

BANK TO OPEN NEW BUILDING LAST OF JULY

Informal opening of the new First National bank building at Seventh and Main streets, will be held Saturday afternoon and evening, July 31, according to the announcement of A. D. Gayle, president of the bank. Definite arrangements will be made at a directors' meeting Friday night.

The three rooms of the new institution, consisting of the basement, main floor and mezzanine, will probably be open for public inspection from 2 until 6 o'clock and from 7 until 9 o'clock in the evening. An orchestra will furnish music and flowers will be given to visitors.

The furnishings and complete equipment of the new quarters will be new. Nothing used in the old building on South Seventh street will be carried over, with the exception of the books, records and documents.

Part of the basement will be used as a club room for employees. Billiard and pool tables and periodicals will be placed in this room.

The First National bank is the second oldest bank in the state and the seventeenth oldest national bank in the United States. It has been doing business in Richmond for fifty-three years.

EMBEZZLER FACES CHARGE OF BIGAMY

CHICAGO, July 20.—Max Palenske, who confessed that he embezzled approximately thirty thousand dollars of the funds of the Drovers' National bank, where he was assistant cashier and auditor, today faced the possibility of being called to answer an equally serious charge of bigamy.

Josephine G. Tobin, head telephone operator in the Corn Exchange National bank, told federal agents of the department of justice that she and Palenske were married last February in Canada, and that she understood that he had obtained a divorce from his first wife in order to marry her. Palenske was not divorced, but, according to the federal authorities, had been dividing his time between his wife and Miss Tobin.

FRANK IMPROVES

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 20.—Leo M. Frank's condition this morning continued favorable. His temperature had receded to ninety-nine, and otherwise he was in good condition. Physicians state that his chances of recovery are improving.

By a new process originating in England a steel is produced which is said to be proof against rust, stain and tarnish.

BOARD INTERPRETS COMPENSATION ACT

Counties, school and civil city corporations are not required to carry insurance under the workmen's compensation law, according to a ruling of the Industrial Board of Indiana. Copies of a notification to this effect were received today by the board of public works from Gilbert H. Hendren of the state board of accounts. This interpretation of the law will permit the county, the schools and the city to assume all liability for injuries to employees.

The letter follows: "It is not compulsory on public officials to take out insurance under the workmen's compensation law enacted by the legislature in 1915. This is the decision of the Industrial Board of Indiana in Rule XV. All letters, circulars and representations to the contrary should be disregarded by township trustees, county highway superintendents, county commissioners, city and town school corporations, civil cities and towns, municipally owned corporations, state institutions and state boards and state officials."

WOMAN KILLS MAN

TIPTON, Ind., July 20.—Walter Varner, 35, of Greenfield, a boxmaker, was shot and killed early today by Mrs. Gilbert Robinson, into whose home he was attempting to gain entrance by force. Varner appeared at the Robinson home at 7:30 o'clock and was trying to force the front door when the woman fired four shots from a revolver through the glass portion of the door. One bullet penetrated Varner's wrist, another pierced his abdomen. He died two hours later.

City Statistics

TO HOLD FESTIVAL

CENTERVILLE, Ind., July 20.—The Bryant chapel cemetery association will hold the annual ice cream festival at the town hall Saturday evening, July 31.

LIFE ON ZEPPELIN DURING RAID MAKING ATTACK ON COAST TOWNS

AMSTERDAM, July 20.—A writer in the Cologne Gazette gives the following description of a Zeppelin raid on England:

Lieutenant Commander X., in command of L—, enters the airship shed. The crew of two deck officers and twelve non-commissioned officers is already at work.

One of the officers satisfies himself that the supply of petrol is complete, while the other superintends the carriage of bombs and incendiary missiles into the gondolas.

There is silence in the great hall, of which the doors have been opened. The men who hold down the vessel are in their places. The crew are at their stations in the gondolas. The officer in charge reports "All in order" to the skipper, who calls out instructions to discharge the water ballast.

There is a rush of water and the vessel gradually rises above her props and floats in the air.

The captain paces her whole length, scanning her with careful eye. Then he climbs into the front gondola and orders her to be taken out. The lieutenant repeats the order, "Airship forward," and the men with the mooring ropes tow her into the open. Springing to his feet he shouts "Loosen," and the mooring rope at the bow is let go.

Clears for Trip.
She is now held only by the gondolas, into which the lieutenant now climbs. A cry of "Tention," and a long shrill blast from the boatswain's whistle, the last ropes are dropped, and almost simultaneously the engine room telegraph signals, "Motors full speed ahead." With a noise like thunder the propellers spring into life, the vessel shoots forward and up.

The forward gondola resembles the bridge of a warship, and the skipper bends over his maps.

The vessel advances in a straight line to the northwest. A number of fishing vessels can be seen at sea, all flying the Dutch flag, but the skipper knows that British fishermen even near their own coasts now seldom fly anything else.

Sails for England.
By 3 p. m. his mission is at an end. He had received orders to be back at the hangar before dusk, but the weather being favorable he telegraphically asks permission to act on his own initiative and profit by the favorable opportunity. "Agreed," is the reply.

Continuing his flight to the northwest he determines to deliver a blow against the English coast. It is yet twilight when he approaches England and ascends to a height of 5,500 feet in order to keep out of sight of the watchful eyes on board England's guardships.

from the chimneys of an industrial district.

He remains above the clouds until it is dark, then, pushing on to the coast, he detects in the dying daylight the two moles marking the mouth of the river which he is seeking. Almost simultaneously come flashes of artillery fire from below. The rudder swings around, and steering past the attacking fortress, the airship is over the yards, arsenals and munition factories.

The airship's gunner is lying on his face by the sighting apparatus and fires at the targets over which he is being steered. There are now flashes beneath us which do not proceed merely from the enemy artillery. The displacement of air, due to a tremendous explosion, is felt in the gondola. Below a large factory is seen to collapse.

The windows of other workshops suddenly become dark. The men in the gondolas are under the impression that they see policemen hurrying through the streets with cries of warning, because house after house is suddenly swallowed in darkness, until the town and suburbs are incomplete obscures.

A process has been invented in India for procuring saltpeter of about 94 cent. purity.

FRENCH HURL BACK GERMAN ATTACKS

PARIS, July 20.—Two furious attacks by the Germans during the night against the French position at the Caumont trench were repulsed, the war office announced today. The statement also adds that the Germans bombarded Soissons again. This town has been battered for many weeks and a large part of it is in ruins. North of the Chateau de Caruel in the Arras region, the Germans kept up a violent bombardment.

BECKER MAKES LAST APPEAL TOMORROW

NEW YORK, July 20.—The final court appeal for Charles Becker, ex-lieutenant of police, will be made tomorrow. Becker's chief counsel, Martin T. Manton, said today that a judge of the supreme or federal court would be asked to stay Becker's execution because of new evidence.

Suffragette Auto Cause of Trouble

DR. ANNA HOWARD SHAW

That beautiful yellow suffrage auto, "Eastern Victory" presented to Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, is getting her into a lot of trouble. First the auto was seized by the horrid Delaware County authorities as security for taxes, which Dr. Shaw has refused to pay, arguing as per our Revolutionary forefathers "No taxation without representation." Represented or not, they took the auto and are still holding it. Now Dr. Shaw's chauffeur comes forward and says the suffrage president has not paid him his salary for guiding the destinies of "Eastern Victory" along the high ways and byways.

The auto is to be sold at auction at Media, on July 24, say the authorities. The chauffeur says he wants his money right away.
