

GLEANERS HOLD CLASS MEETING AT GLEN KARN

HOLLANDSBURG, O., June 9.—William Harris went to Zanesville, O., Monday to attend the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias.

Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Bishop left Sunday morning for Alexandria, Ohio, where they will visit their parents and other relatives.

Mr. John Lovin was in Richmond Tuesday.

The Gleaners Class of the Christian Sunday school of this place will have a social meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Richards at Glen Karn.

Messrs. Harvey Peden and Mood Albright were Richmond visitors Monday.

Ed. Wiedemer of Richmond was in town Tuesday.

Mrs. Curt Spencer and daughter Edith and Mrs. Andrew North spent Tuesday near Richmond the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allie White.

Born, Tuesday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Timmons, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Davis, Mrs. Schumaker Lloyd and Ilo Davis attended the Colvin reunion at New Paris, Sunday.

The young child of Mr. and Mrs. John Timmons is critically ill with pneumonia with symptoms of brain fever developing.

Mr. Arnett and Mr. John Sinar of Palestine, Ohio, spent Tuesday here.

Alex Anderson and J. H. Beetley spent Tuesday in Greenville, O.

Ivan Richards and Mrs. Monroe Richards were in Richmond Tuesday.

Webster Pearce and wife of Greenville were Tuesday visitors in Hollandsburg.

Mrs. Edgar Hill and Mrs. Frank White of Bethel, Ind., were here Tuesday.

Miss Rhoda Macy of Union City is a visitor at the home of Miss Adina Mutchener.

Clyde Addleman of Whitewater was in town Tuesday.

Mrs. Charles Chenoweth is on the sick list.

Charles Chenoweth spent Tuesday in Union City.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Moore and sons, Cecil and Mearl, spent Tuesday the guests of Mrs. Mabel Bicknell and son Henry.

Several from here will attend the social dance given at Palestine Wednesday night.

Herman Horn, north of Dobson, spent Tuesday here.

GUARD POWDER PLANT

GARY, Ind., June 9.—Twelve former United States army privates and non-commissioned officers were assigned to guard the Aetna Explosive company's plant. A barb wire fence charged with electricity has been strung around the plant, which is producing gun cotton.

"A Man and His Wife"

John Slips Out Late at Night to Go to the Party and Leaves Isabel.

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Only miserable misunderstandings could come from further discussion of the subject of Adelaide Simmons, Isabel Hamilton decided. She was too much hurt by John's attitude to wish to speak of the matter again.

She had meant what she said when she told him that he had put her in the wrong, and although he had attempted to explain away his action, she still felt that he had deceived her. His accusation that she was "unreasonably jealous" stung her sharply. She determined to show him that his movements were of little consequence to her, and that she could be secretive as well as he.

The man himself was indignant at what he considered his wife's underhanded methods of learning of his affairs. He acknowledged to himself that he had not been entirely candid with her in explaining the matter of the telephone call—yet her suspicions made it impossible for him to be frank. Adelaide Simmons had telephoned to ask him if he would not like to meet her and a party of her friends late that evening for supper at a Broadway restaurant.

"I would ask you to bring your wife if I thought she would want to come," Adelaide said. "But the crowd will be, perhaps, a little gayer than the people she is accustomed to. For we are all old friends, you know. Yet if you think she would care for the lark, why, bring her along."

John knew very well that Isabel would not care for it. He knew, too, that she would not approve of his going without her. Therefore he would say nothing about it. He had not declined the invitation positively, although he had not really meant to accept it. But he did not want to wound Adelaide, so he said that he "would see about it."

Had Isabel been pleasant and affectionate, he would have remained at home with her. After their quarrel he wandered aimlessly into the little parlor, while she went to bed. He felt uneasy and discontented, angry with his wife and out of temper with himself. It was only halfpast nine when he threw aside his evening paper, for it failed to hold his attention. He glanced around for some object to interest him, and he saw the book that he had been reading aloud to Isabel a few evenings ago. It gave him a bit of heartache to look at the volume, but the ache was speedily followed by a flash of resentment.

