

DISARM SHIPS DEMAND OF U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The United States will continue to press its request that the European belligerents disarm all merchant ships. Although President Wilson has reversed Secretary Lansing's planned policy of acquiescence in the proposal of Teutonic policy that merchantmen carrying guns could be attacked by submarines without warning, the question still is held open. Lansing will continue to endeavor to reach an agreement with the entente and Teutonic allies which will protect the interests of the United States. Already he has talked the subject over with Ambassador Spring-Rice, Ambassador von Bernstorff and Austrian Charge Zwiedinek. Later he will take it up with other representatives of the warring powers.

Definite action probably will be outlined Friday evening in a meeting of the Commercial club.

At Movies Tonight

ARCADÉ.
"The Crime of Circumstance," at the Arcade tomorrow. The Knickerbocker Star Feature features Lewis J. Cody and Madeleine Travers. The theme of the picture is based primarily on the eternal triangle, and resolves itself cleverly into a revelation of what the title indicates. The play has been developed in an artistic manner and with an occasional exception is consistent in its flow of circumstance. The story brings us into the domestic circle of a district attorney and his pretty young wife.

A Sure Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Adv.

Palladium Editorial OF FEBRUARY 15th, 1916

A Poor Savings Bank.

An aged recluse of Indianapolis lost the savings of a life time last week because he distrusted banks and savings institutions. He kept $600 hidden in the drawer of a washstand in the dingy little room he called his home. Shortly after he went to bed Friday night he heard a knock at the door; two men seized him; he was thrown on his cot, and the insecure bank was robbed.

The loss of $600 meant a fortune to this old man. It was the accumulation of thrift, stored away nickel by nickel, dime by dime, for many years. His thrift deserves commendation; his distrust of banks deserves condemnation. He saved well, but he did not bank well. He knew that $600 might keep him from the poor house, but he did not know that the $600 must be safely kept. To save money and not put it in a safe place, is almost the equivalent of saving for years and then spending it all in one wild debauch of extravagance.

Again, had the old man put his dollars into a savings bank he would have received interest on the amount while it was growing through many years, and the savings of a life time would have been much greater than $600.

Every community has a number of persons who distrust banks and keep their money at home. Often a robber gets it; often it is destroyed by fire; sometimes its owner is taken suddenly ill, dies, and because no one knows about the money, its owner is buried in a pauper's grave. Every one ought to save; every one ought put his savings in a safe place.
