

SUFFRAGE QUESTION PROVOKES FIGHT IN CLUBS' FEDERATION

Advocates at Chicago Convention Win Places on Floor With Representatives of Other Clubs.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Suffrage scored its first victory in the twelfth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here today when the council decided at the meeting in the Auditorium theatre to permit open discussion on the floor of the main convention. Suffragist leaders declared that with this leaves they will make the convention go on as favoring equal suffrage.

CHICAGO, June 10.—A bitter fight on the suffrage question was anticipated when the twelfth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs opened in the Auditorium theatre today. The initial contest on the result of which would depend the conventions endorsement or non-endorsement of the ballot for women opened at the meeting of the "council," composed of officers and delegates of the federation, which was held this morning for the purpose of considering and outlining the general policies to be followed.

WETS PAD LISTS

the poll books with notations to the effect that for various reasons the persons were not entitled to vote, making a total of 8,432 males in the city of the age of twenty-one years and over. This according to the usual calculations would indicate a population here of between 25,000 and 40,000, whereas the recent report of the United States census, given since the local option election was held, indicates a population of less than 25,000.

"One can hardly escape the conclusion that there was a concerted effort on the part of the opposition to pad the poll lists. This feeling is emphasized when we know that from one saloon thirty-nine names were given to the poll takers from another forty-one, from another eleven, etc. It was easy to have worked this plan not only from saloons, but from boarding houses and other places sympathetic with the wets. Had we not taken the time for a second poll, the wisdom of which some of us questioned severely, we might by careful investigations of the first poll, have been able to have stricken some hundreds of names from the list.

Examine Poll Books.

We are not left, however, to judge the situation wholly in this general manner. One of our leading citizens has taken the time to examine carefully seven of the poll books in which were completely controlled by the wets. He finds that in these seven precincts there are 390 names on the poll books which do not appear in this year's city directory. It even half this average were maintained in the other forty-three precincts, there would account a large sum for the abnormal excess vote polled and on the poll books. While a small number might be properly accounted for, there can hardly be more than one honest conclusion from this examination, and that is that the suspicion that the poll lists were padded, is practically verified. Our organization on election day kept many of these from voting, as the poll books show, but many more of them succeeded in their attempts to vote.

Grand Jury Promised.

"Another matter needs to be set forth here with some clearness. On either Friday or Saturday before the local option election the County Prosecutor was notified that several affidavits were ready to be made charging fraud and violations of the law. He refused to agree to accept these affidavits and approve them to the court, justifying his course with the statement that after the election the Grand Jury would be called and an investigation made of all matters under consideration. From that day until this your Chairman has patiently waited for the naming of a Grand Jury and has been ready to give the Grand Jury the names of persons who have been reported to have information concerning fraud and violations of the law. Whether or not these persons were under oath, stand by their former statements given to various persons, do not know what Grand Jury exists for the express purpose of sifting evidence and finding out whether or not the law has been violated.

"Your Chairman has believed also that if a Grand Jury could have the facts as stated above relating to the probable padding of the poll lists, it would be a most fruitful field for an interesting investigation. Why almost three months have been allowed to go by without the calling of a Grand Jury is not known to the officers of your Committee."

HOLLER MAKES MOVE

William Holler has moved from his fortress in his home, south of Abingdon, and with his complete armory was seen today in downtown. Sheriff Bayer will not attempt to capture him until he has settled down, either in his house or some place on his farm.

LOSES RIGHT ARM.
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 10.—Anthony Titus, because of the extreme heat tied a gunny sack about a whirling shaft to stir up a breeze. He raised his arms to feel the first whiff of air, his right arm was caught in the sack and torn from the body.

Some new beliefs have been expressed in connection with the poisoning of the Abingdon water supply. Holler is still the only person suspected, but it is believed that his act was done not only to revenge Butler Rhodenberg, the Wayne county farmer, but to revenge himself upon the whole community of Abingdon town.

NURSES COMPLETE WORK AT HOSPITAL

An appropriate and inspiring address by President Kelly of Earlham college marked the graduation of five nurses from Reid Memorial hospital last night at the high school auditorium. An anonymous gift of a large bunch of roses was made to each graduating nurse. The roses having been left on the platform before the program opened.

Dr. S. C. Markley presided as chairman.

President Kelly paid a tribute to the work the nurses have taken upon themselves to perform.

The presentation of diplomas was made by John L. Rupe, president of the board of trustees of the hospital. Mr. Rupe made a short presentation speech.

Miss Minna Sands, superintendent of nurses and head of the hospital training school, presented each nurse with a graduate nurse pin.

The invocation was made by the Rev. Mr. Lightbourn.

Music was furnished by a quartet composed of Mrs. Krueger, Mrs. Longaker, Otto Krone and F. I. Braffett. Miss Carolyn Hutton, accompanied by Miss Mildred Schatz, played a violin solo. Mrs. Fred Bartel, accompanied by Miss Alice Knoellenberg, gave a vocal solo.

The graduates are Myrtle Elizabeth Wilkins, Wilma M. Wallace, Almira Painter, Alta F. Smith and Alice Ward.