How unreasonable she was! Here he and she might be having a happy evening together, and she had not only spied upon his actions but had gone off to bed in a huff. Well, if a wife did that kind of thing, and made home uncomfortable, a man was not to be blamed for going away from home for amusement. Certainly he was not going to bed as early as this! He had brought himself to the point where he felt himself very unfairly treated. This state of mind justified him in his own eyes in seeking consolation where he could find it.

He thought of Adelaide. She was good company and did not get morose. Of course, he loved his wife, and did not love Adelaide—yet the latter had never made him as uncomfortable as Isabel made him. He wished he had some pleasant person to spend the evening with.

Why not join Adelaide's party? He would have to get into his dress suit to do this. He recalled with satisfaction that, although he and his wife slept in the same room, his closet and chiffonier were in his little dressing room. Here he could slip quickly into his evening clothes.

Tip-toeing to the door of the bedroom, he entered and stood for a moment at the foot of the bed, listening to his wife's breathing. It was not so regular as to make him think she was asleep. On the contrary, he knew that she was awake and conscious of his presence. Had she spoken gently at this moment, had she voiced a desire to conciliate him, he would have remained at home. In married life so much hinges on seeming trifles—on the word that should not be spoken or on the word that is left unuttered!

At this psychological moment Isabel committed the fatal error of sullen and disapproving silence. The average man resents disapproval—and John Hamilton resented it. He left the room as softly as he had entered, going by way of the dressing room and closing the door behind him. Opening his closet he got out his evening suit, then swiftly put the studs into a dress shirt, and proceeded to make himself ready for his excursion downtown. He was glad that he had shaved that morning and that it would not be necessary to repeat the process this evening; his hand was hardly steady enough at this juncture for him to care to perform this delicate task.

It was after 10 o'clock when he was ready to go out. With a sensation of guilt he donned his overcoat and high hat and left the apartment.

Isabel, lying awake, listening to every sound, wondered at first why John was taking such a long time to undress. She had been surprised when she heard him go into his dressing room, for she had supposed he would sit up reading, as he often did. She was somewhat touched when she found—as she had fancied—that he was really preparing to go to bed at a sane and decent hour instead of sulking in the parlor until long past midnight.

She settled herself comfortably in bed with a sigh of satisfaction. Now she felt that she could go right to sleep. For, after all, perhaps John was sorry for his misbehavior and was going to be as nice as he used to be before he and she began to have their little quarrels.

A prolonged silence startled her from her light doze. How still the apartment was! Where was John? She would just peep into his dressing room and see.

The "peep" showed her that the little room was in darkness. Turning on the electric light, she saw that her husband's business suit lay across the back of a chair. Running to the closet, she glanced in. His dress suit was gone; so was his high hat.

He had gone out somewhere at this time of the evening—and had not told her a word about it!

[To be continued]

The Vanderbilt hotel in New York has hired a girl as taxi starter. The new plan is called the Virginia Mooney system, after the young woman employed.

HORLICK'S
The Original
MALTED MILK
Unless you say "HORLICK'S"
you may get a Substitute.

Attention Students

When returning home, travel via

Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Company

The clean, cool, comfortable way.

Fast Limited Service From Richmond

Direct connection at Indianapolis for all points in Indiana and Kentucky. Through tickets sold and baggage checked to all points reached via traction. Special service for parties of forty (40) or more. Call local agent for further information.

FRIENDS PLAN NEW INTERIOR FOR BUILDING

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind., June 9.—

The Friends' church will remodel and enlarge the building, according to a decision reached at a business meeting held Monday night. The action has been contemplated for some time. The building will be changed to seat many more persons and to simplify the arrangement of the Sunday school. Plans and specifications are being drawn by W. S. Kaufman and son of Richmond. The firm will also have general supervision of the work.

The Helping Hand society of the Friends' church will hold the annual business meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Asa Pitts. The annual election of officers will be a part of the business.

