OHIO PLAYERS CONTEND FOR CHAMP FLAG

New Madison and New Paris
Play at Athletic Park to Decide Honors for Section.

The game between New Paris and New Madison which is to be played tomorrow at the Athletic Park to decide the championship of their section of Ohio promises to be a good one. Many familiar faces will be seen in both lineups among them, being Eli Cates, the old timer who now lives in Richmond.

Cates will be on first for New Paris in the place of Rainey who is unable to play on account of an injured wrist which has not healed as quickly as he thought. Other well known players that Richmond fans will remember are Dumphy Coblenz who played second for the Richmond team last year and Hill and Pat Sharpe.

Neither Liebhardt or Wellman were able to get here in time to twirl the game for New Paris and Reop, the local twirler who has had a very successful season with the Grays will be on the mound.

Hampton will do the receiving. Arnett and Ratliff, Ohio State Leaguers, will be ready to go to the hill for New Madison and Franz will do the backstopping. Umpires will be Wood and Hyde and the game starts at 2:30 o'clock. How they will line up.

New Paris—Stanley, r f; Hampton, c; Brown, ss; Cooney, c f; Cates, 1 b; Clements, 1 f; Newbold, 3 b; Lucas, 2 b; Reop, p; Clapp, Sauters, extra.

New Madison—E. Sharp, 1 b; Hill, c f; P. Sharp, 3 b; Franz, c; Jennings, 2 b; Coblenz, s s; Max, r f; Heater, 1 f; Arnett, Ratliff, P. Harter, extra.

ONLY YALE LINEMAN
SURE OF POSITION

Captain Talbott of the Yale football eleven, who, according to Coach Hinkley of the Yells, is the only man on the line who is sure of his position. In Yale's first game of the season the back field played perfectly but the line work was of a low order.

Winners of S. A. L. in City Match

Middle—Black, Ulrich Mgr., Johnson, O. Davis.
Lower—Nicodemus, Quigley, Allison, Butler.

WESTVILLE COMES AGAINST FAIRVIEW

A hot game is expected at Fairview park tomorrow when White's Reserves meet Westville. Westville is coming loaded up with City league players and with the Hawekotte brothers as the battery. The Reserves will have to go some to get away with the game. They expect, however, to do this with a quickness. They will take the breath away from their opponents. Fairview will line up as follows: Kaiser, 3b; Warfel, 2b; Burkhardt, cf; Evans, ss; Knight, p; Craycraft, c; Zeyen, 1b; Bell, rf; Muhl, lf, and Horr, p.

NEW FOOTBALL TEAM TO REPORT SUNDAY

City Team Takes Steps to Schedule Games for the Season.

An enthusiastic meeting of the City Football team was held at the Palladium office last evening. Plans for raising money to put the team on a sound financial footing were gone over. Candidates are to report at Athletic park Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

The Palladium sport editor was ordered to put a notice in the Palladium for any one who wishes to play this season to report at the park Sunday. The team will get new suits and other necessary articles. It is planned to play some of the teams around Richmond for the first part of the season, and ending with a game here on Thanksgiving with the Dayton Celts or Oakwood.

Loey Lewis, a former Indiana university player, will coach the team.

GRAND JURY MEETS

EATON, O., Oct. 10.—During its session Friday, the grand jury for October term of common pleas court examined four witnesses, ignored one case and returned one indictment which has not yet been made public. Usen Mehmet, a Turk, failed to appear before the jury to testify in the investigation of an assault and robbery charge against Charles Johnson, a fellow countryman, whose victim was a Mohmet. The latter is confined in a Cincinnati hospital from the effects of numerous cuts inflicted by "Johnson" when he overpowered the man and robbed him of about $100. The case will later be investigated.

WHAT ACTORS IN DRAMA SAY OF YESTERDAY'S GAME

Eddie Collins Not Normal After Contest, So He Breaks Into Rhyme, While Johnny Evers Articulates Loudly, and Stallings Keeps Up His Grouch—Athletic Money Hides.

BY FRANK G. MENKE,
Sporting Editor for the International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Here are a number of factors that have a bearing on the second world series' battle between the crackless Braves and the wall-patched Athletics, which is scheduled for today.

With the weather man: "Don't worry—it will rain today. The farmers need the rain. Heaven bless the farmers. What? Baseball? Oh yes, come to think of it I did hear about some folks wanting nice weather so ball game could be played today. But, the farmers need the rain. They shall have it today."

Foiled yesterday in his efforts to sprinkle the landscape, the weather man evidently doesn't intend being foiled today.

Rain in Morning.
In addition to bringing up an army of heavy, gray clouds to back him up early today, he also brought an intermittent misty rain that started at dawn and which threatened to become steady and heavy before the day is done.

With a betting commissioner: "The odds today are five to four that the Braves win the series and five to four that they win the next game. And, let me tell you, mister there ain't nothin' but athletic money in sight. I heard tell about $40,000 of Athletic money that was going begging yesterday for any old kind of odds, but there ain't no $40,000 in sight today, mister. The Athletic fellow kinda got cold, ain't he? There's some betting feet, I guess! There's some betting feet, but most of 'em is hedge bets."

