

GERMANS IN U. S. STAND FOR PEACE

Advising German-Americans to maintain a strict neutrality in carefully expressing opinions regarding the European War if it must be discussed, Henry Fisher of Indianapolis delivered an interesting address before the union meeting held in the old engine house at the corner of South Sixth and E streets Sunday afternoon by members of the German-American alliance, Southside Improvement Association, Militaire Verein and other organizations.

Mr. Fisher at the same time told his audience to keep well informed of events across the water. He urged unusual precaution by Americans in their attitude of neutrality because of the fact that the United States was inhabited by people of every country, race and language. In closing, Mr. Fisher warned Richmond German people from buying iron crosses. These are entirely different from the iron cross rings which are being sold in the United States to relieve the sufferings of the widows and children of German soldiers. A committee of twelve members will be appointed soon in Richmond to sell these rings. Eighty-six of the rings have already been sold.

GIVES LAST SERMON AT REID MEMORIAL

The inestimable value of the relationship of women for the church, was discussed by the Rev. Mr. Hanna in his farewell sermon at Reid Memorial church at the morning services Sunday.

He said that women throughout the ages had been holding up the church shouldering its responsibilities and duties, overthrowing obstacles which barred its path in progress and doing the most work to make its influence felt in the four corners of the earth.

He cited Phoebe, of Biblical times, as an example of what women have accomplished for the church. He commended the name of Phoebe for a girl and said that since his ordination fifty-three years ago, he did not remember an instance where the parents desired their child baptized with that name.

Rev. Hanna announced that a minister whose name he was not privileged to make known, would preach next Sunday and asked that a large congregation be present.