B. Price who has been confined to his home for some time on account of illness is again able to be out.

Dr. Griffith is ill at his home.

BOARD TO ELECT EATON TEACHERS

EATON, O., June 9.—At a meeting to be held next week by the board of education the matter of selecting teachers will come up for consideration. Excepting the selection of successors to three teachers who have resigned, it is probable no other changes will be made, according to board members. Superintendent John O'Leary was employed for a term of three years by the board two years ago and still has a year of the appointment to serve. Misses Maria Thum, Fanta Nesbitt and Marie Deem are the teachers whose resignations have been filed. Miss Deem will be married shortly to Robert H. Rees, of Germantown.

FOREST FIRES RAGE.

UTICA, N. Y., June 9.—Although low hanging clouds over the burning areas in the Adirondacks promised heavy rainfall today, only a sprinkle has fallen this morning where timber fires are in progress. All the fires are under control with the exception of a big blaze at Star Lake in St. Lawrence county, where about 100 cottages and the village are threatened by the flames.

Many Recoveries From Lung Trouble

Eckman's Alternative has restored to health many sufferers from lung trouble. Read what it did in this case:—

Wilmington, Del.
"Gentlemen:—In January, 1902, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, a leading practitioner, said that it was lung trouble. I got very weak. C. A. Eckman, of Philadelphia's Department Store, Wilmington, Del., recommended Eckman's Alternative that had done great good. I began taking it at once. I continued faithfully, using no other remedy, and finally noticed the clearing of the lungs. I now have no trouble with my lungs. I firmly believe Eckman's Alternative saved my life." (Abbreviated.)

JAS. SQUIRE.
(Abbreviated.)
Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and up-building the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size, 5¢; regular size, 12¢. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.
Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

You will know what Advertising is

Robbie was very busy with paper and pencil. "What are you doing Robbie?" asked mother. "Making a picture of God!"

"But Robbie," protested mother, "nobody knows how God looks!"

"They will when I get my picture done." You may be a business man who has nothing to do with advertising. You may think that the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at Chicago, June 20 to 24, cannot possibly interest you. If you will attend just one convention you will know what advertising is. More than that, you will insist on being an advertiser.

Every Possible kind of information about it sent on request.

CONVENTION COMMITTEE
Advertising Association of Chicago, Advertising Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

PALLADIUM WANT ADS. PAY.

What Do You Get For Your

Ask an Overland Dealer.

OVERLAND

Unheard of Value -- New Price

$750

5 Passenger Touring Car Roadster--$725

Prices f. o. b. Toledo

This is the largest four-cylinder Overland that will be produced this year.

$750

5 Passenger Touring Car Roadster--$725

Prices f. o. b. Toledo

CANADIAN PRICES:
Touring Car .....$1050
Roadster .....$1015
Prices f. o. b. Hamilton, Ontario

Sensational Announcement!

The Willys-Overland Company is gratified to announce that after six years of preparation and perfection of facilities in which the annual capacity of the plant has been increased from 5,000 to 100,000 cars they find it possible to produce a completely equipped, high-grade, powerful, commodious, and beautifully finished up-to-date-to-the-minute car with a 35 h. p. four-cylinder motor, magneto ignition, shod with 33x4 inch tires, (with non-skids on rear) to be sold for $750.

The size and power of this car is the popular type with those whom experience has taught the advantage of combining comfort on the road with economy of operation, and has never before been offered the public at less than $1050 by any manufacturer in the world.

It is a family car, complete in every detail, with all the refinements, perfection of mechanical features, including electric starter, electric lighting, magneto ignition and beauty of coach work which characterize Overland production.

"Made in U. S. A."

—Deliveries Are Being Made Now—

"Made in U. S. A."

Bethard Auto Agency
1117 MAIN STREET

What Do You Get For Your

Write for Further Particulars

What Do You Get For Your

Ask a Competitor's Dealer

What Do You Get For Your

Take Pencil and Figure It Yourself