

PREPARE MAPS OF MAIL ROUTES TO GIVE RELIEF

Postal inspectors are still at work trying to straighten out the rural route situation in this county. Yesterday was spent inspecting the routes, and today the inspectors have been in the office working on the maps preparatory to making recommendations to the Washington authorities. No information will be given out by them regarding the local situation, and despite the resignation of Howard Elliott as rural route carrier, the situation is clearing up. Postmaster Beck believes that within a week the system will be in working order and no more trouble experienced.

The fact that the inspectors, after going over all the routes, are now at work on the maps, is an indication, it is believed, that the demand of Postmaster Beck for additional routes will be complied with. At least the postal inspectors will recommend the change, it is believed.

SPEAKS AT THEATRE

Rev. John A. Gray, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Jackson, Mich., will be the speaker at the men's meeting at the Gennett theatre, Sunday afternoon. His subject will be "The Fourfold Man." Music will be rendered by the Gates orchestra and songs will be sung by the Earlham college quartette.

ERECT LIGHT POLES.

North Ninth street will soon take on a Broadway aspect, as the Richmond Electric company is erecting poles for the cluster light, which will illuminate the thoroughfare, and they will shine tomorrow night.

Robert Pitt, then prime minister of England, made the first protest against race-suicide by offering prizes for large families.

Large families have always been commendable, but to support and properly raise several children, a bank account is now-a-days indispensable. Start saving with this bank while you are still a young man and by time you have a family about you a large nest egg to take care of them with will not come amiss.