Johnny Evers Chesty.
And now ladies and gentlemen, the next speaker is Johnny Evers, a Boston fellow. Lend your ear while he articulates.

"Left handers are pie for us. Only once since the middle of July has a south-paw beaten our regular team. That fellow was Atchison of Brooklyn. But we got even with him the next time. Hammered him out of the box. I hear they're going to pitch Plank against us in the next game, if they do give up a look."

Evd. T. Collins, who second bases for the home crowd, has these few words to slip into you:

"Beaten, but no disgraced. Vanquished, but not effaced."

Mr. Collins doesn't talk in rhyme normally. But Mr. Collins isn't quite normal this morning. Something happened to him and to his fellow-men yesterday. It was something horrible and it all happened so rapidly that Collins hasn't quit figuring it all out and therefore must be excused for speaking in a sort of poetical vein.

"Who are you gonna pitch today—if it doesn't rain?" was asked of Stallings the baseball manager with the pugilistic inclination. "A pitcher," answered Mr. Stallings, whereupon he left for parts unknown.

However, 'tis whispered, if the day beams bright, William James, who has a great assortment of fast balls, will do the heaving for the Beantown gang. Otherwise, George Tyler, a left-handed person, will be on the job.

Speculators Sore.
Speaking of being on the job, brings to mind the ticket speculators. The small army of them that was jailed yesterday and the day before are out peddling their wares again. The judge before whom they appeared yesterday declared that the law which caused the guardians of the law to lock them up was unconstitutional.

However, the "specs" aren't doing what might be called a rushing business. They are rushing around all right, hawking their wares, but they aren't doing much other than hawking. REPUBLICANS BEGIN against him by many Wayne county Republicans that he had employed unfair tactics in securing the nomination from Judge Constock of this city. "I come to Richmond with no malice toward anyone," said Mr. Lynch, "no matter how unjustly they may have assailed me. I come here with Christian charity toward all. I come with no harsh words on my lips and my heart bubbling over with good will."

He then referred to the fact that he had come into this life with the handicap of poverty, being the youngest of the ten children of a poor Irish family. His father died when he was a youth and his mother then took her large brood from "the little dream island off the West English coast" to the America of golden opportunities.

"The teachings learned at my mother's knee have been the guiding principle of my life, and if I have been fairly successful I owe all to her. I can at least say that on the white marble of my manhood there is no stain," the speaker exclaimed fervently.

Mr. Lynch then accused the Democratic state administration of extravagant mismanagement of public affairs. He said the last Democratic legislature had cost the people of Indiana $500 more a day than any Republican assembly in the history of the state and that now we find that our treasury is empty and that the Democrats have borrowed $680,000. He predicted that the Republicans would carry the state by a plurality ranging from 20,000 to 40,000 and he said he knew whereof he spoke because he had been out on the firing line for several weeks.

Mr. Lynch concluded his address by praising the county ticket of the Republicans. "There never was a ticket in this or any other county of the state more deserving of your support than the ticket the Wayne Republicans are offering this year. Every man on it is clean, upstanding and capable and everyone of them will be elected."

He added that he was not posing as a political reformer or a political leader. "I am just an upstanding, courageous Republican, and if you elect me I won't be a political freak but just an old fashioned Republican and a faithful and trustworthy public servant," he said.

In speaking of Democratic extravagances Mr. McKinley said in part: "Nations that follow reasonable courses get good results. This is just the same as in the case of individuals. The United States has done well in advancing prosperity—legislation did much of it."

"One of the fruitful questions of legislation is that of revenue. Let us regard the country as a great business organization and the government as an agency conducting business—a board of directors, if you please."

"It takes much money to run the affairs of the country, and the raising of this money causes deep concern. Two years ago the Republicans spent $1,070,000,000, and the Democrats said it was too great; that the government ought to carry on the business much more economically. Let's see how it was spent:

"The postoffice department took nearly $300,000,000; the naval bill generally takes $150,000,000; the civil government $110,000,000; public buildings, $40,000,000; the rivers and harbors, $40,000,000; and the agricultural bill $41,000,000."

"Receipts from the postoffice department usually lack ten or fifteen millions of reaching the approximate $300,000,000 spent; internal revenue brought in about $235,000,000; the administration of justice about $50,000,000; the sale of public lands about $50,000,000 while the federal corporation tax brought about $30,000,000. This left behind $35,000,000 for Republican administrations to raise."

"The Democrats raised an awful howl about that $1,070,000,000, but they have spent this year $1,116,000,000 and they are not through. They are still contemplating the expenditure of $100,000,000, which will make their expenses more than $200,000,000 per year than it was under the Republican administration."

"We always had enough money to go around by raising it in a legitimate manner, and when we quit, left $30,000,000 in the treasury for the Democrats to begin on. And now the Democrats are asking for a special tax to raise part of the money to run the government. Heretofore it has been raised by duty on goods brought
