offered by Councilman O'Neal as a substitute to the dairy ordinance killed at the last council meeting. These amendments provide for the thorough sterilization of all milk bottles and other vessels used for holding milk, express their preference as to whether they desire to have milk delivered in bottles or dipped from a can. What the result of this straw vote has been is not known, but it probable it will be made public at council meeting tonight, or at some other session before final action is taken on the O'Neal amendments.

At one of the meetings held during the discussion of the delinquent bond ordinance, Weiss made the statement that seventy-five per cent of his patrons preferred dipped milk to bottled milk, and that he had a very small bottled milk business.

Weiss at that time was informed that distributing milk in cans was very unsanitary and dangerous to the public health.

"Weiss has distributed votes to all women who patronize him, requesting them to express their preference as to whether they desire to have milk delivered in bottles or dipped from a can. What the result of this straw vote has been is not known, but it probable it will be made public at council meeting tonight, or at some other session before final action is taken on the O'Neal amendments."

WINTERS COUPLE

"Catherine Winters was an intelligent child—could read and write and had ideas of her own. No one who knows the facts believes that Catherine Winters was spirited away from New Castle and would never write back or tell some one of the being kidnapped, unless previous arrangements were made with her. Of course, if she were dead, she could not write."

Was Winters Trying to Mislead?

"Dr. Winters knew that gypsies did not steal his daughter, and all the surrounding circumstances tend to show and all the officers who had charge of the search believe that Winters was only trying to mislead the officers. If Winters wanted to find his child, why did he not talk to the sheriff, prosecutor and judge of the court and ask them to bring the state of Indiana to his assistance? He never gave these officers any of the facts relative to the case, and the detectives who worked on the case repeatedly made complaint that Dr. Winters would not answer their questions in a satisfactory manner, and all of them told Winters that they could not find his daughter until he told them what he knew. Every clue has always come back to one and the same source."

"Everybody knows that the home life of Winters was not pleasant, but it was caused by his own indiscretion. Mrs. Winters was never blamed for any part in the transaction, as she did only those things which were necessary to protect herself."

IS NOT CATHERINE.

CHICAGO, June 1.—That the little girl held at Findlay, O., under the protection of Judge Dorsey is not Catherine Winters, was confirmed here today by James A. Sanford, Mr. Sanford said that the girl, who was taken into custody by his sister, Mrs. Emma Pharrap, was the woman's grandchild.

Raving Refugee of Empress Captured by Rescue Steamer

RIMOUSKI, June 1.—Half-famished and raving from wild experiences, a Norwegian woman who had floated ashore from the Empress of Ireland, was found wandering on the shore of the St. Lawrence river, many miles from here today.

Members of the crew of a tug boat which were searching for more bodies, saw the woman running along the shore clad only in a single slip of a garment, her disheveled hair flying wild behind her. A boat was sent ashore, but at the sight of the men the woman redoubled her speed.

She wore only a tattered night dress that she had been wearing when the disaster overtook the big boat. Her face and hands were cut and swollen. When the woman became exhausted she was overtaken, but as she regained her strength she began fighting for her freedom. When questioned, she gazed stupidly about her and seemed unable to comprehend what was said. She did not even know her name.

She was taken to a fisherman's hut, put to bed and given warm, strengthening drink. It is understood that this strange fugitive from death drifted ten miles through the icy waters of the St. Lawrence river, clinging to a bit of wreckage. She had nothing to eat after being washed ashore except the roots of bushes.

SUFFRAGISTS ATTACK CHURCH PROPERTY

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng., June 1.—Another week of suffragette violence was ushered in today with attacks on historic religious property. The War grave parish church, regarded as a national monument because of its historic associations, was burned by the arson squad early today. Attached to grave stones in the little cemetery adjacent to the church were slips of paper reading:

"Stop the persecution of women."

MEDIATORS CLASH ABOUT CARRANZA

Huerta Delegates Refuse Admission to Rebel Delegation to Conference of Envoys.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 1. A deadlock has been reached in the Mexican mediation conference. This was admitted by Justice Joseph Lamar, one of the American delegates, this afternoon. The deadlock is said to have been caused by the resistance of the Huerta delegates and the A. B. C. mediators to the admission of a representative of General Carranza to the conferences without the Constitutional chief having agreed to an armistice.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The deadlock of mediation has been tolled unless the A. B. C. envoys can be induced by the United States to permit General Carranza to send representatives to Niagara Falls with the same prerogative that those of the United States and Huerta envoys enjoy.

This opinion was expressed by high officials thoroughly conversant with the administration's Mexican policy. Washington officials are awaiting with undisguised anxiety the outcome of the next twenty-four hours.

Meanwhile the breach between the United States and General Carranza has been growing wider and diplomats here are of the opinion that the breaking point is not far off.

Mediation between the United States and General Huerta has become through the developments of the past few days' arbitration between mediators and General Carranza.

That the mediators and the Constitutional chief are decidedly at odds is admitted. Each has taken offense at the attitude of the other. The flat refusal of Carranza to agree to an armistice during mediation was regarded by the United States envoys in the light of ridicule of their efforts for peace. Carranza in turn believes that he has been treated with scant courtesy by the mediators.