WANTS SANE FOURTH

Young Richmond can go as far as it likes on the Fourth of July. Chief Goodwin said today, providing that the following celebration devices were not used:

Cannon crackers. Revolvers and toy pistols. Toy cannons. Canes which explode caps.

That leaves Richmond youngsters to have a good time on plain, old fashioned firecrackers and the ordinary night fireworks.

No backsiding from the sane and safe stuff in this city, says the chief.

DUFFY WILL SPEAK

Father Duffy will deliver the commencement address at the graduation exercises of the 1914 class of girls of St. Mary's high school, tomorrow night. Diplomas will be awarded the eight graduates by Father Duffy. Boys who completed work in the eight grades of the school are Barley F. Gordon, Harry F. Frame, Paul L. Lamb, William V. Gaa, Alphonso E. Hipkiss, Firman, N. Manier and Francis J. McManus.

TEARS DOWN HOME

The police were notified today that the home of William Titus and family, 404 South Eighth street, was torn down about them. Titus having emphatically refused to move despite two eviction notices served on him.

The house is a small and ancient frame structure. One side has now been practically demolished but the roof still remains on the building. The police were told that the property was sold a few days ago. When the new owner came into possession of the property he decided to waste no more time trying to get the Titus family out of the house and gave orders that it be torn down over their heads.

FARMERS CIRCULATE PETITIONS TO TURN ROADS OVER TO COUNTY

Dozens of petitions are being circulated in townships for the converting of township roads to free county turnpikes, and W. O. Jones, county highway commissioner, has made arrangements for the presentation of these petitions to the county commissioners in September.

All roads which meet the requirements will be taken over by the county, and late in September, after the work has been completed, the whole county road system will be reorganized, new districts made and additional road superintendents secured.

The commissioners and Mr. Jones want all petitions in at once, in order to anticipate the cost of maintenance and to prepare for it in the tax rate. The township road tax rate will be lowered and the county tax made slightly higher.

In this way the townships which have the smallest mileage of township roads to keep up will be benefited much more than townships which do not turn over the roads to the county.

Although there is now no means of getting at the mileage of township roads to be made county roads, Mr. Jones believes it will be sufficient to take the county in as a unit of less than a third of the state. The county now maintains 240 miles of road and those which are highest in the state have four or five hundred miles of county roads.

The townships are again in power, as far as roads are concerned, as nothing can be done with them without the signature of the trustee to each petition. The trustee's signature with those of two resident or property owners on the road are required as the minimum for a petition.

Library Adds Light Fiction For Benefit of Summer Readers

Among the new volumes of especial interest to the readers concerned with municipal questions and affairs are the following, which have been added to the Morrison-Reeves library:

"Police Administration," by L. F. Field; "Collection and Disposal of Municipal Waste," by W. F. Morse; "Sewage Disposal," by F. W. Fuller; "Markets for the People," by J. W. Sullivan; "Water Purification" and "Sewage Disposal," by Tillman.

"How France is Governed" is written by Raymond Poincare, recently made president of the French republic. It gives an exposition of France's system of government in a lucid and fascinating style, peculiarly French.

"Chemistry and its Relations to Daily Life," by Kahlenburg and Hart, and "Renaissance of the Greek Ideal," by Diana Watts. The former of these books is a handbook for students of cooking and household hygiene; the latter a very attractive exposition of the most artistic types of physical culture.

"Balder the Beautiful," by J. G. Frazer; "What Men Live By," by Richard C. Cabot; "Can We Still be Christians?" by Rudolph Eucken; "Life of the Fly," by J. H. Fabre; these, with two new volumes of Emerson's Journal will be of interest to the readers concerned with the more serious things of life.

Summer Reading.

Those who care for summer reading by way of fiction that is fascinating without being effervescent, will care for the following: "The Flying Inn," by Gilbert Chesterton; "Pollyanna," by E. H. Porter; "Chance," by Joseph Conrad; "When Ghost Meets Ghost," by De Morgan.

"The History of the Flood of March, 1913" is a volume compiled by C. W. Garrett for the Pennsylvania railroad. It contains photographs, maps, etc., of the devastated territory, and is a reference book on this melancholy subject which will doubtless prove of permanent value.

Readers awakening to the vital importance of public health problems will find every volume of this great topic very carefully treated by H. L. Gifford in his "Health of the City."

A list of the books of Rabindranath Tagore, the Bengal poet, whose mystic, unrhymed poems have become internationally popular, has just been placed on the shelves. This comprises all of the works of the great

HUERTISTAS OPPOSE REBEL DOMINANCE

A. B. C. Mediators Hear Delegates Fight Carranza's Influence on Provisional Organization.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 10.—THAT A new deadlock has developed in the mediation conference known today following a meeting of the A. B. C. mediators and the Mexican delegates. The dispute relates to the plan that have been outlined for the establishment of a provisional government to succeed that of President Huerta in Mexico.

The Mexican delegates are standing firm against the suggestion from the Americans that General Carranza be allowed to dominate the provisional organization.

They will oppose this as long as possible, but it is understood that they are being gradually persuaded to yield on this point.

er than to endanger a peaceful settlement. It is understood that the name of Felix Diaz has been completely eliminated as a possibility for the provisional presidency.
