

QUEER SHEETS GIRL LEAVES HOME AGAIN

Child Leaves Good Home When Wanderlust Seizes Her After Long Time.

The fourth attempt of the officials of the state orphanage at Indianapolis to find a home for an unruly and erratic Emma Sheets, aged 14 years, where she would remain long enough to be adopted into the family has met with the usual result—a complete failure. So Emma is today at the Home for Friendless awaiting her probable return to the orphanage.

Emma's temperament as fluctuating as the north wind and just when Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brammer of the Hudson flats, Thirteenth and Main street, thought they had won the little girl's affections, a few short other families in various parts of the state had failed to accomplish, Emma had the unexpected and took French leave Saturday morning. While Mrs. Brammer was working in another part of the flat Emma quit her ironing and departed. Mr. Brammer searched in vain for the child the rest of the day and Sunday noon had about reached the conclusion that Emma had left town.

Alleges Mistreatment.

About 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon Mrs. Mary Heath, 712 North Thirteenth, appeared at police headquarters and announced that the temperamental Emma was abiding with her; that the child had told her she had been mistreated by Mrs. Brammer, had been whipped and driven from the house; and that she (Mrs. Heath) wanted permission to secure Emma's belongings from the Brammer flat.

About that time Mr. Brammer arrived at headquarters and indignantly denied mistreatment of the child at his home. Finally the tearful Emma admitted that she had fibbed to Mrs. Heath. It was then decided to send the child to the Home for the Friendless. It was first suggested, however, that she return to the Brammer home, which suggestion caused Emma to shed oceans of tears. Just why is not known, because she had a few minutes before said she had always been well treated by the Brammers.

Mrs. Heath said the girl came to her home about 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning and she decided to keep her after hearing her tale of woe, manufactured out of Emma's vivid imagination.

Letters Tell Story.

Today Mr. Brammer found two letters Emma had written to the matron of the orphanage but had never mailed. The first one was written late in March, just after she had been taken into the Brammer home. In it she said Mrs. Brammer was teaching her to be "nice and clean about my work, and she hasn't scolded me yet." She also wrote that "if I am a naughty girl I want them to whip me."

The second letter, dated May 10, concedes she has been whipped, but had not been punished. She frankly admits that she had "deserved twenty whippings" and recites the fact that on one occasion while at the park she had "sassied Mrs. Brammer," which offense Emma thought was deserving of a "slapping." The girl concluded her well written and interesting letter by saying, "I have as nice a home as any girl has and I am going to do right."

ROGERS TO BECOME

edge of marine law had been proved. "I am going to leave, but I want it understood that it is not because I am forced to, but because those directors are a bunch of scoundrels, and I don't want to do business with them," was the characteristic statement of the captain when he spoke of his compromise.

On the other hand, he counseled for the Lake and Park company admit Captain Rogers' knowledge of his rights on the lake. The chief reason that a settlement was not made sooner is the fact that Captain Rogers misunderstood the advances of the company and refused to try to make terms with it.

"I only hope to have a good month in July. Everything with me depends on that," the captain said. "I will dispose of my two lots and my home and leave Richmond after I sell my boat. I intend to build another boat down south during the winter."

The captain is an interesting character for those who are acquainted with him. Because of his candidness he is often misunderstood. He has been hot-headed when anything came up relative to his contract with the company or his boat business, because this is all he has had, and he believed an effort was being made to rob him of it.

He reads three library books every week and remembers what he reads. Since he has been in Richmond his wife says he has read the Bible four times. He can talk interestingly on almost any subject, and can tell a new stock of stories every day.

At the time of the March flood last year, Captain Rogers and his wife were prisoners three days in the old mill property below Twelfth street in Flossie Dale. After the mill was wrecked the captain and his wife rescued, Captain Rogers used the old timbers to build the Wild Rover.

PIONEER RESIDENT ANSWERS CALL

CENTERVILLE, Ind., June 29.—One of Wayne county's oldest and best known pioneer citizens, Henry L. Fender, aged 87, died Sunday afternoon on the farm where he was born, at Locust Grove, after an illness of three months. Mr. Fender was one of the wealthiest farmers in the county.

Until recently he had taken an active part in the work on his large farm. His numerous friends in the western part of the county were shocked to learn of his death.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Locust Grove church, the Rev. Mitchell, of Centerville officiating. Mr. Fender is survived by his son, John of Locust Grove, three grandchildren, Eugene Fender, of Centerville, Mrs. Victor Bardsley, of Locust Grove, and Mrs. J. L. Helm, of Locust Grove.

FATS Make

the Hottest Fire

And as the digestion of food generates body heat, so the more greasy, heavy food you eat, the hotter you are.

One can feel several degrees cooler and more comfortable in summer by selecting proper food.

Grape-Nuts

is made of carefully selected wheat and barley and contains all their nutritive values, including the mineral phosphates, (grown in the grain), that are especially necessary for rebuilding the tissue cells of body and brain.

Grape-Nuts is thoroughly baked (16 to 24 hours) which breaks down the starch cells. Therefore it is easily and quickly digested—generally in about one hour.

If you care to feel cool and fit, make Grape-Nuts a part of the summer diet—a delicious part!
